Ban On Building To State

A group organized to fight Southern Marin's building ban announced yesterday it has appealed the ban to the state Water Resources Control Board.

Attorney Saul M. Weingarten of Seaside, representing the Citizens Assistance League to Marin Sanitary Districts, said he filed the appeal Wednesday and hopes for a hearing within 10 days.

The appeal cites 15 points to back up the league's contention that the state board should reverse a ban on new sewer connections imposed by the regional water quality control board June 24.

Weingarten told a meeting of the citizens league in Mill Valley City Hall that on one hand, the regional board told Mill Valley and the Richardson Bay Sanitary District to upgrade their sewage treatment and on the other hand said it would not approve requests by the agencies for state and federal funds to make improvements.

If the ban is continued, he said, it will cause a drastic reduction in assessed valuations in Southern Marin, and further prevent improvement of treatent facilities by reducing property taxes which could accomplish the job.

Jeffory S. Morshead, owner of Frank Howard Allen and Co., said the ban will not accomplish the cleaning up of Richardso Bay because new construction accounts for only 3 to 4 per cent of the sewage per year.

More to the point, he said would be elimination of cracked sewer lines and downspouts illegally connected to the sewer system. These factors contribute to the tripling of volume to the plant during wet weather, forcing raw sewage to be dumped into the bay.

Morshead appealed to interests other than those in the building and real estate trades to work with the league's long-range goal — elimination of pollution in the bay.

The league has no specific plans to eliminate bay pollution, said chairman Richard Angell, but he did mention several possibilities. Among them:

An education program to make owners of old homes aware that many downspouts illegally connect to the sewer system; a tax against older homes to be used for repair of cracked sewer lines, and the testing of water in creeks flowing into the bay to determine if they add to the pollution problem.

"We'll take your ideas and translate them into action," Angell told the audience of about 20 persons.

Paul Jacobs of the Marin Ecology Center disputed the claim that the building ban is an attempt to solve present pollution. The ban, he said, is aimed solely at preventing further pollution by preventing new construction.

Angell invited Jacobs to join the citizens league, which Angell called an "environmental action group," to change its makeup to one less oriented toward develophrs and builders.

The league set another meeting for July 23 when specific proposals for reducing pollution will be discussed.

King Hussan Assassinated

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Rabat Radio said King Hussan II of Morocco was assassinated today.

The announcement said the king was shot as he was celebrating his 42nd birthday — a national holiday — at his summer seaside palace at Skirat, 12 miles from the capital.

Moroccan soldiers immediately took over control of all public buildings, including the state radio station, and set up roadblocks throughout the city.

The radio twice announced "Long live the republic" and immediately switched to military music.

French Radio announced the King died at 6:15 p.m. (1:15 p.m. EDT)

The palace reception was to celebrate both the King's birthday and the annual youth festival. The gates of the King's palaces at Skirat and in Rabat itself, traditionally opened to the public on the King's birthday, were immediately closed and troops took over key positions in the city.

Marin Workers Win 7.5 Pct. Pay Hike

Three-Year Pact Said Unique At County Level

Members of five bargaining units of the Marin County Employees Association last night overwhelmingly approved a three-year contract calling for a 7.5 per cent pay raise this year and 5 per cent raises in July 1972 and July 1973, plus other increased benefits.

The vote on the contract was 203 in favor and 19 against, according to Frank J. O'Connell, MCEA manager.

He said the three-year pact—proposed by county representatives at the beginning of negotiations this spring — was believed to be unique among California counties.

The contract will be up for approval at the county supervisors' meeting Tuesday, along with separately negotiated contracts for other employee bargaining units, including the sheriff's deputies, nurses and probation workers.

O'Connell said no formal estimate had been made of the total cost of the MCEA contract. During last month's budget sessions, all the expected agreements were provided for in salary accounts approved by the supervisors. They will have no additional impact on the total budget.

Bargaining units approving the contract included the clerical, trades, technical, public services and supervisory workers, representing more than 800 employees in all. O'Connell said today negotiations were continuing for county firemen and midmanagement employees.

In addition to the pay raises, the contract provides that the workers will get time-and-one-half pay for overtime for the first time. In addition, the county's contribution toward employees' health, dental and other insurance programs will increase to $21.19 a month until July 1, 1972, when it will go to $27 a month. It will rise to $30 a month in 1973 and $34 in 1974, O'Connell said.

The contract cannot be reopened during its three-year life except for annual review sessions by the county and MCEA on classifications and salary level comparisons with other government agencies, O'Connell said. Also, at MCEA's request, the county personnel department will review and report in writing on requests for reclassification of specific positions.

Review of the contract and secret balloting lasted two and a half hours last night. Some parliamentary argument erupted after one member moved to cut off discussion and put the contract to an immediate vote, employees reported.

O'Connell said state Department of Industrial Relations experts had told him the proposed contract was inique in the state. O'Connell said the contract should help the supervisors in their annual budgeting by ending uncertainties as to pay demands formerly presented annually by employee groups.

STANLEY H. FRIESE
Move to Alaska

Friese To Top Post In Alaska

Stanley H. Friese, who on Tuesday resigned his post as deputy superintendent of Marin County schools, was appointed yesterday as Alaska's superintendent of state-operated schools.

The appointment, made by Gov. William A. Egan, carries with it a salary of $33,000 per year. Friese, 52, earned $22,523 last year with the county schools office.

As head of state public schools in Alaska, Friese will be managing the largest school district — in land mass — in the country. If stretched over the continental United States, it would reach from California to Florida.

The district is made up of all military and rural schools in the state, with Siberia in sight of one facility. (Large cities such as Juneau and Anchorage have their own organized school districts.)

Under Friese's charge will be 126 schools, 16,000 students, 1,500 teachers and other employees and a budget totaling about $38 million. The district's seven-member governing board includes several Eskimos.

Marinite Nominated For Interior Post

Larson, a 37-year-old Republican, is a partner in the San Francisco law firm of Brobeck, Phleger and Harrison. He has specialized in corporate law.

If his nomination is confirmed by the Senate, Larson will take charge of program policy for the department and advise Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton about major programs, such as the Alaska pipeline and offshore drilling problems.

The job pays $38,000 a year.

Larson, a native of Detroit, Mich., is a 1957 graduate of Stanford University. He served in the Army two years and then returned to earn a law degree at Stanford Law School in 1962.

He has participated in United Bay Area Crusade fund-raising and is a member of the board of directors of the Provident Enterprises Corp., a minority enterprises small business investment company.

He was an unsuccessful candidate in 1970 for a seat on the Ross School District board.

Larson has not been active in politics, he said, and described himself as being named to the post "probably to get the work done."

Trevino Captures British Open Title—A Close Call

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI) —Lee Trevino, squandering a five-stroke lead and taking a disastrous even on the 17th, barely hung on today to win the British Open golf championship with a closing round 70 for 278, one stroke ahead of Liang Huan Lu of Taiwan who had a 70 for a total of 279.

Craig Defoy, also of England although he was born in Pennsylvania, came in with a 69 for a 281 total.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus fired an eagle three on the 18th to post a 69 and a four round total of 283. Also at that level was Masters champion Charles Coody, who shot a 68 today.

Trevino had threatened to blow the course apart, roaring through the first nine in an astonishing 31 to leave Lu five strokes back. But the Chinese 35-year-old Chinese never wavered while Trevino had a pair of bogeys and then took a double bogey seven on the seventeenth to cut his lead to one stroke.

Flournoy Trying To Avoid Cash Crisis

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —State Controller Houston I. Flournoy says he is working with two other state officials to complete arrangements for the sale of tax anticipation notes in time to meet a cash crisis expected in August.

He said work began Friday shortly after the state Supreme Court upheld the validity of selling revenue anticipation notes in an effort to ease the state's fiscal problems.

Emergency Aid Rushed To Chile

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Relief workers rushed emergency provisions today to central Chile, where the country's worst earthquake in six years Thursday night killed and injured hundreds of persons and left about 100,000 homeless.

National police said 81 persons died and 396 required hospital care in 11 cities and villages along the northern end of the fertile Central Valley.

President Salvador Allende said many areas were without food, water and medical help and estimated that 25 to 40 per cent of the housing had been destroyed in the three-province disaster zone.

Allende, who visited the affected areas by helicopter Friday, ordered the immediate start of emergency housing construction and appealed for help from other parts of the nation.

The president went on television wearing the same turtleneck sweater he wore on the helicopter and also announced a special program of direct government aid and credits to ownhrs of damaged homes and business places.

"In Hierro Viejo, Petorca and Salmanaca there is no electricity, there is no water, there is no bread, and other foodstuffs are scarce," Allende said.

"But the populace is taking the catastrophe well, and its sense of confidence is impressive."

In Washington, the Agency for International Development (AID) announced Friday the U.S. government would begin an airlift today of $200,000 in supplies to the disaster area that included 1,000 litres of plasma, 12,000 woolen blankets, 1,500 cots and 600 family-size tents.

Peru, on Chile's northern border, promised two plane-loads of emergency supplies. Argentina, on the eastern side, said it was sending medical help and

Stubblebine New Mental Health Boss

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Dr. James M. Stubblebine, former Marin psychiatrist and school district trustee, took over yesterday as Gov. Ronald Reagan's new state director of mental hygiene.

He was appointed by the governor to succeed Dr. James V. Lowry, who retired from the $32,500-a-year post. Dr. Stubblebine said today he has applied for a leave of absence from his duties as San Francisco's mental health chief, a post which he said paid him practically the same salary.

Stubblebine, a Democrat, said he believed Gov. Reagan picked him for the job "because he wanted someone experienced in the day-to-day operations of a large, complex mental health program such as San Francisco's." The state mental health budget totals nearly $300 million.

The post will offer "not more headaches — they'll be the same kind as San Francisco's but in a different scale," Stubblebine told the Independent-Journal.

It was reported last December that Stubblebine had been critical of Reagan's treatment of the mental health program.

Today, the doctor said he merely had been one participant in a press conference called on Medi-Cal cutbacks, particularly in mental health services to children.

"That's all water over the dam because Medi-Cal is back to pre-cut standards," Stubblebine said today.

"I've also said the present administration has supported the Department of Mental Hygiene with money and approval for the past three years. Both the administration and the Legislature have increased the budget — especially for support of local mental health programs," he said.

"The increase was $23 million this year and $24 million last year," Stubblebine said. "That means very strong support."

Stubblebine, a former Mill Valley resident, said he had lived in San Francisco the past four years, since becoming le-

Israeli Says U.S. Blocks Settlement

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said today the United States was blocking the way to a Middle East peace settlement by acceding to Egyptian demands and withholding the additional warplanes Israel requested last month.

Dayan also said the Soviet Union is interested in extending its influence in the area and hinted the West could use Israel as a base against the Russian thrust.

In Cairo, the semiofficial newspaper Akhbar Al-Yom today published what it said was the details of a U.S. diplomat's plan for reopening of the Suez Canal shut down since the June, 1967, Arab-Israeli war. The news siad Egypt rejected the plan because it did not include Israeli withdrawal from the Arab lands it seized in the war.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Kissinger Delayed

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI)—Henry Kissinger, presidential adviser on national security, has delayed his departure for Paris until Sunday because of what spokesmen called an indisposition, U.S. and foreign office officials said today.

Kissinger, who arrived here Thursday on his round-the-world tour, originally was scheduled to leave today. He now plans to leave Sunday.

Pleads Innocent

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI)—Aubran W. Martin, named by a codefendant as a triggerman in the slayings of labor leader Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski, his wife and daughter, pleaded innocent Friday.

Martin's attorney said he probably would file a motion to have the trial moved out of Washington County.

U.S. - Japan Talks

TOKYO (UPI)—The Defense Ministers of Japan and the United States agreed today to further strengthen cooperation between the two nations.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird called on Japanese Defense Agency Director Gen. Keikichi Masuhara for the first time since he arrived in Japan last Sunday.

Masuhara said following the meeting that he appealed to Laird for "the effective maintenance of U.S.-Japan security arrangements and smooth handling of the Okinawa question after the island's reversion (to Japan)".

Ratifies Site

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Democratic Natinal Committee has formally ratified Miami Beach, Fla., as the site of the party's 1972 nominating convention.

It will be the first Democratic National Convention held in the south since 1928 when Democrats met at Houston to nominate Alfred E. Smith for president.

Agnew In Ethopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethopia (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in Ethopia today to open the African phase of his round-the-world diplomatic mission for President Nixon.

LONDON (UPI)—Frank Sinatra, looking tanned and rested and accompanied by his daughter Tina, turned up in London today.

$34 Million Haul Of Heroin, Cocaine Made

NEW YORK (UPI)—Customs officials and city police seized $34.2 million worth of heroin and cocaine in three unrelated cases within 24 hours and arrested 10 persons, including the son of Panama's ambassador to Nationalist China who tried to evade customs through diplomatic immunity.

The 310 pounds of illicit drugs were accumulated in a raid Thursday night at a luxury apartment in Queens, another raid in Manhattan early Friday and the seizure of $20 million worth of heroin at Kennedy Airport.

The Panamanian ambassador's son, Rafael Richard, 23, of Panama City, allegedly tried to smuggle 175 pounds of pure heroin through customs in five pieces of luggage. Arrested with Richard was Nicholas Polanco, 30, also of Panama City, and a third Panamanian, Guillermo Gonzales, was arrested later in connection with the seizure.

$500,000 Bail

All three were arraigned in Brooklyn Federal Court and held in lieu of $500,000 bail each.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Edward Boyd said Richard tried to evade customs inspection by claiming diplomatic immunity. But, Boyd said, his passport did not have the proper immunity specifications.

A Customs officials said Richard's luggage brought in aboard a Braniff jetliner from Panama "contained no clothing but about 150 pounds of heroin in plastic envelopes and covered with brown wrapping paper." He estimated the street value of the drugs at $20 million.

Earlier Friday, police working with information supplied by an unidentified undercover agent seized 34 pounds of cocaine worth $1.7 million at a Manhattan apartment. Narcotics detectives said the raid was carried out shortly after the drugs arrived in the country from Latin America.

Arrested were Luis Disla, 28, a native of the Dominican Republic, who police said was the contact man for the cocaine purchase, and Luis Perez, 36, also a Dominican, and Gerardo Perez Arana, 43, native of Columbia.

Two Suitcases

Police said Perez and Arana were caught in posession of two suitcases contianing the cocaine shortly after they arrested Disla, who also had a pistol.

Late Thursday, in what was described by police as the second largest heroin seizure in New York history, police raided a luxury five-room apartment in Queens where they seized more than 100 pounds of heroin valued at $12.5 million, along with two-carloads of drug manufacturing and refining equipment.

Los Angeles To Dedicate Center

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A 30-year unit and a $41.8 million tab formed the foundation of the new Los Angeles Convention Center, which will be formally dedicated today in a swirl of speeches and festivities.

Mayor Sam Yorty, Bob Hope and a list of public officials and civic leaders gathered at the enormous center in the downtown area for the first of a four-day "Open House."

The city's convention bureau estimates that the center, for which plans began in the early 1940s, will generate $110 million in new southern California business in the first year.

Optimistic Drug Report Is Attacked

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., has disputed government claims there has been "spectacular success" in halting the flow of heroin into the United States, saying "five kids a day are dying" from overdoses of the drug.

The optimistic report on efforts to stop the drug traffic was given a House subcommittee Friday by Assistant Treasury Secretary Eugene T. Rossides.

Rossides, the man in charge of the federal campaign against imports of illicit drugs, said customs agents seized 906 pounds of heroin during the past two years, more than the entire amount confiscated during the previous 10 years. He said it might be some time before the statistics were reflected in street sales because dealers were drawing on their "inventory" supply. He termed the figures "spectacular."

But Rosenthal quoted figures which showed there were 2,935 deaths attributed to heroin in New York City alone from 1965 to 1969. He said one study projected 6,600 deaths between 1970 and 1974.

"How you can square that with 'spectacular success' I don't know," Rosenthal said. "I don't see how you can say enforcement is successful."

Rossides conceded difficulties remain. However, he insisted progress was being made.

Also challenging Rossides' testimony was Rep. J. Herbert Burke, R-Fla., who contended heroin was being smuggled with relative ease into Florida by boats and small planes.

"I don't think it's been spectacular myself," Burke said. "You have had some spectacular headlines."

A less optimistic note than that of Rossides was struck by Marshall Green, Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs.

Green commented on the recent agreement that is supposed to end the production of opium poppies, from which heroin is derived, in Turkey. It has been estimated 80 per cent of the heroin entering the United States originates in Turkey.

Illicit drug dealers could switch their base of operations from Turkey to Asia, Green testified. If this is done, he said, "much of the expected effect of the Turkish ban on production and increased pressure on European trafficking will be lost."

Reagan Sees Confidence In Nixon

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan is confident California Republicans will give overwhelming support to President Nixon and not Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. in the state's 1972 presidential primary.

McCloskey announced Friday he would challenge Nixon in the California primary and his decision bought swift reaction from Reagan and GOP state chairman Putnam Livermore of San Francisco.

The governor plans to head a delegation committed to Nixon's renomination, against McCloskey in the primary.

"Under the laws of California that is his perogative, if he can gain enough signatures," said Paul Beck, Reagan's press secretary.

"However, the governor is confident that the overwhelming majority of California Republicans will support President Nixon," he said.

Livermore said McCloskey "for many months consistently stated that his election campaign was motivated only by his desire for an end to the Vietnam War. But the timing of his presidential candidacy announcement today suggests the motive might have been presidential ambition rather than eagerness for peace."

McCloskey Plans To Challenge President

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Antiwar congressman Paul M. McCloskey, hoping to draw 18-year-old voters to the Republican party, announced Friday that he'll challenge President Nixon in next year's California primary.

McCloskey said his official entry into the presidential race includes entering the New Hampshire primary and as many other primaries as his campaign funds would allow.

"I would like nothing better than to see the President cut the ground out from all antiwar candidates by ending the war himself," the 43-year-old San Mateo county representative told a news conference.

"But," he added, "I don't think the President and vice president can be re-elected regardless of the war."

McCloskey said if the Vietnam situation should change. He would reconsider his own position, but emphasized that he was basing his campaign on more issues than just ending the war.

The former Marine combat officer first made his announcement in Los Angeles and then flew to San Francisco where he told reporters he hoped "in the next several months to serve as a rallying point" for 18-year-olds now registering to vote. He said Republican candidates would not stand a chance next year "unless they get a substantial number of the new, young voters."

"This will not be a single issue campaign," he announced at his Los Angeles stop.

"We seek in addition to ending the war, to restore truth in government, to achieve a return to the historic Republican moral commitment on social issues, rather than the present 'southern strategy' and a restoration of judicial excellence and independence.

"We seek to end CIA involvement in the internal affairs of other nations and to limit that agency's operations to the field of intelligence gathering."

McCloskey said he respected Nixon "as an individual, but I disagree with his policies, especially the "truth in government issue."

His entry into the primaries will give voters "their first chance to end this war," McCloskey said. "The debate ought to take place inside the Republican party."

Fire Hits Ranch

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—A $270,000 fire swept through a chicken ranch Friday, killing 55,000 baby chicks, according to a report by California Division of Forestry.

San Francisco School Integration Is Ordered

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federal judge has ordered San Francisco to integrate 100 elementary schools by one of two acceptable busing plans by Sept. 8, and the remainder within five years.

U.S. District Judge Stanley A. Weigel Friday told the city's Board of Education to choose either a citizens committee Horseshoe Plan or a Freedom Plan, drafted by the NAACP.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who opposes any busing plan, said the decision should be appealed.

"The school board ought not to be compelled to choose the lesser of two acknowledged evils," he said.

The court order means 47,000 elementary school children will attend racially balanced schools this fall. It is estimated that 25,000 of them will have to be bused from their neighborhood schools, the distance depending on which plan the board adopts.

The Horseshoe Plan, considered most likely to be accepted, sets guidelines that would require the racial mixture of a school to be within 12 per cent of the overall district count. The Freedom Plan would lower this to 5 per cent.

Judge Weigel said that busing "is not a desirable end in itself," but said it is necessary because "excessive racial imbalances cannot be eliminated without transporting some school children."

Highway Policy Aimed At Beach Protection

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A new coastal highway planning policy to stop "unwarranted intrusion" of California's beaches has been announced by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor said under the new policy the state Department of Public Works will permit only minimal freeway construction along the California coast.

Visitors To San Simeon: 600,000

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — More than 600,000 persons visited the Hearst San Simeon State Historical Monument for the second year in a row, according to the state Department of Parks and Recreation. Director William Penn Mott, Jr. said Friday 636,529 visitors saw the monument during the year ending June 30. That was an increase of 2.5 per cent over the previous 12-month period.

The castle, located in the Santa Lucia Mountains of San Luis Obispo County, was built by the late William Randolph Hearst. It served as his family home from 1922 until his death in 1951.

Wax Spills In Plant

MOSS BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Vandels opened a valve at a candle factory and released 7,000 gallons of hot wax which clogged 12 sewers and left a two-inch coating of wax on the plant's floor. The plant manager estimated damage at $3,000.

A Dream Appears Closer And Closer

By FRANK FARRARA

The shapely hull of a schooner stands blocked up on the Sausalito shore, waiting for the seas to break across her bow and winds to fill her sails.

In this era of mass-produced fiberglass boats, Jobin has designed and built a sturdy wooden vessel, a square-rigged brigantine, reminiscent of the romantic sailing days of the past.

He was delayed but not stopped by a gunman's bullet which ripped through his legs 18 months ago, and now the launching of his dream is near.

Jobin set out three years ago to build a boat with character, one that would be different, and he fashioned it from California lumber, white oak for the frame and fir for the planking.

"It is very close to the Bluenose, "the famed Canadian racing vessel," he said.

The 60-foot schooner has been named Moustique, roughly translated from the French as "black fly," the nickname given Jobin's nine-year-old daughter, Judith, in earlier years when she buzzed about like a fly.

"I want to sail it around the world myself," said Jobin, who has spent about 12 years at sea with the Canadian Navy, Coast Guard and merchant marine.

"This has been a dream of mine for a long time; to build a boat and sail around the world."

Jobin, son of a Canadian boat builder and fisherman, hopes to fashion a career for himself as an independent boat designer.

The trip will give others a chance to see his work, and if they like the Moustique, he will build them a fiberglass model, he said.

"But I won't sell this one," he said. The "Moustique" will be home, for Jobin, his wife, Justine, and their daughter.

He believes there is a market for custom designed boats with "character" and that people will want "one that looks different."

For Jobin, the building of the Moustique has been a long task, slowed to a standstill when he was shot in the right knee and left thigh by a beserk gunman in San Francisco in December 1969 and seriously wounded.

He started building the schooner in his backyard at 53 Clayton Street, San Rafael, in the summer of 1968, but later moved it to Sausalito.

Work, well under way when he was shot, was halted until about two months ago.

He said he rigged it as a brigantine because he "intended to go for a long passage and didn't want to play around with the sails."

Although he worked in a shipyard in Quebec, his native city, he has sailed around the world three times, studied naval architecture, and worked as a naval designer of commercial ships, Jobin will finally own a boat of his design when the Moustique is launched.

"I built a similar one, rigged like this, with my father in 1955, a 40-foot schooner," he recalled. It was sold and later burned, he said.

Jobin and his friends have saved up 30 gallons of lamb fat to grease the ramp for the launching of the Moustique north of Building 5 at the Schoonmaker Company property at 7:30 p.m. next Saturday.

The schooner with 1,700 square feet of English-made sails, a Japanese engine and sleeping room for 14 persons, will be launched by Jobin's daughter. "It will be a proper launching, with champagne," said Jobin.

Novatans Named Captains In Boys' Club Campaign

Ten Novatans have been named captains in a special division of the Novato Boys' Club's $100,000 building fund campaign, according to Fred H. Merrill, campaign general chairman.

Each captain will recruit four teams members and the teams will sell "boy Bonds" in amounts starting at $50.

Named captains were Dr. Robert D. Dougherty, chief of staff of Novato General Hospital; Henry Locke, owner of Locke Plumbing Co.; Irving D. (Chip) Chapman, owner of Chapman's Shoes.

Innocent Plea In Heroin Case

Dennis Lee Hovde, 22, and Nalla Hovde, 27, both of Corte Madera, have pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possessing and selling heroin.

A preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

They were arrested at their residence at the Meadowsweet Motel last Thursday by Marin drug agents who had obtained a warrant accusing Miss Hovde, who is also known as Judith Samuelson, of selling heroin to agents three times, and Hovde with selling it once, during the last month.

Trial Of Bennett On First Charge Postponed

Trial of State Board of Equalization member William O. Bennett on a drunk in public charge was postponed yesterday to allow his attorney to seek a change of venue.

The trial had been set to begin Thursday.

The attorney, William O. Weissich, contends that Bennett, 52, cannot get a fair trial in Marin County because of publicity from his trial last month on a drunken driving charge.

In that case, a Marin Municipal Court jury's guilty verdict was thrown out by Judge Robert A. Smallman, who then dismissed the case.

The drunken driving charge stemmed from Bennett's arrest in Sausalito April 25. The drunk in public charge is in connection with his arrest March 4, also in Sausalito.

Bennett is to return to court Aug. 12.

4 Months In Jail Given For Pot

Richard W. Golden, 22, of San Rafael, was sentenced yesterday to four months in Marin County Jail for possessing marijuana.

Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court also placed him on probation for one year.

Golden was arrested Feb. 9 after a search of his apartment revealed a six-pound cache of marijuana, according to sheriff's deputies.

Black Point Split On Pleasure Faire

Black Point Improvement Association members split last night over the idea of having the 1971 Renaissance Pleasure Faire in their backyard.

Fair director Phyllis Patterson explained to the group that she plans to lease part of the old Sartori Ranch — which now is within Novato city limits — for the cultural and crafts fair which has attracted thousands of visitors each of the last four years in Santa Venetia.

She plans to hold the fair in the Black Point area only this year, Mrs. Patterson said. She reported she is negotiating to purchase up to 1,000 acres in the Lucas Valley area for a permnanent center for Elizabethan era crafts and a theater and museum.

Mrs. Patterson explained that a quirk of the law regarding public access made the owners of the Santa Venetia property reluctant to have the fair there a fifth year in a row. Recent court rulings have held that if the public is given access to recreation areas over private property for five years, the public access right may become permanent, she said.

Black Point residents' views ranged from support of the cultural event as a major Marin County attraction to fears that fairgoers would trespass, use narcotics and clog Highway 37 with traffic.

Mrs. Patterson explained that she stations security guards every 50 feet around the perimeter of the grounds, controls traffic with local police and highway patrolmen and forbids any uses of electricity — including amplified music — from her recreations of the "days of Good Queen Bess."

In a secret ballot, the Black Point group voted 19 to 16 against endorsing the fair, planned for four weekends in September and one in October.

Actual decision on whether the fair will be held on the Sartori Ranch is up to the landowner, John Kenney of Alameda Homes Co., and Novato city officials.

The Black Point homeowners last night also installed new officers and appointed a committee to review the proposed county septic tank ordinance due for hearing by the board of supervisors Aug. 24.

Marathon Fails To End City Strike

Representatives of Mill Valley's striking municipal employees and the city met last night in a marathon bargaining session which continued until dawn, with apparently no agreement reached.

The parties resumed talks at 10:30 a.m. today after meeting from 7:30 p.m. last night until nearly 6 a.m., according to Mrs. Dwight W. McCoy, wife of the president of the Mill Valley Employees Association, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Thirty-nine city employees, excluding police and firemen, walked off their jobs July 1, charging the city with making no serious attempt to bargain with them.

Marin Judges To Conference

Three Marin County judges will attend the fifth annual California College of Trial Judges, starting tomorrow, at Boalt Hall at the University of California in Berkeley.

Those scheduled to attend are Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick and Municipal Court Judges David Menary Jr. and Robert A. Smallman.

The two week course will deal with criminal proceedings, evidence, civil trials, judicial ethics, new developments in the law and for the first time this year, courtroom security, appellate problems and negotiated pleas.

Funeral In Ireland Draws 1,000

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (UPI)—More than 1,000 persons marched in the Roman Catholic Bogside district today at the funeral of Seamus Cusak, 26, shot and killed by British troops in a Londonderry riot.

About 500 persons packed into St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church for services for Cusak. Hundreds of others lined streets outside and marched to the city cemetery where women wept as Cusack's coffin was lowered into the grave.

There were no incidents at the first of the two funerals for Roman Catholics killed in street fighting Thursday, army spokesman said. But afterward a crowd of about 70 youths gathered and began stoning a combined police and army post at Bligh's Lane near the cemetery.

For the sixth consecutive night Londonderry did not sleep. Children roamed the streets hurling stones at soldiers, youths whooped and shouted as they hijacked trucks and the glint of gun barrels could be seen in the alleys.

Shots rang out intermittently after midnight, bringing fearful men and women outdoors in their dressing gowns. Some joined youths in building barricades out of paving stones to seal off the Bogside, a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry.

"The shooting is quite indiscriminate," said an army spokesman. "We don't know how many weapons there are and we don't know where the firing is coming from."

Youths armed with rocks and gasoline bombs surrounded St. Mary's Catholic Church where the body of Seamus Cusack, 26, lay in state. Cusack and George Beatie, 19, shot by British soldiers during rioting Thursday, were to be buried with ceremonial honors today.

CHILE

Premier Fidel Castro ordered a Cuban relief flight.

The quake was the worst since March 28, 1968, when 300 persons were killed by a temblor also centered in the northern end of the Central Valley. It began at 11:05 p.m. in Santiago and shook the city for 75 seconds, causing panic throughout the capital. Police attributed many of the deaths and injuries to panic and the confusion of people trying to find safety when the power lines went down and blacked out the city.

The quake was felt from Arica, on the Peruvian border, to Temuco, 1,400 miles to the south, and was followed by 14 aftershocks into the dawn Friday.

At Illapel, the presumed epicenter, it registered 10 on the 12-point Mercali scale. Seismologists said this was equivalent to 7.7 on the Richter scale, which read 6.5 in Los Angeles on Feb. 9 during the quake that killed 65 Californians.

Three persons were killed in Illapel, and an estimated 80 per cent of the structures were damaged extensively. In Llay-Llay, police said 90 per cent of the buildings were ruined.

In the port of Valparaiso, 25 died and the city of 300,000 was blacked out in parts and without sufficient water. Eight were killed in nearby Vina Del Mar, 11 in Santiago and five in San Felipe.

Missiles Fired At U.S. Jet

SAIGON (UPI)—The North Vietnamese fired three missiles at a U.S. Air Force reconnaissance jet flying over their territory Saturday, but the plane was not hit, an Air Force spokesman said today.

U.S. military sources also said today Viet Cong batteries attacked an American helicopter in the Central Highlands of South Vietnam in what they said was the first Communist-initiated incident involving American forces in Vietnam in nearly five days.

The sources said Communist military activity had dropped during the past few days to its lowest level in the war in nearly two years. They said there normally is a lull in ground action during the summer months, followed by a Communist offensive in late August and early September.

The Air Force spokesman said the reconnaissance jet came under fire over Dong Hoi, on the Gulf of Tonkin coast about 50 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating South and North Vietnam.

He said the plane's fighter-bomber escorts did not retaliate against the North Vietnamese rocket positions, a customary procedure under the U.S. "protective reaction" policy. He said, however, the policy has not been abandoned.

The spokesman declined to speculate whether a follow-up strike would be made, but said the last time missiles were fired at an American plane, on May 16, U.S. jets attacked the missile sites during the next two days.

Carpenter Talks Are Stalemated

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Negotiations in the two-week-old carpenters strike, which now has idled close to 100,000 workers in Northern California, were termed at a "complete stalemate" yesterday by the chief union negotiator.

Al Figone, negotiator for the Carpenters' Union, said picketing will continue Monday at about 200 construction sties where work has been halted since the walkout began.

Although previous statements by the Associated General Contractors, management representative, had indicated negotiations were hung up on pay, both sides yesterday said the disagreement centered on fringe benefits.

No further negotiations are scheduled until Wednesday.

Contracts between carpenters and the AGC and the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association expired June 15. About one week later, carpenters started declining to report for work.

In Marin, Corte Madera Creek flood control work and construction of a major sewage treatment plant in San Rafael have been halted by the dispute.

Stubblebine was a trustee of the Tamalpais High School District from 1961-66, and was director of psychiatric services at Ross General Hospital before becoming mental health chief in San Francisco six years ago. He will be 51 tomorrow.

Stubblebine was born in Minneapolis, and received his bachelor's and M.D. degrees from the University of Oregon. He was a naval pilot during World War II.

OBITUARIES

FRANCIS GRAVELINE

Francis Graveline, 56-year-old former Santa Rosa school custodian, died yesterday of a self-inflicted gunshot wound at a ranch near Chileno Valley where he had been staying, according to Deputy Marin Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Graveline was discovered in a house trailer on the ranch at 12:30 p.m. with a head wound from a .22-caliber rifle, Thomas said.

Graveline reportedly had been despondent since the death of his wife last November, Thomas said.

Graveline, a former Santa Rosan, had been a custodian for the Santa Rosa School District until he became ill, and had been staying with a daughter at the Spaletta ranch at 6701 Road about a month.

EVA E. QUICK

Eva E. Quick, 80, a 29-year resident of Marin, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Quick, of 134 Auburn Street, San Rafael, was the widow of Edward F. Quick, a San Joaquin Valley farmer. She was a native of California and a member of the San Rafael Goldenaires, a senior citizen club.

Surviving are four daughters, Marian L. Miller of Tracy, Maxine L. Fiaccadori of Kentfield and Beverly J. Thompson and Marjorie E. MacNaughton of San Rafael; a son, Louis E. Quick of Castro Valley; five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 11 a.m. Monday at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. The family prefers memorial contributions be to the American Cancer Society.

ALAN GOLDMAN

Alan Gilbert Goldman, 42, of 9 Hazel Court, San Rafael, was discovered dead yesterday on a wooded hill near his home after taking an overdose of barbiturates, according to Deputy Marin Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Goldman, claims manager for the Club Corp. in Oakland, had been dead about 24 hours when his body was discovered by two youths at 4:20 p.m., Thomas said.

MRS. ELLIOTT

Mrs. Elliott, wife of James D. Elliott, was admitted to the hospital at 3:10 p.m. and pronounced dead at 3:30 p.m., reported Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Mrs. Elliott was on a ladder to the above-ground pool when she either fell or collapsed and landed on her face, Thomas said.

Death apparently resulted from a head injury, but an autopsy is pending. Funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Jail Terms In Burglary Case

Two Sausalito men were sentenced yesterday in Marin Superior Court for burglarizing a Sausalito store in February.

Arthur Charles Sidebotham, 33, was sentenced to nine months in Marin County Jail and Ronald Jackson Hall, 38, was given 10 months in jail.

Judge Henry J. Broderick also placed the pair on probation for two years.

They were arrested inside Granny's Clothing Store Feb. 14.

Sanity Hearing In Murder Set

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A sanity hearing was set Thursday for July 22 in Alameda County Superior Court for Christopher Cowsar, 21, accused in the April 30 stabbing death of an Air Force Recruiter from Novato.

Two psychiatrists have been appointed to report on Cowsar's mental condition.

Cowsar is charged with attacking S/Sgt. Rogers S. Mobley, 32, at a Berkeley recruiting office. Witnesses said Cowsar shouted that Mobley had to die because he was "sending people to Vietnam."

Water Transit Manager Hired By Span Board

Stanley M. Kowleski of San Rafael, northern California regional manager of Matson Terminals, yesterday was hired as the Golden Gate Bridge District's first water transit manager.

Kowleski, 44, was selected from among almost 50 applicants from throughout the nation for the $26,500-a-year job. His hiring was announced after a half-hour closed meeting by district directors.

He will supervise planning and operations for the district's expanded ferry system, scheduled to grow from the single vessel now operating between Sausalito and San Francisco to a fleet of five serving Larkspur as well by early 1973.

Kowleski has worked for Matson since 1954, and had held his current position since for the past five years. He formerly was a merchant marine officer with Grace Lines in New York.

STANLEY M. KOWLESKI
New ferry manager

In his current position, he runs seven terminals in the Bay Area handling 900 ships a year.

Kowleski will assume his new job by the end of this month.

He received a bachelor's degree from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., in 1947. He later attended the University of California, receiving a bachelor of science degree in 1954.

Married and the father of two children, he has lived in San Rafael for the past 10 years. He resides at 81 Dominican Drive.

15 Riders Don't Equal One Bus

Golden Gate Bridge District directors, launching their own version of a telephone booth stuffing contest, yesterday agreed to allow up to 15 persons in a vehicle before charging it as a bus.

The limit was upped from nine persons after Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring reported an unhappy letter from a patron who objected to being charged the $2 bus fare because he had more than nine persons in his vehicle.

What hurt, was that all were members of his family.

So even the smallest car, if it has no more than 15 persons including the driver, now can get through the toll gate for 50 cents.

Luehring, proposing the change, said the previous limit of nine persons "seems to be in contradiction of our efforts to get more people into vehicles and thus have fewer vehicles on the highway."

Interim $23 Million Budget Is Approved

Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday unanimously adopted an interim $23 million budget without discussion.

The figure was almost twice the district's anticipated income for the new fiscal year, but no mention was made before the full board of any figures whatsoever. District reserves will more than cover the budget, heavily laden with initial expenses of a bus and ferry system.

The budget, reported in detail yesterday by the Independent-Journal, was presented for the first time Thursday afternoon to the finance-auditing committee. The committee, after hearing the staff present the budget, voted to leave it in committee pending salary and wage negotiations.

The committee did not discuss the budget in any detail, but yesterday reversed itself and recommended it be adopted by the full board "subject to readjustment" with new pay scales.

Board President Lowell Edington of Napa County, acknowledging that a budget was not required by law, insisted that failure to have one would damage the district's public relations.

Last fiscal year's $4.2 million budget was drawn before the district got into the transit bus-in operations.

The new budget included $12.1 million for the bus system, $4.4 million for repairs and improvements to the span, $4.4 million for general operations and maintenance, $1.9 million for the ferry system, and $112,000 for long-range transit planning.

Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also:

BUSES — Asked for a $1.1 million grant to purchase 20 smogless buses from the Flxible Bus Co. of Ohio.

HOVERCRAFT — Voted to test two high-speed ferries between North Sausalito and San Francisco if the Pentagon approves their import from England for the six-month test.

PROMOTION — Contracted with the district's public relations consultants, Arnold and Palmer and Noble of San Francisco, for an $87,500 campaign to promote the bus and ferry system during the new fiscal year.

POWERHOUSE — Contracted with the firm of Mazzetti and Parish to design, supervise and inspect improvements to the powerhouse, their fee for the $190,000 project not to exceed $10,800.

SAUSALITO — Invited the Sausalito firm of Environmental Planning and Design associates to submit a proposal for doing a general plan for the district's ferry terminal in North and downtown Sausalito.

RADIOS — Invited Watson Communications Systems Inc. to submit a proposal for design and installation of a two-way radio system in the bus fleet.

SAN RAFAEL — Contracted with the San Francisco engineering firm of Sverdrup and Parcel and Associates for initial design of the bus maintenance facility at San Rafael for $56,000.

RAMP — Accepted a quotation from the firm of D. W. Nicholson for a six by 50-foot ramp for the San Francisco ferry landing for $4,295.

SPAIN — Referred back to committee a proposal to send four district officials to the annual convention of the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association in Barcelona in October. The proposal failed, 7-2, three short of the 10 votes needed.

LEGISLATION — Received report that legislation leaving the district free to operate charter ferry operations had cleared the Assembly Transportation Committee Thursday. The bill, AB 919, was by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco.

BONDS — Purchased 100 metal frames, at a cost of $950, to display canceled district bonds used as public relations gifts.

FERRY — Received report that the Sausalito ferry had made 3,848 trips since Jan. 1 and missed only one round trip due to a leaking fuel line. Other repairs were made at night.

BUSES — Received report that the district's ferry feeder buses had made 5,526 runs since Jan. 1 with no cancellations.

'PUBLIC RIDICULE'

Magee's Attorney Says Judge 'Impaired' Capacity To Serve

By MARY LEYDECKER

SAN FRANCISCO — The court-appointed attorney for Ruchell Magee said yesterday that remarks made in court by a federal judge about him "greatly impaired my capacity to serve..."

Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles, the tall, courtly lawyer who is representing Magee against the convict's wishes, said after court he is considering resigning.

"He held me up to public ridicule," Graves said in reference to statements of Judge Samuel Conti of U.S. District Court.

He was referring to a verbal exchange that came yesterday when the judge wanted Graves to represent Magee in the federal court appearance.

Graves first said that he was not representing Magee in federal court, and the judge remarked that "you must represent Mr. Magee; you sent a bill to the County of Marin for $8,855."

Graves insisted he did not want to become involved in Magee's attempts to get the case transferred to federal court, saying he was an "ignoramus" about that branch of law.

"If you can't explain to Mr. Magee what is going on in court today, you'd better take another look at that bill," the judge said, ordering Graves to take the appointment.

In yesterday's court action, Judge Conti turned down Angela Davis's bid to have the case transferred to federal court and also refused to disqualify himself as prejudiced.

He also said he considered Magee's repeated petitions to federal court a "legal abuse of the process of the courts" and added that Miss Davis seemed to have joined him in attempts "to delay state court proceedings."

Miss Davis's attorneys said after court they will appeal Conti's decisions.

Magee and Miss Davis are charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the shoot-out last August at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others were killed.

Pretrial hearings in their case have been set to resume at 9:15 a.m. July 19 in the Marin Hall of Justice.

Rare Sculptures Stolen From Brundage Gallery

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Three rare sculptures, including a pair of 7th century S. D. Chinese statues, have been stolen from the Avery Brundage collection being exhibited in Golden Gate Park.

Police said Friday thieves entered the center of Asian art and culture by forcing a locked iron gate open during the night. night.

The value of the art objects was not disclosed, but center director Yvone D'Argence who lives in Mill Valley, said a $500 reward was offered for the return of each object.

Stolen were two Chinese monster-like figures weighing 40 to 50 pounds each and an 18th-19th century A.D. kneeling attendant female figure from Burma.

ONE VIETNAM MOTHER

In Her 47 Years, She's Only Known Ravages Of War

By STEWART KELLERMAN

SAIGON (UPI)—The sun peeks in through a crack in the wooden shack, waking Tran Thi Lanh from another restless night's sleep. She rubs her eyes and nudges her two daughters sleeping beside her on the hard slat bed.

Lanh dresses in wrinkled black pajama bottoms and soiled white peasant shirt. She lights a pile of wood scraps in the middle of the dirt floor and puts a smoke-black pot filled with water into the flames.

She can see herself reflected in the water, deep zigzagging wrinkles making her sun-browned face look like a badly plowed field. She remembers the farm where she was born, the mangos once grown there, and all the troubles she's seen since.

Lanh isn't a soldier, but she's seen more of war than most fighting men. She can't remember a day without fear since she was born 47 years ago. And she doesn't expect to have one before she dies.

The story of Tran Thi Lanh is the story of millions of Vietnamese uprooted from their ancestral homes by war and forced to fend for themselves in crowded refugee camps and dirty streets. Most don't give a damn about politics. They've been shot at by Communists and shot at by government troops. All they really want is to live in peace.

The U.S.-run War Victims Directorate says 3.5 million refugees have been forced from their homes since 1965, most when caught in the fighting, the rest as a result of Allied relocation programs. Another 3.5 million civilians have had their homes damaged or lost breadwinners in the war.

The Directorate says 925,000 of the refugees have returned home with the help of U.S. money and supplies, 880,000 are in refugee camps, and the rest are just making do as best they can.

At 47 she looks old enough to be her own mother. Her once black hair is grey and her bony body is covered by rough dry skin.

"I don't know why there's always fighting in Vietnam," she said through an interpreter. "I wonder but I don't know why. I'm not very smart and maybe that's why I don't understand."

She was born on her family's small farm outside Sa Dec, a city of pale pink cinder blocks homes 75 miles southwest of Saigon.

"ALL I'VE EVER known is fighting," she said in a soft resigned voice. "There was fighting when I was a child and there was fighting when I grew up. I never saw any peace."

When she was a child, nationalists were fighting the French in her district. Later, as a young woman, the Viet Minh were battling the French rulers. By the time she was a widow with two daughters, the Viet Cong were up in arms against the South Vietnamese government. When her brother was drafted into the Saigon army, the North Vietnamese were fighting alongside the Viet Cong and the Americans alongside the South Vietnamese.

"Whenever I looked up there was fighting," she said, staring into her lap and trying to smooth out the wrinkles in her pajama bottoms. "There were years when there was fighting every day. There was trouble as far back as I can remember."

LANH'S FAMILY just barely scraped out a living on their one-acre farm. "We didn't have much to eat," she said. "We were always hungry."

She married Le Hong Chi, the son of a nearby farmer, in 1951. She was 27 and he was 28. "Life was very hard for us, but we were happy," she recalled. "Things are always a little better when you have someone to share your problems.

"We lived at home with my parents. We had two daughters. There was still a lot of fighting but we tried not to think about it."

Her husband was forced into the French army in 1954. He was killed a few months later, just before the French surrendered at Dien Bien Phu.

Trouble never stopped in the Sa Dec area. It was a hotbed of Viet Cong activity in the 1960s. Lanh said the people were evenly divided, half supporting the Communists and half backing the Saigon government. She said she supported the government.

"THE COMMUNISTS would come in and ask for help," she said. "If we refused they'd burn our homes. But if we helped, the Americans or the government would bomb us. There was no way out. No matter what we did we were in trouble."

Her brother, Thanh, was drafted into the South Vietnamese army in 1966 and he's still a soldier. Several close friends of her family went to fight for the Viet Cong about the same time.

In 1967, Lanh decided she'd had enough. The fighting near her farm had worsened and her family was caught in the middle. She moved with her daughters to the home of relatives just outside Saigon.

"We figured we'd be safe there," she said. "We got settled and things seemed better again. It looked as though everything might turn out okay. then, two months later, we had trouble again, the Tet fighting. Our new home was burned down and we were almost killed."

She couldn't return to Sa Dec because her old home --taken over by the Viet Cong during the 1968 Tet lunar new year offensive—was destroyed by government troops in ensuing fighting.

SO SHE MOVED with her daughters into a refugee camp in Saigon's Cholon District. She's been there ever since, living in a one-room shack without toilet facilities, running water or lights.

Her home is made of unpainted wooden boards. Refugees dump dirty water, garbage and human refuse into a ditch in front.

Stench from the ditch fills every corner of the shack.

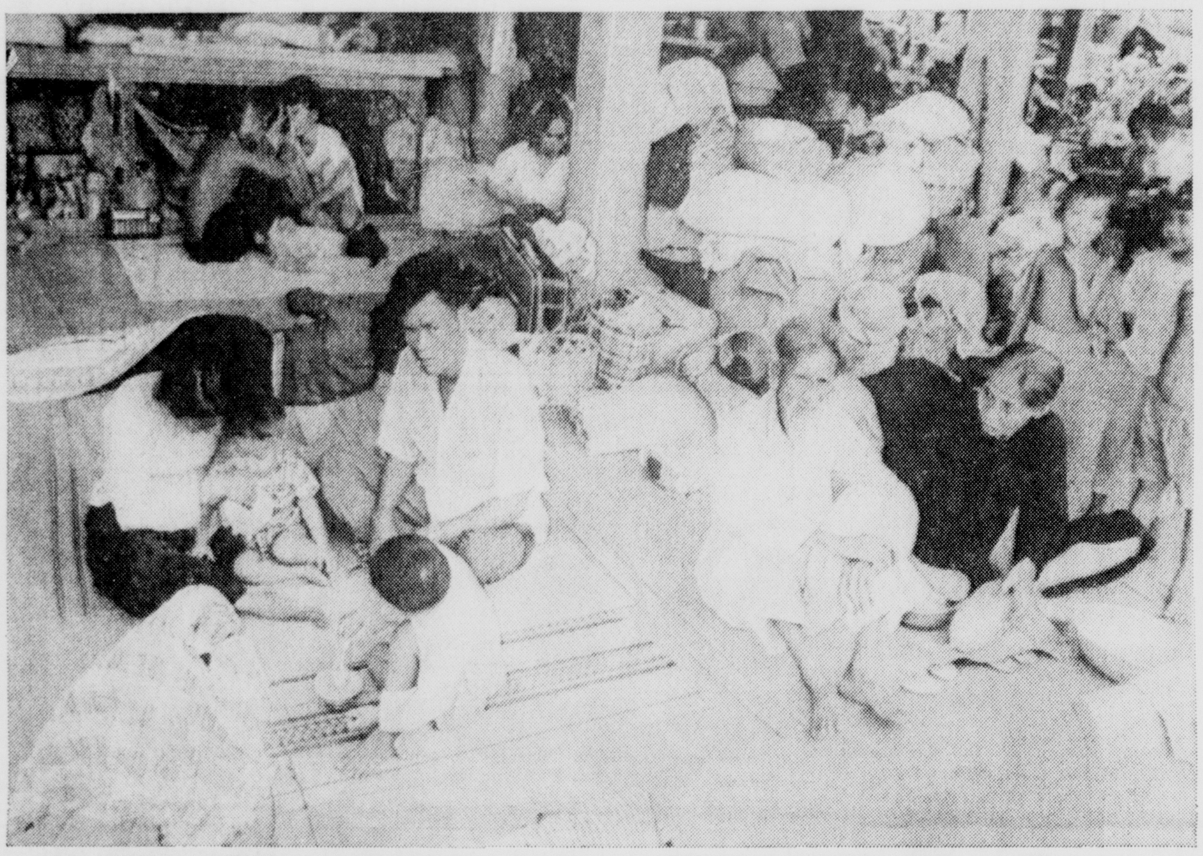
"It's not really so bad here," Lanh said. "Actually, I'm living better than before. But this really isn't my home. It's only where I live."

She sold cigarettes and candy on the streets of Saigon until recently when she quit because of cataracts in her eyes. Her oldest daughter, Ly, 19, now supports the family on 10,000 piasters ($36) in monthly earnings as a seamstress.

"WE'VE GOT enough money for food now," Lanh said. "Things are a little better. But I'm still afraid. I don't think that will ever change."

She sat in a simple wooden chair and clutched her knees with bony hands. She called her daughters near and put her arms around their waists. She leaned her head against Ly.

"I'm very tired," she said. "Very very tired."



MILLIONS OF Vietnamese families have been uprooted from their ancestral homes by the Vietnam war and must fend for themselves in refugee camps and dirty streets. Most don't care about politics, having been shot at by both communist and allied troops, and say they just want to live in peace. Here refugee families sleep on the floor in a Buddhist temple in the Cholon section of Saigon.

MEN'S FASHIONS

White Shirts Now Proper — Few 'Ifs'

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — It is proper to wear a white shirt again these days but only if it is not plain white and if the collar points are not less than three inches long. It is not proper any more to wear a neck scarf with a shirt worn open at the neck, and if you do wear such a shirt the collar points should be worn outside the jacket.

These were a few random observations by Karl Dallas one of London's top fashion editors, a witty and urbane gentlemen who writes in Tailor and Cutter. Dallas has been known to criticize the royal raiment of Prince Charles, and he once added Mao Tse-tung to a list of men who might possibly make a best dressed list.

More recently in the pages of Tailor and Cutter he has been pondering over the lack of male elegance in a society where some people think there are no standards at all. He launched his own fashion movement for People who Realize there Ought to be Points by which Elegance can be Recognized, or Proper, as he has chosen to call it.

Dallas has compiled a long list of what is and what is not proper.

It is not proper to wear pendants around the neck for example, and almost all jewelry except cuff links. Very soon, certain kinds of tie pin will become proper, but not quite yet.

THERE IS something curiously old fashioned about the use of the word "proper" in this day and age, so we rung in Robert L. Green, who as fashion director for Playboy Magazine, has become known as one of the great pooh-bahs of men's fashion, as witty and urbane, of course, as Dallas.

"The sense of strong ritualism in men's apparel has vanished," Green said. "Still, there is something strangely dated about the use of the word 'proper,' and then, too, I think rules are essentially for the insecure.

"People are developing a sense of pleasure towards fashion and living, and there is a revolution in attitude towards the roles people play, the status of women, for example, more liberal views on homosexuality, the changed status of varriage.

"It is strangely dated, reading a piece about what is proper and what isn't. It's behavior, really, that counts, the acceptability as determined by a group, and we are all members of many groups. What would be outre at a board meeting might be delicious at a rock concert.

"I HAVE the feeling that what is proper is determined by one's peer group and not by fashion authorities. If you belong to a suburban country club you quickly find out what will go. There are standards but they are related to one's peer group, and of course, the situation.

"Relaxed Greenwich Village fashion is quite valid, but it is endlessly different from Westhampton WASP, and each has a lively time rejecting the other. What is proper is really the group, the time, the place."

Myopia Poses Threat To Young Children

By FRED J. COOK
(First of a two-part series)

NEW YORK — A father in Bethesda, Md., was desperate. His 9-year-old son had degenerative myopia. The boy's eyesight was failing so fast that blindness threatened. "As I am sure you know," the father wrote, "almost all opthalmologists will tell the anxious parent, 'there is nothing you can do about it."

The case of the Bethesda boy is not unique. There are an estimated one million children in America with similar problems. Myopia, commonly known as near-sightedness, is not a simple ailment. In its degenerative form, eyesight steadily fails, and — despite corrective, milk-bottle-thick lenses — the objects the myope perceives become increasingly blurred and dim.

AN ESTIMATED one-third of the American public — some 68 million persons — suffer from near-sightedness, and about 3 per cent of these have high, or degenerative, myopia. Yet little is known about myopia; no adequate research has been done in the United States, according to Myopia International Research Foundation. Inc.

If your child has myopia, should he be allowed to watch television? If so, how much? There are no scientific guidelines. Some doctors restrict TV watching; others think it makes little difference.

And what about school work? Should a child with myopia read much or little? Most doctors agree reading should be done only under the best lighting conditions, but many hold that the amount of reading doesn't matter much. Foreign researchers are more cautious, believing that excessive close work increases the danger of further damage to the eyes.

Such was the jungle of uncertainty into which the Bethesda father stumbled when his son's eyes began to fail. An intelligent man, having had eye problems of his own in his youth, he went to the National Library of Medicine in Bethesda and read up on myopia.

HIS LAYMAN'S mind was impressed by reports of a treatment used by Dr. Seymour Gostin, of Dallas, Tex. Dr. Gostin treated eyes with drops of a drug, scopolamine, used in conjunction with bifocals. But when the father called the attention of opthalmologists in the Washington area to Dr. Gostin's work, "most of them have proved too busy even to discuss it, and the few with whom I have discussed it have agreed in voting a lack of confidence in this or any other drug therapy."

It was at this point, on Feb. 15, 1969, that the father wrote the Myopia International Research Foundation in New York asking for help. Were research reports available that might be used to convince his skeptical doctor?

There were such reports, and they were available through the work of Mrs. Sylvia N. Rachlin, a social service expert who herself had fought a life-long battle with myopia and who had founded and still heads the Myopia Foundation. In Mrs. Rachlin's files was a report by Dr. Robert H. Bedrossian, of Vancouver, Washington, a pioneer in drug treatment.

Dr. Bedrossian had selected 42 of his young patients whose eyes were failing at an abnormal rate; he had treated them with atropine; and he had contrasted the results with a control group that had started out with slightly better eyesight. And he had found that "there was an actual decrease in myopia in many of the eyes treated with atropine while in almost every control eye there was an increase . . . "

MRS. RACHLIN sent Dr. Bedrossian's research paper and other reports to the specialist designated by the worried Bethesda father. Less than a year later, on Jan. 23, 1970, the father wrote that "the results have been spectacular." Not only had scopolamine halted the galloping deterioration of his

Novatan Is Sworn Into Wac Reserve

Kathleen L. Herrington of Novato was sworn into the Army Thursday and is leaving tomorrow for eight weeks of basic training at the WAC Training Center at Fort McClellan, Ala.

She is the first woman in the Bay Area to enlist in the Army Reserve who has not had active duty experience.

Kathleen, 23, was graduated from high school in Texas. She is a student at San Francisco State College, where she is a drama major. Her parents are Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Rupert C. Herrington of Novato.

According to Maj. Sue Sylvester, a member of the Reserve Unit at the Presidio of San Francisco, Kathleen enlisted in the reserves because she is interested in gaining knowledge of the military as she is contemplating active duty in the military when she completes college.

"This way she will get to know what the military is like while only making a commitment to complete basic training and serve one weekend a month and 15 days during the summer for three years," explains Major Sylvester.

Abortion Law Repeal Backed

The American Home Economics Association passed a resolution in favor of repealing laws restricting or prohibiting abortions if performed by a licensed physician.

The action on abortion, taken at the annual convention in Denver, stated that "a responsible position concerning abortion should be based on the rights of the individual woman, her family and society."

The home economists also passed resolutions urging more interest in serving the aging, improving public housing, providing equality to minority groups and improving the status of women.

Biafra Mothers Welcome The New Health Centers

ENUGU, Nigeria (UPI) — Today, mothers and children are lining up again in long queues at the health centers, which have reopened in Nigeria's eastern region of Biafra.

Wide-eyed and respectfully silent, they wait patiently in the freshly painted reception rooms for the varied services now available once again.

Expectant mothers wait for a pre-natal check-up. Some have brought their children for vaccination or for the treatment of some ailment. Others are there to pick up medical supplies or waiting to discuss some health problem with the nurse, public health worker or the doctor, if necessary.

IN CONSULTATION with World Health Organization, UNICEF is reequipping training schools for auxiliary health workers as a first step to help revive the rural health centers and effect the normalization of basic health services since the civil war which ended in January, 1970. UNICEF began by providing equipment and supplies for 12 hospitals, 25 rural health centers, 200 dispensaries and maternity units as well as supplying essential bulk drugs: chloroquin, multi-vitamins, trisulphate ointment, etc., without which a health service cannot function. Provisions were also made for more than 80 vehicles, ranging from large trucks to smaller units, such as Landrovers, Volkswagen ambulances and even outboard engines for river boats in the delta areas.

No further UNICEF aid is required for emergency feeding. Provision has been made for the distribution of the weaning food PKFM — a pre-cooked protein-enriched cereal flour, which was developed with UNICEF's aid. It will be made available to undernourished and malnourished children through maternal and child health clinics.

BUT KWASHIORKOR, the protein-deficiency disease that menaced the lives of millions of Nigerian children during the war, appears to have been eliminated as a major problem in the eastern region. Although there is a continuing protein shortage, Nigerians are being urged to eat more fish to improve the protein content of their diet, which is usually based on yams, cassava and other starhy foods.

HELEN HELP US!

Some Suggestions For That Summer Job — Rewarding, Too

DEAR HELEN:

Here's a suggestion for teenagers who don't have jobs: Many elderly people or shut-ins need help with shopping and other errands. Also with chores and gardening — possibly even walking the dog.

Put a sign in your nearest grocery store (supermarkets usually have a shoppers' bulletin board) and at the closest church. You could work out a schedule so you could shop for several people at once and you'd be helping them as well as yourselves. — B.W.

DEAR HELEN:

I am 19, in love with a 45-year-old married man. He has five nice children. In fact, I met him first when I was dating his 19-year-old son. Things just happened from there.

He wants to get a divorce and marry me. I know I'd make a good wife and mother, even though young. My parents say he is a good-for-nothing bum and tell me he has several illegitimate children, but I don't believe them. They even produced a young girl he'd had an affair with. What does that prove, except that she wasn't good enough for him?

Whom should I believe, my parents or my heart? — IN LOVE

DEAR IN LOVE:

Believe your parents! Your heart evidently makes you deaf, dumb, blind, gullible and greedy. Which makes you ripe for plucking. — — H.

DEAR HELEN:

It's too late for Father's Day, but then it's too late for my father, except as a memory. he died a year ago when I was 13.

I'd like to tell everybody about him. Maybe this will remind kids that they should tell their parents NOW that they appreciate them. I'm only glad Dad knew how much we loved him.

Most people who knew my father thought of him as an all-busines man. But he was quite different from that.

My Dad was the kind that wrote poems saying, "If you don't get well, I'll sue the hospit-ell!" No matter how busy he was, he always had time for you.

He would ride horses, take you along on business trips and get you ice cream. He'd go swimming late at night if you dared him to.

He was the kind that would take us kids to court so we could know what happens in a courtroom, and he'd explain all about it because he was a lawyer, you see.

He understood everything we talked about — or at least acted like it, and listened. He did his best — and it was really the best.

We miss him! — DAUGHTER OF A REMEMBERED DAD

Several Ways To Finish The Matched Collar Outfit

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE:

Since I intend to think about my fall wardrobe now, inspired by all the fashion releases, I intend making some garments with notched collars. I have never known just exactly how the top stitching for decorative purposes, or the edge binding should be finished at the point where the lapel joins the top collar. Please illustrate this difficult construction point and show us several variations?

MRS. T. W.

DEAR MRS. T. W.:

This is a timely question. Please save the answer and file it away for easy reference when you are ready for the final details of adding just the right touch to your completed jacket, coat or dress.

When you are using a fold over braid or making your own binding from satin, knit or whatever (incidentally, any binding you make yourself, instead of using the fold over braid, must be cut on the bias), you do not continue from the collar, and try to go around the place where the collar and lapel meet. End your binding by turning over a small edge, and hand finishing. Then begin again, by turning over an edge of the binding and continue around the rest of your garment. Where the two pieces of binding end, a nice, straight line should appear.

With flannels, camel hair and men's wear fabric reappearing in the ready-to-wear market, there will be a big return to the hand-picked edgings or they perhaps will be top stitched by machine. For the most part, you will follow the same detail outline that you used in bindings. These decorative stitchings also do double duty, they keep the edges nice and smooth in fabrics that have a tendency to puff up and not stay in place.

I have found another illustration, where the seam of the top collar, joining the lapel was completely disregarded. The type of lapel I am referring to is not the rounded type, but the higher, more pointed lapel. This type was stitched to a reverse "V" with the stitching

You may do this decorative stitching by machine provided your top stitching is perfect. You may also do this by hand, using buttonhole twist. I have seen other variations that look more like a small saddle stitching, done in two rows instead of one. Experiment and find which will do the most for your garment.

"I was so pleased with a knit dress I just finished until I discovered it was inclined to catch on anything sharp, such as rings, bracelets, etc. After awhile, I had several pulled threads which spoiled the appearance of my dress.

"In order to pull these threads to the inside of the dress, I threaded a needle and put a knot on the end. Then I put the needle into the pulled thread and pushed the needle to the inside of the dress. The knot at the end held the loose thread until it reached the inside. This made my dress as good as new again and didn't make a small hole that is bound to come if you cut these snags off."

DEAR EUNICE:

Just when I was taking great pride in the appearance of my set-in sleeves, I noticed the new ones seem to be very full at the cap, almost gathered. I'm not sure I like this new effect, but I did try it and had great difficulty keeping the gathers nice and even. Mine turned out to look more like tucks. Can you give us any little tip about the above detail?

MRS. D.E.W.

DEAR MRS. D.E.W.:

The new gathered sleeve is one variation of achieving extra shoulder width. It is still a variation; not all sleeves will be designed this way. It is definitely a very young look.

The length of your machine stitch is the factor to remember when gathering anything successfully. The longer the stitch, the more difficulty you will have. Since the weave of the fabric controls the length of stitch you use, always test a small area before you begin. The closer the weave of the fabric, the longer the stitch you will have to use.

It's a good idea to use 100 per cent polyester thread in the bobbin for extra strength. Place two rows of machine stitching at the area to be gathered, one row exactly on the seamline, the second row one-quarter inch closer to the cut edge, always stitching from the right side of your fabric. Carefully take both of the bobbin threads from the wrong side of the fabric and pull together until you have the desired ease your pattern calls for. You'll find by using the shorter stitch, you will have a smoother gathering and less pleating.

DEAR EUNICE,

I know there are remedies for removing the creases from synthetic fabrics, but they take so much time and they aren't always successful. Can't patterns tell us how to cut our garments to avoid these creases?

MRS. J. W.

DEAR MRS. J. W.:

With most fabrics in the new wider widths, it isn't too difficult to avoid these creases if you plan ahead. Actually, I never recommend using the fold of the fabric for a piece of my garment that is to be cut on the fold. Sometimes the fabric could be slightly soiled, faded, and it is most certainly creased. All you have to do is to re-fold the part of the fabric that will be used for the part of the dress (usually the center front) to be cut on the fold. It can usually be accomplished successfully without any additional purchase of yardage.

young son's eyes, but between March and June, 1969, the boy had recovered the loss of the previous three months.

The improvement continued. In a letter in November, 1970, the father reported that, after two years of treatment, his son's eyes were "better than they were before we began this regimen . . . There have been no complications or side-effects . . . My son's eyes remain good enough to read massively, without strain, and to play on his school football team (pretty well)"

The Bethesda case is only one among many that illustrate the seriousness of the myopia problem. Not so long ago Mrs. Rachlin received a frantic phone call from a young woman visiting New York for a day. The caller said her sister was about to receive her Ph. D. in biochemistry at the University of Indiana — and, suddenly, she found she had lost the central vision in one eye. Could anything be done to help her? Mrs. Rachlin agreed to send pertinent research papers to a designated specialist.

Another day a postman walked into the tiny office of the Myopia International Research Foundation at 415 Lexington Avenue, New York.

"MRS. RACHLIN," he said, "I have been delivering your mail for years, and now do you know what's happened? My little niece has a serious case of myopia. I can't believe it."

The postman, his voice rising, explained how the family had gone from one celebrated eye specialist to another — and had become lost in a bewildering sea of conflicting advice.

One doctor urged use of contact lenses — "but our little girl is only five, Mrs. Rachlin. How can she wear contact lenses?" Another said: "I can do nothing but give corrective glasses. Come back in six months." A third suggested use of atropine, but a fourth warned: "Stay away from atropine. All those drugs are very dangerous."

KATHLEEN WALKER
Engagement announced

Betrothal Of Couple Announced

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Walker III announced the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen G. Walker, to John Bernard Parker of Sparks, Nev., at a recent family gathering at their home in Belvedere.

The couple will be married on Sept. 11 at St. Stephens Church in Belvedere.

A graduate of Redwood High School, Kathleen is beginning her third year at the University of Nevada in Reno, Nev. She is the sister of Mrs. Robert W. Morrill Jr. of Antioch and David S. and Kim Walker of Belvedere.

Her grandparents are Mrs. H. R. Sanborn of Fairfax and Mr. and Mrs. David H. Walker Jr. of Carmel Valley, formerly of Mill Valley and San Rafael.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jeanne Parker and James Parker and the brother of Jan and Julia Parker, all of Sparks.

He was graduated from high school in Sparks and is also beginning his third year at the University of Nevada. Following their wedding the couple will return to Reno to continue their education at the University.

Boom Lowered On The Male Therapist

A feminist psychologist has lowered the boom on male therapists claiming they perpetuate the newest myth of male supremacy.

Dr. Phyllis Chesler, noted research psychologist, author and assistant professor of psychology at City University of New York, charges that many male psychotherapists tyrannize the women who come to them for help.

Interviewed in the July issue of Harper's Bazaar, Dr. Chesler says, "The therapeutic encounter is just one more instance of an unequal relationship in which they assume a submissive, dependent position in contrast to the masculine role of authority and expert."

Pointing out that women comprise the largest group of psychiatrically hospitalized Americans, Dr. Chesler attibutes it to a damaging double standard in mental health.

A study cited in the Bazaar article —titled "Tyranny of the Male Therapist" — reveals that when psychologists and psychiatrists were asked to define 'normal adult behavior,' 'male behavior' and 'female behavior,' they portrayed women differently — as more emotional, less aggressive — as not having 'normal' or 'adult' traits.

An additional tyranny exists among therapists who practice more by their own ideas than by any actual psychoanalytic theory, she states. As a result, some practitioners wrongly encourage women to become sexually promiscuous which, according to Dr. Chesler, is not the same as liberation.

Dr. Chesler urges that women patients see female therapists who are feminists. A female therapeutic community would be a ghetto, she says, but a necessary interim in the liberation battle.

Suntan Lotions' Labels Tell Use

Advice to protect the family against sun burning through the summer from the manufacturers of suntan lotions:

Read the label carefully before buying a lotion to know exactly what the product will do.

Sunscreens let tanning rays through but minimize the number of burning rays that reach the skin.

Tanning butters and other rich moisturizers have no sunscreen effect and should be used only by persons who already have a good base tan.

MOROCCO — Poverty in Africa is among the many and diverse subjects photographed by Stephen Joses and included in his current show at Tintype Photography Center in Tiburon.

ART REVIEW

Sensitivity: Key To A Photographer

By LAURA DEVENDORF

While we see lots of boring painting exhibitions, it's hard to find many deadly photography shows. This is partly because there are few photography shows around to see.

In the competition for gallery space, photographers have traditionally been treated as second class citizens, their work always last in line behind paintings, drawings, prints or anything else which classifies as wall-hung art.

The few photography shows we do get to see, however, suggest that there are many competent, if not exciting photographers waiting in the wings. And chances should be improved for seeing some of them with the advent of the Tintype Photography Center, 23B Main Street in Tiburon.

According to gallery director Donald Tatum, Tintype will have monthly exhibitions of worthy photographic artists plus two shows yearly by the gallery member group.

The exhibit there now through next Thursday is the work of Stephen Joses of Larkspur. Taken together, his photographs have no over-riding theme or technique. Instead, they embrace a group of subjects in color and black and white which are literally oceans apart. Each is treated as a self-contained study concentrating on design, imagery or some special quality the subject possesses.

At one moment Joses captures the composition a cat creates as it emerges from broken wall: another moment, the lens-bent architecture of a Spanish street. At another time he may explore the dim fusion of light and flesh in a nude. While at yet another, he may find an unusual natural happening such as the light-struck skeleton of a leafless fir encircled by dense darks of the living forest. Each photograph, while different in intent and treatment, has solid individual meaning.

If there is one major sensitivity it is to a feeling of remoteness, especially in the people Joses selects. Whether he finds them in the poignant poverty of a Moroccan street or sharing the day with a shaggy colt on the windswept grasslands of Stinson Beach, most of them seem to occupy a place that is private, thoughtful or otherwise set apart.

Marin Shadespeare Festival To Open With Musical

The Marin Shadespeare Festival will open its 11th season next Friday at Forest Meadows Theater of Dominican College with the musical, "Once Upon a Mattress."

This medieval comedy is one of six attractions included in the Festival's "Season of Classic Comedy." Other productions include: two Shakespearean plays, "Much Ado About Nothing" and "As You Like It;" a children's classic, "Wind in the Willows," and a guest production of "The Sorcerer" by the San Francisco Lamplighters and a modern adaptation of "The Liar."

The annual "Feast to Good Will" will precede the premier performance. This year's feast is a Renaissance picnic to be held on the grounds of Forest Meadow. Guests will dine on a medieveal menu of barbecued fowl, salad, bread, brandied pies, cheese, fruit and wine, shop at a medieval fair, and be entertained by the Festival Singers, strolling minstrels and a dancing bear.

Dan Caldwell, head of the drama department at Tamalpais High School, will direct "Mattress." Terence Cahalan of San Mateo and Dick Leonard of Mountain View, have the leading roles.

The play is scheduled to run next Friday and Saturday; July 22 through 25 and Aug. 4 through 6 and 14 and 15.

Caldwell will also direct the Festival's second attraction, "Much Ado About Nothing," scheduled to begin July 30.

For the first time the Festival will present a play especially for children. "Wind of the Willows" will be directed by John Brebner, a member of the San Francisco Player's Guild. Included in the 10 performances of "Willows," which opens August 7, are six Saturday matinees.

Robert and Marlene Egan, who have performed with the Festival, will direct "As You Like It" the season's last production, opening September 8.

Ticket information may be obtained through the Festival office or Forest Meadows Theater, both in San Rafael.

Archie Womble Named To Gallinas Village CSD

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board has appointed Archie Womble of Santa Venetia to replace Jack Hockinson on the board.

The Thursday night meeting was attended by 16 teens from Teen-agers in Action who received the board's help on three programs, according to Marguerite F. Clark, secretary.

Mrs. Clark said the board is underwriting and paying half the cost of a bowling league 18 teens have signed up for.

The board will help pay the cost of two teen trips, the first on July 16 to Santa Cruz and the second in August to Pacheco Ranch in Novato for a hayride and barbecue, she added.

Becky Preble of Teen-agers in Action said at the meeting 11 teens are participating in the Reach Out program sponsored by Marin Open House. The program starts Monday and will provide Marin teenagers with information and aid about problems of drugs, venereal disease, pregnancy, mental health and family counselling.

Meeting For Civil Defense Cancelled

Wednesday's scheduled civil defense planning session of city and district officials with Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella has been cancelled, his office reported yesterday.

No new date has been set for the meeting, pending completion of the first draft of a new countywide coordinated plan to cope with natural disasters. Louis H. Baar, board of supervisors chairman, had asked Campanella to outline emergency plans for the Wednesday meeting, following a preliminary get-together with city officials June 2.

Dirty Clothes On Span Cleaned Up

Bridge officials and a highway patrol car quickly responded. The bridge officials threw the laundry in the oily rear end of a tow truck, but not before the highway patrol car drove over some of the dirty clothes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

New Studies Show Gallstones Caused By Liver Disorders

New studies show that gallstones develop because of a disorder affecting the liver, not the gallbladder. These reports mainly concern the cholesterol variety, the most common gallstones of North America and Europe. In the past, we blamed the gallbladder, which usually was infected. The new discovery will be of little practical value to our gallstone susceptible population and is similar perhaps to the ancient question of what came first, the chicken or the egg?

DOCTORS D. M. SMALL and S. Rapo tested their theory on American Indians of the southwest who develop (almost exclusively) cholesterol-type stones. They found that Indians with these stones have a liver that secretes bile supersaturated with cholesterol. This abnormal bile exists prior to the formation of gallstones and continues while the rocks are growing. By the same token, the liver must continue to do so after the gallbladder is removed, explaining why stones develop occasionally in the tube that connects the liver to the intestine.

On reaching the gallbladder, the cholesterol-rich bile precipitates into crystals. The agglomeration of many crystals are glued together with an organic cementlike substance.

WE DO NOT know whether the stones form quickly or over a long period. There is a possibility that the supersaturated bile finds conditions in the gallbladder conducive to crystallization and stone formation.

This cholesterol is the same fatty substance implicated in atherosclerosis, heart attacks, and strokes. It is manufactured by the liver cells and some of it enters the bloodstream. The rest goes into the bile (much is reabsorbed by the intestines). Among the Indians in the study most of it is secreted into the bile explaining why the digestant is supersaturated with the substance. This is an assumption — because these Indians harbor many gallstones but they have low blood cholesterol levels and little hardening of the arteries.

AFTERMATH OF PSORIASIS

Mrs. O. D. writes: My husband has had psoriasis for years and now his ankles ache. Is there any relationship between the two?

REPLY

Yes, in that one per cent of all psoriasis victims develop rheumatoid arthritis. The skin affliction usually precedes arthritis. The joints of the hands and feet are involved most frequently. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on psoriasis.

THYROID REMOVAL

L. L. writes: Can a person lead a normal life if the entire thyroid gland is removed?

REPLY

Yes, but supplemental thyroid tablets will be needed to make up for the deficit. Complete removal of the gland is rare; a small amount is left behind because of technical difficulties.

SORE THROATS AND THE APPENDIX

A. V. writes: Would an appendectomy prevent the development of frequent sore throats?

REPLY

There is no relationship between these structures. Removal of diseased tonsils may lessen the frequency of sore throats.

RESERPINE

S. K. writes: Has reserpine ever caused physiologic addition?

REPLY

No.

Former College Trustee Calls For Active Support

A former trustee of the Marin Community College District yesterday criticized local businessmen and professionals for not assuming a more active role in the affairs of their schools.

"How many of you, I wonder, ever attended discussions at the local school district level?" Elizabeth M. Deedy asked an audience attending the annual meeting of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

"How many of you ever attend the series of (school district) meetings when the tentative budget is approved, when a more developed budget is approved for publication and ... when the final budget is adopted?" she asked.

"The public has been generally overwhelming by its absence, its silence at budget time," Mrs. Deedy asserted.

Mrs. Deedy, who stepped down this month from the college board after 13 years, told the audience of about 100 persons that education was its investment and that it must protect it.

"The money for this great system," she said, "has certainly not come from some great genie on a high mountain ... or in Sacramento ... it has come from the tax dollars of you and me."

Mrs. Deedy criticized businessmen for challenging salaries paid to educators without knowledge of teaching duties. Judgments, she continued, should be made after learning of new programs, existing programs, salary requests and the wide range of school district business.

Referring to the Independent-Journal's policy of publishing public employee names and salaries, she said such information (about teachers) "would be effective if used for more than criticism of costs ..."

Mrs. Deedy's speech also contained a few barbs for the state Legislature, which, she said, considers itself a "super board" of education.

"The Legislature mandates programs, often without provision for necessary funds," she said.

Other new officers are Harris C. Jackson, first vice president; J. Galen Foster, second vice president; Edward B. MacGuire, secretary, and Donald W. Chapman Jr., treasurer.

13 Injured In Rioting Near Seoul

SEOUL (UPI)—A U.S. military spokesman said today at least 13 persons were injured, two of them seriously, in a riot Friday night between local residents and Americans Negro soldiers in Pyongtaek, 35 miles south of Seoul.

One newspaper said 50 Koreans were hurt in the fighting.

The American spokesman did not have details of the riot, but local newspapers said it started at 9:30 p.m., when some 100 black soldiers stormed Korean-run clubs open only to white soldiers.

Negro GIs, armed with sticks and broken bottles, smashed tables and other furniture at four clubs in Pyongtaek and assaulted the employes, the reports said.

About 170 U.S. military policemen and 80 Korean national policemen rushed to the scene and fired more than 100 rounds of tear gas cannisters to put down the riot, according to the reports.

The riot came to an end about two hours later, when the negro soldiers dispersed, the reports said.

Then, about 500 Koreans living in Pyongtaek, armed with sticks, tried to stage protest actions against the black soldiers. South Korean police dispersed them at about 2 a.m. today, according to the reports.

Tunney To Tour State Next Month

By BENJAMIN SHORE
(I-J Special Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Sen. John V. Tunney has scheduled a whirlwind nine-day tour of California next month to rekindle some of the public enthusiasm that swept him into office last November and to take the state's political pulse.

The 37-year-old Democrat, traveling with staff and press in private planes, will begin his tour Aug. 7 in San Diego, move north through Orange County, tour the suburban areas around San Francisco, visit the northern counties, return to Los Angeles with stops in coastal cities, and finish with a run through the Sacramento and San Joaquin vallies.

This 22-city tour is almost a carbon copy of one he made in the closing days of his election campaign against Republican Sen. George Murphy. Two former campaign advance men were hired a month ago to plan the tight schedule.

Major addresses will be given at the Town Hall in Los Angeles on Aug. 10 and the Commonwealth Club in San Francsco on Aug. 11.

The tour, estimated to cost around $10,000, is to be paid for by many small-fund-raising events during the tour and by private donations, Tunney aides say.

The tour is being billed as a "report to the people". Tunney is expected to speak on what he has been doing during his first seven months in the Senate, and on some of the major issues before the Congress.

Aides also suggest that Tunney's close contact with the general public and Democratic Party officials and workers will help him evaluate the relative strength of the various Democratic presidential contenders in California. Tunney is expected to play a major role in the state's delegation to the party's nominating convention in Miami Beach.

Tunney also hopes to use the statewide tour to solidify his personal and Senatorial field organization.

Another Set Fire Erupts

Another in a long series of set fires erupted in tinder-dry grassland last night in San Rafael's West End section, city firemen reported.

The blaze, which broke out at 10:50 p.m., burned an area 50 by 80 feet off Indian Trail Road, firemen said.

Firemen said they believe a juvenile is responsible for nearly 30 grass fires which have occurred in the area in the past six months.

Two Days In Jail On Charge

Alexander A. Ziburtovicz, 23, of San Anselmo, was sentenced yesterday to two days in Marin County jail for disturbing the peace.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also placed him on probation for two years.

Ziburtovicz pleaded guilty last moth to misdemeanor charges of indecent exposure and soliciting lewd conduct, but a new complaint — charging only disturbing the peace — was filed by the district attorney's office yesterday when Ziburtovicz appeared for sentencing.

Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony said a pretrial agreement had been reached with Ziburtovicz's attorney stipulating that Ziburtovicz, who originally had pleaded innocent to the exposure and soliciting charges, would plead guilty to a disturbing the peace charge.

Ziburtovicz was arrested May 4 after a 16-year-old girl reported to police that a man wearing nothing but a T-shirt drove his auto alongside her and exposed himself.

GREEK ORTHODOXY

Education Key To Parish

By MARY BORNS

This education is the immediate goal of Rev. James Adams, silver-haired, 40-year-old clergyman now beginning his 16th year in the priesthood and his first in Marin County.

"I would like to see members of my parish from the youngest child to the oldest adult, educated to the distinctives of the Greek Orthodox Church," he says.

Adams came to the infant parish only a few months ago. His congregation of 75 families is trying to expand — to 100 families by the end of the year, to build a church as soon as possible.

According to officials of the church Greeks in this area mainly attended Holy Trinity Church and Annunciation Cathedral, both in San Francisco, until the Marin congregation began two years ago.

The new body brought the number of Bay Area churches to six, serving about 30,000 people, almost half the population of the 10-state Western Diocese.

The group has been meeting in Montgomery Chapel of San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo. Its membership has grown large enough for a building, but one of the original members says the group is moving slowly and carefully, searching out a piece of land that will be accessible to all Marin County Greek Orthodox people.

"A physical structure is very important to the Greek Orthodox," Father Adams explains. "We're a traditional church and part of our tradition is our beautiful buildings which are elaborately deocrated. This is done in order to give the faithful a sense of the presence of God in their church."

"I try however to minister to the non-faithful as well as the faithful," the minister quickly added. Adams explains that though his church does not solicit members it is aware of its importance to become involved in its community. Religion, to the Greek Orthodox, is an everyday matter, he says.

Like every other organized religious group, the Greek Orthodox church is losing its young people, Father Adams says.

To circumvent this exodus, the archdiocese has formed a department of youth to focus in on the concern of young people.

"The archdiocese is making an effort to center the church around young people. It is researching and giving more time and efforts to the youth of today."

"Our young people are clamoring for English to be spoken in the church," Adams explains. "The traditional church still uses Greek in its liturgy, but more and more of our members are coming from homes where English is the primary language." Adams' congregation is about half American born Greeks and half immigrants. He has incorporated English into his worship services.

The tall, distinctive looking pastor was almost predestined to become a priest. His ancestry includes a grandfather, a great uncle and an uncle who were all priests.

But he entered the clergy, he says, "because I always enjoyed the church." Marin County is his fifth parish: his other parishes have included Salt Lake City, Anchorage and Las Vegas. He, his wife, Evelyn, and their three children live at 59 San Miguel Way, Novato.

Adams's concept of ministry centers around his "faith in the future, faith that there will be a better world" and his belief that "it is important for a priest to bring more spirituality into the world."

The young priest would like to persocify this concept in his ministry to Marin County.

PROGRESS AT BOSTON CHURCH CENTER

At the recent annual meeting of the Mother Church of the First Church of Christ Scientist in Boston, delegates had a chance to tour the new church complex. The domed building (upper right) is the Mother Church extension. Construction is still under way on the 26-story new Administration Building (left) and the five story Colonnade Building (right) which joins The Christian Science Publishing House. Nearly completed is the new Sunday School Building (top center).

Assembly To Draw 30,000

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — More than 30,000 are expected at Kezar Stadium Wednesday through next Sunday for Jehovah's Witnesses district assembly.

The conference, centering around the Bible and 20th Century living, will begin at 1:40 p.m. Wednesday with music and a preview of the convention program. Speakers will include Lyle E. Reusch, assembly chairman, and District Supervisor Alvyn L. Franck.

Thursday afternoon's program will feature a presentation on the dangers of using drugs. It will present practical suggestions whereby families can protect themselves in this drug-crazed age.

Friday morning will see the Witnesses' characteristic mass-baptism of new ministers.

Dramas in both present-day and Bible settings will be staged on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings dramatizing Bible events and principles and applying them to modern-day living.

Assembly climax will come on Sunday at 3 p.m. when Reusch delivers the address "When All Nations Collide Head-On With God."

In releasing the program highlights, James L. Waddington, circuit supervisor in San Rafael, said that the five-day program is open to the public. The district comprises central and northern sections of California and Western Nevada.

Mission Team To Be Guests

Rev. and Mrs. Donald Taylor, missionaries for the Christian Missionary Alliance Church, will speak at the 11 a.m: service tomorrow at the Neighborhood Church, Petaluma.

The Taylors are on furlough following their second tour of duty in Thailand where they have served since 1961.

The newly organized church choir will make its first appearance at the service.

OF GOD AND MAN

Most Common Of All Human Sins

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

The most common of all human sins is putting other people down.

It's so common that many of us who are guilty of this kind of psychological aggression never stop to think how wrong, how truly evil, it is.

You know what "putting down" means, of course. It's an exceedingly useful phrase that young people have added to the English language. It means substantially the same thing as "belittling" or "denigrating," but it's much more vivid. It manages to suggest both the motivation and the effect of remarks and gestures that are calculated to make another person feel stupid or inferior or gauche.

Some people use put-downs out of deliberate cruelty. But most of us put others down because we're trying to build ourselves up—to gain some edge of moral or intellectual superiority that will give us an advantage in our relations with the target of the put-down.

Put-downs may be directed at strangers or casual acquaintances. But they are most vicious when they take place in the context of an intimate relationship. Husbands use put-downs against their wives, and vice-versa. Some parents consider it almost a holy duty to put down their teen-age children whenever the slightest opportunity arises. Children subjected to this treatment quickly become equally adept at making parents feel foolish.

It is characteristic of the put-down that the person administering it thinks he's being terribly subtle, whereas the victim immediately recognizes the slap for what it was intended to be. To pretend you really didn't mean to hurt or embarrass someone, when in fact that was precisely what you hoped to do, is to compound malice with hypocrisy.

People who think of sin in terms of earthier vices of the flesh may be surprised by the assertion that it's sinful to put another person down.

They should re-read their Bibles—especially the teachings of Jesus. He said the supreme moral law, the one commandment in which all other rules of human conduct are subsumed, is that people should love one another.

When Jesus spoke of loving others, he did not mean being fond of them or feeling affection for them. He meant that we have an overriding duty to deal kindly and charitably with everyone with whom we come into contact—to treat others as we'd like to be treated ourselves.

Putting down is sinful because it is an offense against charity. It is essentially an unloving act, no matter how hard we try to justify it in our minds as a come-uppance which the other person needs.

With his extraordinary insight into human nature, Jesus recognized how easy it would be to rationalize a put-down by saying, "I did it for his own good." He forestalled that alibi by warning that none of us has any business trying to judge, criticize or reform someone else. Perhaps if we could all grasp this truth there would be less alienation and antagonism between generations.

Education Minister To Deliver Sermon

The Covenant Church meets at the Miller Creek Junior High School at 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue in Marinwood.

"Can Parents and Children Relate?" will be the theme of his morning message. He will speak on some positive aspects of this vital relationship in our present society.

Presently he is responsible for all phases of education for the Redwood City church. He has written study materials for Gospel Light Press and edited children's materials for the Evangelical Covenant Church of America.

Gary R. Copland, pastor, is currently on vacation, and will be back in the pulpit next Sunday.

Youth Team Will Help Novato Church

Students as Volunteer Evangelists (SAVE), composed of five young people, will assist Rev. Robert H. Graham, pastor of the Novato Orthodox Church, in a summer evangelistic program.

One of the major projects of SAVE will be assisting at daily vacation Bible school which will begin July 26. The group will also assist in Sunday school and in the formation of a new youth program.

Church Official To Be Guest Preacher

Rev. T. Arnold Thompsen, director of church extension of the American Lutheran Church Board of American Missions, will preach at tomorrow's 10 a.m. service at Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church in Tiburon.

Lutheran Relief Gifts Set Record

Relief contributions in 1970 in the Lutheran Church of Australia totalled over $64,200, the largest amount since the church was formed in 1966.

Relief gifts have increased steadily since the formation of the 112,000-member church in a merger of two former Lutheran bodies, according to Sidney A. Bartsch of the Lutheran World Federat on Department of World Service.

Rev. Strom Named Stockholm Bishop

Rev. Ingmar Strom, director of the Central Council of the Church of Sweden for Parish Service, has been named bishop of Stockholm.

The 59-year-old clergyman succeeds the Rt. Rev. Helge Ljungberg, who has been bishop 17 years and also has served as chairman of the steering committee of the Swedish Ecumenical Council.

News Center For West Coast

NEW YORK (LC) — A communications bureau to assist Lutherans in the western states with their information and interpretation tasks will be established this summer in San Francisco by the Lutheran Council in the USA.

The bureau will be housed in the Urban Life Center, associated with St. Mark's Lutheran church, which is located at O'Farrell and Eddy streets in San Francisco. It is scheduled to open in mid-August.

Herb W. David, a former California newspaperman, has been assigned to direct the office. Since February 1967 he has been secretary for publications in the New York headquarters of the LCUSA Division of Public Relations.

Giants' Rally Beats Bums; A's Nip Angels In 20th

Blue Goes 11 Innings; Strikeout Records Set

OAKLAND (UPI) —Jim Hunter was the 36th and last player of a record-breaking game that ended early today and will be the starting pitcher of another game later today as the Oakland A's and California Angels go at it again.

Angel Mangual's two-out single scored Curt Blefary in the bottom of the 20th and last scheduled inning of Friday night's game to give the A's a 1-0 win over the Angels.

Mangual plunked the game-winning hit on a 2-2 count off loser Mel Queen at 1:08 a.m. PDT. If Mangual had been retired the game would have ended because of curfew and resumed some 12 hours later.

Two major league strikeout records were broken, as the two clubs had a combined whiff total of 43—breaking the mark of 36 set in 1964 by the New York Mets and San Francisco Giants in a 23-inning game.

Angel batters struck out 26 times, including 17 strikeouts by A's starter Vida Blue, to break the one team mark of 22 set by the Mets in that same game.

The win went to the fourth Oakland pitcher, Darold Knowles, who came on in the 19th.

The A's 11th hour rally in the five hour, five minute game began when Queen hit Blefary with a pitch leading off. One out later Dick Green singled Blefary to second. Queen struck out pinchhitter Hunter but then Mangual ended the long evening.

Blue set two modern-day A's strikeout records. His current mark of 188 for the season is the best for any A's pitcher in Oakland and Kansas City. The all-time A's season strikeout mark was set in 1904 by Rube Waddell with 349.

Blue was sent to the clubhouse after the 11th inning for reasons of weariness. Rudy May, who struck out 13, was removed for a pinchhitter in the 13th. He held the A's hitless in the last seven innings he worked.

California threatened twice against Blue. In the sixth, the Angels had men on first and third with only one out, but Blue struck out Ken Berry and Tony Conigliaro. Then in the eighth the Angels got back-to-back singles with one out, but again Blue escaped.

UNHAPPY VALENTINE — San Francisco first baseman Willie McCovey kept his foot on the bag and ball in his glove despite a poor throw to put out Dodger Bob Valentine last night in Los Angeles. The Giants, exploding for six runs in the ninth inning, beat the Dodgers 7-4.

Six Run Ninth For S.F.; Dodgers Now Six Back

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A banner crowd of more than 55,000 jammed into Dodger Stadium and it seemd that most of them came there with the express purpose of booing Juan Marichal.

Marichal, the high-kicking pitcher who is graceful as a gazelle, started for the Giants against the Dodgers Friday night. Going back to last season, he had a six-game personal winning streak gainst the Dodgers.

The Los Angeles crowd which seems to cheer only Willie Mays of the visitors booed Marichal when he threw his swift one close to Dodger batters and they angrily ranted at him each time he came to bat.

If this had been the covered Astrodome in Houston, one could have said the crowd raised the roof when Marichal left the game in the seventh inning, trailing 4-1.

As it turned out Marichal was not involved in the decision. His Giants got six runs in the ninth and pulled the game out by a 7-4 score, much to the chagrin of th Dodgers and their numerous fans. There were some happy faces in the stands, at least 260 Bay Area residents who came here to watch the Giants.

Willie McCovey, in only his second game since he came off the disabled list with a bad knee, got two hits, including a bases-loaded doubleer key blow was a single by catcher Dick Dietz who knocked in two of the six runs.

Veteran relief pitcher Don McMahon toiled on the mound for only one inning, the eighth, but he got credit for the win. His record is 6-4.

Jim Brewer, Dodger southpaw who is usually stingy with the batters, came on in relief of Claude Osteen in the ninth and gave up three hits before he was replaced by Pete Mikkelsen who finally got the side out. Brewer took the loss and is now 4-3.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Dodgers who have what seems like a rather weak hold on second place in the National League West. It looks like the Giants are galloping into the sunset with the division championship and they're now six games ahead of the Dodgers.

The rival managers, Walt Alston and Charlie Fox, pointed out as is the age-old custom of managers that the season is not over yet. If they had a chance to speak in unison there is little doubt they would say, "We play one game at a time."

Fox, eyes twinkling behind his glasses, said "I'm not making any predictions. I wouldn't make any predictions even when we were 10 games ahead."

He positively beamed when he spoke of McCovey who played with a truss on his left knee and a heavy bandage down to the ankle because of a torn cartilage which may eventually require surgery.

"It was good to see the big fellow out there," said Fox. "He gives us a big lift. He got two hits and made a couple of fine plays in the field. The doctors tell me he can last the season with a shot of cortisone in his knee every 10 days."

Alston, with Job probably one of history's most patient men, said quietly, "We've lost five in a row and we had a chance to win all five."

The Dodgers got their first run, an unearned one, off Marichal in the third. Bill Buckner, who had a feud going with Marichal, doubled to lead off and was sacrificed to third by Osteen. Maury Wills then hit a grounder to shortstop Chris Speier who threw to the plate trying to get Buckner. Buckner crashed into catcher Joe Ferguson who was blocking the plate. Buckner tagged home as Ferguson got his hands on the ball but dropped it for an error.

Bucs Would Skip All Star Game

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Sparky Anderson created some enemies for his selections for the National League All-Star team, but Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillon, two Pittsburgh Pirates who made the grade, would just as soon sit the game out.

Stargell, whose missed 13 games this season, mainly because of knee injuries, would prefer resting when the National and American Leagues go at it Tuesday night in Detroit.

Ditto for Sanguillen, the durable Pittsburgh catcher who feels he could use three days off to prepare himself for the second half of championship season.

"I'll go to Detroit and take my swings, but with these legs I'd be better off staying home," Stargell said. "With ten outfielders on the National League squad, I'll be lucky to stay in the game long enough to get two strikes."

Neither Stargell or Sanguillen looked tired Friday night. They combined for six hits and eight hits batted in as the Pirates belted the Atlanta Braves, 11-2, to move eight games out in front of the National League East.

Stargell will start in left field field for the Nationals, having been voted in by the fans. Anderson selected Sanguillen as his only other catcher, behind the Cincinnati Reds Johnny Bench.

Stargell's 29th homer, high in the majors, was his ninth against Atlanta pitching this year. The three-run blast came of left-hander Steve Barber, proof once more that the managers who used to bench Stargell against southpaw pitching might have been mistaken.

It was Stargell's seventh homer off a lefty this year. In 1966, when Harry Walker managed the Pirates, Stargell said he got to bat against lefthanders "only a couple of times all season."

"It was so bad," Stargell added, "that even when a lefthander came in to relieve, Harry would take me out in the middle of the game. Then a couple of innings later they'd have a right hander pitching again. I know Herman Franks of the Giants and Leo Durocher of the Cubs did that deliberately because they'd know Harry was going to lift me."

Sanguillen, catching Nelson Briles' first complete game of the season, contributed two singles and a bases loaded triple.

"It is a great honor, being picked to play in the All-Star game," Sanguillen said, "but I know I would be stronger if I rest, and besides, the pennant, that is more important than the All-Star game."

Briles' job was made easier by three double plays and a triple play, first in the National League this season. It was an around-the-horn triple play, Richie Hebner to Dave Cash to Bob Robertson on rookie Leo Foster's sharp grounder to third with runners at first and second.

"I didn't think we had a chance getting Foster, because he's supposed to be a fast runner," Robertson said, "but Hebner must of thrown the hell out of the ball to Cash and Dave made a hell of a pivot to get the ball to me in a hurry. He reminded me of Bill Mazeroski, the way he turned the ball loose."

Suyderhoud Has Second Best Jump

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — Two teenagers — 16-year-old Wayne Grimditch of Hillsboro, Fla., and 18-year-old Christy Lynn Weir of McQueeney, Tex.—held over-all leads of better than 200 points each going into today's second round of the Masters Water Ski tournament.

Grimditch, youngest of the male entries in the 13th annual tournament, won first day honors Friday in trick skiing, tied for the slalom lead with Krist LaPoint of Castro Valley, Calif., and took third in jumping behind world champion Mike Suyderhoud of San Anselmo, Calif., and Ricky McCormick of Independence, Mo.

Miss Weir, a high school honor graduate last month, won the women's slalom and trick events Friday and tied for second in jumping behind airline stewardess Barbara Cooper Clack of Lakeland, Fla., who fell only five feet shy of the women's world jump record with a leap of 105 feet.

The top five in each of the three events, men and women, on the basis of combined scores in Friday and today's rounds will qualify for Sunday's final.

Grimditch, winner of last year's national boys' title, scored 2914 out of a possible 3,000 points Friday. That was 203 points more than runnerup Suyderhoud, who turned in a 159-foot jump that was just six feet shy of his world record, and 225 ahead of McCormick, the defending Masters champion.

Miss Weir scored 2,889 points to lead second place Lisa St. John of Fall River Mills, Calif., by 226 points and the third place Clack by 262.

Barbara Cleveland of Hawthorne, Fla., set a new senior women's jumping record Friday with a leap of 94 feet. Miss Cleveland joined the senior division last year when she turned 30.

AT SANTA CLARA

Aussie Teen Sets World Record

By RON SUPINSKI

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) —A blonde teen-ager who loves spaghetti and wears braces on her teeth is leading the reemergence of Australia as a world swimming power.

Soft-spoken, 14-year-old Shane Gould, who entered international competition only a few months ago, shattered the women's 400-meter freestyle record Friday at the opening of the three-day Santa Clara Invitational swimming and diving meet.

She splashed to a 4:21.23 victory over Karen Moras, a 17-year-old brunette who, like Shane, is a member of the Ryde Swimming Club of Sydney. Miss Moras, who set the old world mark of 4:22.6 at London in April while beating Miss Gould, finished five seconds behind her in second place Friday.

"I was hoping for something around the record," said Shane. "I hope to do a few good times and make the Australian Olympic team next year.

"Karen was a very good sport and accepted the loss graciously. But the next time I guess it will be her turn to win."

While setting the 22nd world mark in five years at the meet, Shane was timed in 1:03.84 for the first 100 meters, 2:09.64 at the halfway point and 3:16.04 at 300 meters.

Miss Gould ate canned spaghetti on toast for breakfast and followed it with a light lunch of spaghetti, peas and string beans for lunch "because I would be unable to digest steak." Then she went out and opened the fifth annual event with a meet record of 59.27 in the 100 freestyle.

Miss Gould, who tied countrywoman Dawn Fraser's world 100 mark of 58.9 and broke American Debbie Meyer's world standard in the 200 meter freestyle at London in April, became the first girl to crack the one-minute mark in the 100 at Santa Clara. She clipped 34-hundredths of a second off Sue Pederson's meet mark set in 1968.

Miss Meyer, 18, of Sacramento, Calif., winner of three gold medals at the 1968 Olympics, tried unsuccessfully to qualify for the 100 freestyle here, finished 12th and out of the finals. She then scratched from the 400 freestyle, an event in which she held the world standard before Miss Moras natched it 10 weeks ago.

Today Miss Gould will swim in the 200 freestyle and follow it up Sunday with a go in the 800 meter freestyle.

On hand to watch their daughter's record performance were Ron Gould, market manager for East-West Airlines of Sydney, and his wife, Shirley.

"I was slightly overwhelmed to say the least," said Gould after the 400 freestyle. "But this means she will be allowed to stay in the United States until at least Tuesday.

"I promised her if she set a world record, we would allow her to tour the San Francisco area with the other swimmers on Monday instead of flying back to Sydney with us on Sunday."

Gould said he was reluctant to take his daughter out of the third grade of high school (ninth grade) for the meet. Shane began swimming at the age of three and entered local competition at nine.

In addition to the one-two Aussie finish in the women's 400 freestyle, Graham Windeatt and Graham White of Australia took first and second in the men's 400. Windeatt duplicated his feat at London earlier this year by whipping American record holder John Kinsella with a meet record time of 4:05.48. Kinsella, of Indiana and Hinsdale, Ill., held the old meet mark of 4:08.095.

White's runnerup time was 4:06.39. Hans Fassnacht of West Germany and Phillipps 66 Long Beach was third in 4:07.15 and Kinsella fourth in 4:09.80.

Two breaststrokers from the Soviet Union—Nicolay Pankin and Galina Stepanova, 22, mother of a year-old daughter—won their specialties.

Pankin established a meet record by coming on strong in the final 50 meters to upset world record holder Brian Job in the 200 breaststroke with a meet record 3:25.72. Job, whose old meet mark was 2:25.8, finished 27-hundredths of a second behind the Russian. Job's world record is 2:23.5.

"I just had enough to make it," said the 22-year-old Russian who was wearing a U.S. Olympic swim suit. Asked about the suit, Pankin replied: "When I want to win, I wear it."

Job was a bit philosophical about his loss but was optimistic he would make the U.S. team for the 1972 Olympics.

"He (Pankin) was in better shape," said Job. "Also, he shaved before the meet... I didn't. At Munich (site of the 1972 Olympics) I'll go out faster."

Marin Girls Set Team Record

I-J Special Report

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — A career-best medley relay performance by a foursome of Marin Aquatic Club women highlighted local swimmers' showings at the prestigious Santa Clara International Invitational swim meet yesterday.

Kim Hughes, Sue Secondo, Denise Ham, and Jo Hislop placed tenth in an impressive field that included United States team record holder Lakewood Aquatic Club, and a quartet of vsiting swimmers from the Soviet Union. The Marin girls broke their team record for the 400 Meter Medley Relay event in the time of 4:46.6.

Miss Hislop, a petit high school junior, placed 18th in the 100 Meter Freestyle in 1:03.32, while Miss Ham, a senior, placed 18th in the 200 Meter Breaststroke in 2:53.87 to lead local individual performances.

According to Marin coach Don Swartz, other good showings were made by Paul Cane and Keith Strange in the Mens' 200 Meter Sbreast, and by Miss Secondo in the Womens' 200 Breast.

Nine Marin C. C. swimmers qualified for the meet, making this delegation the largest from the county ever to attend the world-class meet at the International Swim Center.

Five Share Lead In Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)— That tight little course known as the Tripoli Country Club is enjoying a tight little tournament this week—one of the tightest, in fact, in professional golf history.

"Man, oh man," said Ken Still, one of the five co-leaders after the second round of the $125,000 Greater Milwaukee Open, "it looks like a nice little tournament."

Still, who won the meet two years ago; Deane Beman, who won last year; Dean Refram, Dan Sikes and first round leader Dave Eichelberger all entered today's round with scores of 134—eight under par— and five more pros were tied one stroke back.

In the second plac deadlock at 135 were Rod Funseth, Jim King, Ralph Johnston, Lou Graham and Bruce Crampton. One stroke further back were Roy Pace, Bob Shaw, Jerry Barrier and Lionel Hebert.

A total of 71 players made the cut and the last ones were just seven strokes off the lead. The GMO was just no place for a par golfer because it took a 141, one under, just to make the field for the last two days. It was the most closely bunched group of cut survivors on the PGA tour this year.

"Anybody making the cut can win," Reframe said. "Someone will break through for a 62 to 63. I just hope it's me."

"It all depends on the putting," Eichelberger said. "Anyone who putts well will shoot a good score."

Beman, who had the best round of the day Friday—and one of the best ever at Tripoli—with a 63, showed how true Eichelberger's words were.

He needed just 24 putts and had 12 one-putt greens and he rated this round even better than one he had in 1968 when he tied a PGA record with just 19 putts.

"I chipped some shots with a putter in that one—and they didn't count as putts," Beman said. "This had to be the best. If I'd had putted like this yesterday, I would have had a 60." As it was, he finished with a first round 71, matching par on the 6,548-yard course. So he needed everything he got in Friday's round.

"I'm playing better than I ever did—even better than last year," Beman said. He won the 1970 GMO with a 72-hole score of 276 and it looks like the score this year will be considerably lower.

Still, after his 68, seemed more interested in the British Open and Lee Trevino's showing than he did in what was going on out on the course after he had finished.

While Beman—and many of the others—had hot putting rounds, Sikes had his troubles.

"The longest putt I made was four feet," he lamented afterwards. "If I had made some of them I missed, I'd be three or four strokes ahead.

Players Pick Their All Stars

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Sporting News said Friday that a midseason All-Star poll of major-league baseball players produced a different team than that chosen by the Rams for the All-Star game.

The national sports weekly, polling the players for the second year since the All-Star vote was returned to the fans, said the two teams were the same for five positions in the National League and four positions in the American League.

However, the players picked Manny Sanguillen instead of Johnny Bench at catch in the National League, Lee May instead of Willie McCovey at first and Willie Davis instead of Willie Mays in the outfield.

The fans and players agreed in the National on Glenn Beckert at second, Joe Torre at third, Bud Harrelson at short and Willie Stargell and Henry Aaron in the outfield.

San Diego Firm Wooing Warriors

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A private organization is trying to lure the San Francisco Warriors to play it least 20 of their home games here, but any decisions as to whether the Warriors can move must wait for the outcome of a Monday meeting to determine who will operate the San Diego Arena.

Joe Holmes, president of the Sportscasters-Sportswriters Association, says he has met twice with Warriors' President Franklin Mieuli about the possible move.

The sports group is attempting to raise $300,000 to underwrite the Warriors.

The matter of who will run the sports arena has been taken to court by the arena bondholders. Several private groups were believed to be competing for the management permit, and there was a strong possibility of a city takeover of the privately owned facility.

49ers Send Scouts To Anderson

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—Tony Razzano, the agent for San Francisco 49ers top draft choice Tim Anderson, says the 49ers took the first step towards breaking Anderson's contract stalemate and sent two scouts to begin talks with him.

"It was basically a groundbreaker," Razzano said Friday in an interview with the Oakland Tribune.

Razzano, who has charged that the 49ers would not negotiate with him but preferred to talk directly with Anderson, said 49er scouts John Michelosen and Chuck Cherundolo flew into Dayton Thursday. He said another meeting was scheduled Friday.

Meanwhile, Anderson, a Ohio State star, has been working out every day at his home in Columbus, Ohio, with the program prescribed in the 49ers rookie training book.

Renko's Monthly 1-Hitter

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Steve Renko of the Montreal Expos celebrated the first monthly anniversary of his first major league one-hitter in gradiose style Friday night by pitching another one.

Renko, who one-hitted the San Francisco Giants on June 9, tossed a one-hitter against the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night as he hurled the Expos to a 3-0 victory. The only hit Renko allowed was a first inning single by Willie Montanez.

"I feel I am learning to pitch now," said Renko, who was a first baseman in the minors before being converted into a pitcher. "I enjoyed playing first in the minors but it probably cost me some education in pitching. At times I thought I had better stuff but after the fourth inning, I had good control of all three of my pitches."

Renko retired the last 18 batters in order in fashioning his one-hitter. He also set up one run with a single and scored another.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh routed Atlanta 11-2, Cincinnati beat New York 6-4, San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 7-4, St. Louis took a doubleheader from Houston 5-2 and 9-5, and San Diego beat Chicago twice 1-0 and 7-2.

Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillen drove in four runs apiece as the Pirates boosted their Eastern Division lead to eight games over the Mets. Stargell connected for his 29th homer of the season and drove in four runs while Sanguillen also drove in four runs with three hits, including a three-run triple.

The Pirates pulled off the first triple play in the NL this season and also turned in three double plays.

George Foster and pitcher Wayne Granger hit homers to pace the Reds' victory as Cincinnati tagged Tome Seaver with his fifth loss of the season. Joe Gibbon retired two batters in the ninth inning to choke off a Met rally and preserve Ross Grimsley's fifth victory in nine decisions.

Steve Carlton's five-hit pitching enabled the Cardinals to win the first game and Julian Javier's hitting paced the Cards to a victory in the second game of their doubleheader with Houston. Javier drove in four runs with a pair of triples in the second game. Doug Rader and Jim Wynn homered for Houston in the nightcap.

Dave Roberts and Bob Miller stopped the Cubs on five hits in the first game and Nate Colbert drove in four runs in the second game as the Padres swept a doubleheader. A triple by Ivan Murrell and a sacrifice fly by Ed Spiezio gave the Astros their only run in the fifth inning of the first game.

Angel Beats The Angels

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

It took an Angel to stop the Angels.

Angel Mangual stroked a twoout single in the bottom of the 20th inning early Saturday morning to lift the Oakland Athletics to a 1-0 victory over the California Angels in a record-shattering five hour, five minute marathon.

Mangual's hit ended the game in the last inning possible because of the American League's curfew rule and came at 1:08 a.m. PDT. The game would have been resumed later today if Mangual had been retired.

The clubs broke two major league strikeout records, thanks in large to a 17-strikeout performance by Oakland's Vida Blue, who went the first 11 innings. The two teams set a combined strikeout mark of 43, breaking the record of 36 set in 1964 by the New York Mets and the San Francisco Giants, the Angels' 26 strikeouts also broke the record of 22 set by the Mets in that game.

Billy Cowan of the Angels earned the dubious distinction of tying a major league mark by striking out six times.

Elsewhere in the American League Friday night, Baltimore beat Cleveland 4-1, Detroit edged Washington 1-0, Chicago beat Milwaukee 4-1, New York downed Boston 5-2 and Kansas City trimmed Minnesota 6-3.

Jim Palmer pitched a five-hitter and Baltimore scored three runs in the first inning with the help of a pair of passed balls by Chuck Hinton to beat the Indians. Don Buford led off the first with a double, took third on a passed ball and scored on an infield out. Elrod Hendricks singled, took third on Merv Rettenmund's hit and scored on Hinton's second passed ball. A pair of walks and a hit batsman force in the third run.

Ed Brinkman's one-out suicide squeeze in the 11th inning gave Detroit its victory over the Senators. Jim Northrup opened the 11th with a single and advanced to third o a wild pitch and a fly ball before Brinkman's bunt.

Joe Horlen pitched a seven-hitter and Carlos May drove in two runs in a four-run second inning as the White Sox beat Milwaukee. May had a two-run single in the inning.

Mel Stottlemyre pitched a four-hitter and snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning with a home run in the Yankees' victory over Boston.

Back-to-back homers by Fred Patek and Paul Schaal with two out in the ninth inning boosted Kansas City past the Twins. Both homers came off Twins' starter Jim Perry and broke a 3-3 tie.

Nolan Says Rookies Better Be In Shape

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco 49er coach Dick Nolan has given the rookies who will report to the 49er training camp this weekend fair warning —they had better be in top shape.

The first rookie workout is scheduled Sunday at the Goleta, Calif., camp and Wednesday the 49er rookies will scrimmage their counterparts from the Dallas Cowboys.

"I'll know early who came to play," Nolan said Friday.

Because of the players strike last year, the rookies had practically three weeks to round into condition. This year they will have less than a week before the veterans arrive.

Four veterans — linebacker Carter Campbell, former Atlanta wide receiver Jerry Simmons, running back Jim Strong and wide receiver Jimmy Thomas —will report along with the rookies.

Rams

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI)— There's a lot of speculation about a possible sale of the Los Angeles Rams and if there is a new owner in the near future he'll have a nucleus of eight veterans signed to multi-year contracts.

Since the death of principal owner Dan Reeves in the spring, there has been much talk that his 51 per cent share, left to his widow and children, will be purchased since they don't appear to have an active interest in the team.

Lions

DETROIT (UPI) —Greg Landry, the young quarterback on whom rest much of the Detroit Lions' hopes for a run at the Super Bowl this season, has scheduled a news conference to duscuss his contract situation, it was announced Friday.

Gerald Whelton, Landry's attorney, said the news conference would be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Detroit Press Club.

Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Charges of assault with intent to commit murder have been dropped against a man arrested in the serious wounding last Dec. 14 of Philadelphia Eagles defensive co-captain Nate Ramsey.

Saints

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI) —Sixty New Orleans Saints rookies begin twice-a-day workouts Monday on the campus of the University of Southern Mississippi without their top draft pick quarterback Archie Manning.

Manning, the Ole Miss grad who was second only to Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett in last year's draft, has not come to contract terms with the Saints.

Chi Cheng Is Out For Year

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Nationalist China's Chi Cheng, rated as the No. 1 woman sprinter in the world, said Friday she probably will not be able to compete again this year.

Here to attend the National AAU women's track and field meet with her coach-husband, Vince Reel, she disclosed she had a fatigue fracture of the femur bone.

Auto Races On Tap On Petaluma Oval

Auto racing will highlight the annual Sonoma-Marin Fair in Petaluma Sunday night as the cars and drivers of two NASCAR divisions bring down the curtain on the North Bay celebration.

The exciting NASCAR sportsman and early model stock car racing will take to the Petaluma Speedway quarter-mile dirt oval at the fairgrounds site on the final night of the fair.

The double-barreled program is set to begin with qualifying at 7 p.m. The first race is scheduled for 8:15.

TransPac Rivalry Is Hot

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (UPI) — Mark Johnson's 73-foot Ketch Windward passage is halfway there but Blackfin isn't letting her get too far ahead.

On the sixth day of the Trans-Pacific Yacht Race Friday, Windward Passage was reported 1,101 miles from Diamond Head in the Los Angeles-to-Hawaii event.

Blackfin, a 73-foot ketch skippered by Kenneth DeMeuse, was 37 miles back in the 2,225-mile race. Winds were from 8 to 14 knots.

Third overall and 77 miles behind the leader was Graybeard, from the Royal Vancouver (B. C.) Yacht Club.

Buccaneer, from New Zealand, and Ondine, from New York, were deadlocked for fourth in elapsed time.

Windward Passage held the Class A lead and Encore, a Col 43 sloop, was in first place in Class B, 1,379 miles from Hawaii. Alice, which was 1,348 miles from Diamond Head, was ahead in Class C and Dakar led in Class D.

Whitworth, Blalock Share Lead

HORSHAM, Pa. (UPI) — Kathy Whitworth, the top money-winner on the women's circuit, and Jane Blalock were tied at 68 two strokes in front of the pack today going into the second round of the $25,000 George Washington Ladies Golf Classic.

Tied at 70 were Judy Kimball, Betsy Cullen and Jo Ann Prentice.

Miss Whitworth, who has won $30,349 so far on the tour this year and is seeking her fifth victory, had a 34-34 over the 6,150-yard Hidden Springs Country Club course Friday. She sank six birdies and a lone bogey, salvaging a par-5 on the 16th while taking two shots to clear a sand trap.

Miss Blalock, who is the fourth top money winner this year with $21,350, had nines of 33-35.

As the field of 73 battled for the $3,750 first prize, the temperatures nudged the 100 degree mark but were not predicted to be as high today.

Defending champion Sandra Haynie, who won the first tournament last year, had a 40 on the front nine and was buried back in the pack with eight other girls.

GREEK POLE VAULTER

Papanicolaou Returns With The World Record

By DAVID EINSTEIN

It is a singular comment on the way history has gone that Greece, the country that started it all, has done very badly in the modern Olympics. In 17 summer games dating back to 1896, the Isles of Hellas have won only two gold medals. By contrast, the United States has dominated the international competition with 348 gold medals.

It stands to reason, therefore, that any Greek who performs will in the arena of international sports will be a hero to his countrymen. Pole vaulter Chris Papanicolaou is such a hero.

It was while enrolled as a graduate student at San Jose State College that Papanicolaou, a native born Greek, took fourth in the 1968 Olympics. But his greatest glory came late last year at Athens, when in a meet against Yugoslavia he broke the world record with a leap of 18 feet, ¼ inch. That was the first and only time the 18-foot barrier has been broken.

Papanicolaou returned to the U.S. and the Bay Area last week for the first time since earning his teaching credential from San Jose State two years ago. He came as a member of the World team that competed in Berkeley in a three-way meet against Russia and the U.S. Unfortunately, his poles were broken on the plane enroute from Los Angeles to San Angles to San Francisco, and he did not do as well as he might have. Still, he finished fourth using a borrowed pole.

CHRIS PAPANICOLAOU
Pole Vault Star

Part of their tour carried them to San Rafael, where Papanicolaou agreed to an interview.

The thing that seems most remarkable about this greatest of all Greek athletes is that he is 29 years old, which is ancient by American sports standards. Most track and field stars in this country reach their greatest level of achievement in their late teens or early twenties. By 30, they're in front of the television like the rest of us.

Not so in Europe, where, says Papanicolaou, "We start old. And when you start when you're 18, you need 10 years just to be ready."

Right now Papanicolaou, who started when he was 18, is getting ready for the 1972 Olympics in Munich. And at the rate he's going, he'll be a real threat to bring home Greece's first gold medal since Constantin Tsicilitras won the now defunct standing broad jump in 1912.

Papanicolaou may have gotten a late start in track, but it didn't hinder his development. Before coming to San Jose State, he reached the height of 16-8 at the National Academy of Physical Education in Athens. At San Jose, he set a school record that still stands at 17-7. And his fourth place jump in the Olympics in Mexico City was also 17-7.

Since returning to Greece in 1969 to teach physiology and physical education at the University of Athens, Papanicolaou has participated in track meets in several Euopean countries, including Italy and Spain. Because of this, he has been able to compare playing conditions and facilities between Europe and the U.S. On the whole, he notes, the level of performance is higher in the U.S. "It is better because you have good competition every week."

At his age, however, the slower European pace is an advantage. Nor is he affected by the long distances he must travel to compete. "We don't compete every week, so it doesn't bother me," he says.

In one respect, the U.S. is clearly the leader in track and field. According to Papanicolaou, this country, and specifically the city of Los Angeles, is the center of the world for the manufacture of the fiber glass poles used in pole vaulting. Even the Russians buy their poles in L.A.

Papanicolaou winds up his current stay in the U.S. next Monday, and then it's back to Greece. But first he'll have to stop off in Los Angeles for some new poles.

Stargell Is Player Of Month For Second Time This Season

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell has become the second player in the history of the 14-year National League Player of the Month balloting to win two awards in the same season.

The National League office announced Friday that Stargell, who was honored in April when he set a major league record for most home runs in that month with 11, had been selected again as player of the month for June.

The only other player to win two of the awards in one season was St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Bob Gibson, who was chosen in June and July of 1968.

Stargell receive 31 of the 60 votes by a panel of baseball writers and broadcasters who participate in the poll. He easily outdistanced teammate and pitcher Dock Ellis, who received 12.

Auto Racing

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (UPI)— Qualifying for the third event in the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series gets under way today at Road Atlanta, with reigning champion Team McLaren and former world champion Jackie Stewart the top contenders.

Stewart in the Lola T260, McLaren drivers Denny Hulme and Peter Revson and Jackie Oliver in the Shadow turned laps in the neighborhood of 114 miles per hour in a leisurely practice session Friday at the 2.6 mile course.

BRISTON, Tenn. (UPI)—With the top ten positions claimed for Sunday's annual Volunteer 500 at the Bristol International Speedway, 35 drivers will compete today in qualifying runs for the remaining 20 starting slots.

Hockey

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—The Minnesota North Stars Friday signed defenseman Ted Harris and wingers Lou Nanne and J.P. Parise to one-year National Hockey League contracts for the 1971-72 season. Parise's 72 points in a season are the club scoring record.

Basketball

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)— Washington State appointed Bob Greenwood head basketball coach Friday. Greenwood was head coach at Washington University and an assistant at Iowa prior to his selection.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)— Jim Cleamons, captain of the Ohio State team that won the Big 10 championship last season, will be playing next season with the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association.

Tennis

BASTAAD, Sweden (UPI)— Wimbledon finalist Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., was eliminated from the $33,000 Swedish Open tennis championships Friday, bowing to Manuel Santana of Spain, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 61.

San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department will start taking registrations Monday for the second session of tennis lessons, classes running for four weeks starting July 26.

Lessons will be taught at San Rafael and Terra Linda High School courts and at Albert Park. Registration will be held in the parks and recreation department between 9 a.m. and noon. Classes will be on a first come, first served basis, said Andrew J. Snyder, director.

Boucher Has 702 Series, 279 Game

Mike Boucher rolled a 279 game and went on to a 702 three-game series at Greenbrae Lanes to highlight the Marin County league bowling scores for the week.

In the Match Game Eliminations going on at Castle Lanes in San Francisco, Marilyn Epidendio of San Rafael is among the leaders, her 184 average putting her in eighth place after 24 games. Penny Tauscher, also of San Rafael, has dropped to 23rd place.

Marin County's bowling honor roll for the week:

Sometimes The Opponents Must Be Studied To Make Contract

Your best chance for a contract does not always depend on technique or mathematics. Sometimes it is a matter of knowing your customers.

WISE DECISION

South considered allowing the opening lead to ride around to his queen. Since West didn't customarily lead from a king against a slam, declarer wisely decided to take the first heart with dummy's ace.

South ruffed a heart with the jack of spades, led a trump to dummy's seven, ruffed another heart high, led a trump to the ten, and ruffed the last heart. Declarer then led a diamond and tried a finesse with dummy's nine.

East won with the jack of diamonds and returned the eight of clubs, giving South the chance to play low from his hand. If there had been no other play, declarer would have led the club ride to dummy's queen, but by this time South had made up his mind on a line of play that would bring the slam in.

CHOICE OF PLAYS

After taking the ace of clubs, South could cash the ace of spades, lead a diamond to the ace and then take dummy's last trump to discard the ten of clubs from his hand. This would bring the slam in if the diamonds broke 3-3 or if the player with length in diamonds had the king of clubs.

Actually, South had a better plan. East was a confirmed false-carder. If East held both the queen and jack of diamonds he would have taken the first diamond trick with the queen rather than with the jack.

EAST FAILS

East's failure to play the queen convinced South that West had the queen of diamonds.

South therefore led another low diamond and won a finesse with dummy's ten. The rest was easy. Psychology was more important than technique.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 6
♥ - J852
♦ - Q873
♣ - J954.

What do you say?

Answer: Pass.

You have only four points in high cards and count nothing for the singleton in partner's bid suit. You would raise if partner opened with one of any of the other suits since then you would count 3 additional points for the singleton.

Registration Set For Camp

Registrations are now being accepted for a week-long mountain camp, for boys and girls, at the YMCA Camp at La Honda.

The camp, sponsored by Marin YMCA, is opened to 9 through 14 year olds, and extends from July 31 through August 7.

Activities will include swimming, hiking, nature lore, sports and games, back-packing and overnight trips.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, July 10, the 191st day of 1971.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Cancer.

American painter James Whistler was born July 10, 1834.

On this day in history:

In 1953 Lavrenti Beria, Russian chief of internal security forces, was purged on charges of criminal anti-state activities.

In 1962 the Telster satellite relayed television pictures from the United States to Europe while Americans received clear pictures back from France and Britain.

A thought for today: Physician Sir William Osler said, "Tact is the saving virtue without which no woman can be a success."

Crinella Named To Hospital Unit

Dr. Francis M. Crinella of Petaluma has been appointed to the Petaluma Hospital District board.

Crinella, a psychologist, was appointed at an adjourned meeting of the board Wednesday. He will replace William A. Perry, who resigned to serve on the Petaluma City Council.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THE EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

War On Poverty Is Dismal Failure

L.B.J.'S WAR on Poverty was a noble undertaking, but it has to be written off as a cruel and extravagant failure.

Its original goals were magnificent. The level of attainment must be rated F for failure.

Instead of helping the captive poor to throw off the chains of poverty, the main thrust of the War on Poverty has been to create a whole army of new agencies which absorb great quantities of taxpayers' money while providing little help of consequence to very few poor people.

Were it not overshadowed by the tragic Vietnam war, the War on Poverty most certainly would go down in history as one of our government's greatest blunders.

When the last Poverty War agency has been liquidated (if it ever is) the poor will still be with us. We still will face the problem of how to motivate and train epople to become self-supporting.

A FOUR-COUNTY organization of volunteers — Bay Area Vocation Literacy Program, Inc. — has demonstrated successful techniques for providing significant help to one segment of the economically deprived.

The Vocational Literacy Program helps those among the poor whose lack of earnng power stems from language limitations.

FLP has observed many such in Chinatown and has demonstrated a technique which volunteers can utilize to teach very quickly the English words required for a specific job.

The technique is based on that developed by the late Frank Laubach, a pioneer in the field.

Spark plug of VLP in the Bay Area has been Mrs. Constant Van Vlierden of Sausalito, who holds the title of president and founder. Mrs. Van Vlierden has a knack for enlisting the help and support of others. To serve on the VLP Board of Directors she recruited these Marin-ites:

Mrs. Sylvester McAtee, prominent southern Marin club woman.

Mrs. Eugene Nelson of Sausalito, a founder of the Sausalito Youth Center.

Mrs. Burt Seyour of Sausalito, fashion design artist.

Until his recent untimely death, she also had the support of Edward W. Bullard, Jr. of Ross as a member of the VLP board.

THE VLP STAFF is headed by Sam L. Wong, a Cantonese graduate of Stanford who in his youth had first hand experience with language difficulties in America. His office is at 36 Waverly Place, San Francisco.

The first 97 "students" helped by VLP last year demonstrated the effectiveness of the Laubach technique. Eighty were placed in regular employment. Before training and placement, their total annual income had been only $90,762 — obviously less than bare minimum subsistence.

Their total annual income after training and placement rose to $432,827 — a comfortable level, providing all necessities and some luxuries.

BECAUSE VLP DEPENDS largely on volunteers, it does not need vast sums (like government agencies). It does need volunteers and some financial support.

The San Francisco Table Tennis Assn. is preparing to help in the fiscal area with a benefit Bay Area Table Tennis Championship tournament. Qualifying matches in each county are now being arranged. The championship matches will be played next fall.

In the longer view, VLP does not plan to limit its activities to Chinatown but hopes to offer its help wherever needed and to whoever needs it in Marin and the other three counties.

VLP appears to be a private, volunteer agency which can succeed on a limited budget where costly government agencies have failed.

Its success could provide a pattern for private, volunteer accomplishments of the noble goals of L.B.J.'s ill-starred War on Poverty.

THE MENTION ABOVE of Ed Bullard's passing brings to mind again the seriousness of his loss to Marin and the Bay Area.

As his obituary related, he was active in a host of volunteer agencies. His participation was more than nominal. He was an effective worker for each effort which he supported.

At the same time, he was always most modest and self-effacing. He did not seek credit or recognition for his work; he sought only to help those who needed his help.

In his final illness, he shunned sympathy and seemingly preferred to avoid placing any of the weight of his health problems on others.

His loss leaves us all poorer.

Jack Craemer

Bouquets and Brickbats

BRICKBATS to youngsters who endanger others by continuing to throw firecrackers indiscriminately, and bigger BRICKBATS to parents who condone such practices.

A BOUQUET to the San Rafael City Council for its decision to underground utility wires and poles in the downtown area by January of next year.

BRICKBATS to California drivers for racking up another first — the largest number of highway fatalities over the July 4 weekend.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Raccoons Are The Brightest People

Dear Editor in Charge of Raccoons:

Where are the Raccoons gone?

Seven years of raccoon feeding lead us to believe this is the regular pattern at this time of year, when the babies are beginning to move around.

This morning at 4 a.m. I saw the "sticking plaster" leading two babies up the pathway, talking continually to them with a little rolling call that I can describe as sounding like night bird.

Until she disppeared this spring, unflappable, battle scarred, rheumy eyed "Ma" was our favorite for seven years. Her last baby was the "Sticking Plaster" who stayed with her for two years.

We feed a loaf of bread and a pan of kibbles every night, always accompanied with a pan of water, plus meat scraps and chicken bones. Some prefer kibbles, other bread. Some "dunk" every mouthfull, others never dunk. Neighbor cats are ignored when they join in.

"Ma" could take the cap off a raw egg and clean it out without spilling a drop.

A "pipe line" to a candy factory keeps us supplied with rejected marshmallows, which we have used to train the young to come into the house and for hand feeding. The latter can be hazardous when several gluttonous youngsters are competing for the handout.

For several weeks last year "skinny" and three babies lived in a culvert that empties into the creek in our front yard. She had a hard time keeping them from straying off until she felt it was dusk enough for safety.

The creek is their highway to travel up and down the valley and we have learned never to plant garden where they choose a route for their regular pathway.

We agree that "Raccoons are The Brightest People".

Veterinarian Fees Are 'Outrageous'

I thought you might be interested in what happened to me when in need of a Marin County veterinarian this past 4th of July weekend.

Sunday, I found my two year old cat unable to swallow. Having tried liver, ground beef and canned milk with an egg in it and failed, I tried my own veterinarian's answering service. The girl told me there was only one vet on call in Marin County and that unless it was a matter of life and death, she could not get him. Not being sure how long this would go on with the cat unable to eat, I told her it could be just that. I left my name and waited for the vet to call. Shortly after, the vet returned my call and asked a few questions regarding the cats symptoms; I explained what I had tried to do in the way of enticing him to eat and his symptoms of being unable to swallow; or shortly after swallowing a small amount of food, vomiting it up. He said he'd see the cat but that it would be a fee of $20 just to see the cat on an emergency basis plus whatever he did to the animal. I replied that it was cheaper to let the cat die, to which he did not reply.

My past experience with even my own vet has been cash before you get out the door. Not having twenty dollars cash on hand and knowing the stores were closed where I could have cashed a check, I told him that I'd just have to wait and see if he improved.

Fortunately, by late Monday he began to eat small amounts. Thanks to patience and coaxing. How can it be that we who love animals in Marin County must sit still for the way the Marin County Veterinarians dictate that one vet is on call for all of Marin and how in the world do they get away with charging such outrageous fees? Surely there must be some way to alleviate this deplorable situation.

Marin General Hospital would see a vet in an emergency for only $10 plus materials . . . $10 less than their fee for a cat, and Marin General will even bill the patient!!

Facts Needed On Town Meeting Fund

We are indeed pleased to read in yesterday's I-J that Dr. Martin Blinder is deeply concerned with full public disclosure — he calls it "contempt for our right to know."

Along those lines, several of us who worked all last year toward the May 1971 Town Meeting in San Anselmo have asked for a public financial accounting of funds collected and spent to direct this effort. Although an accurate dollar for dollar audit was never available, we were told that approximately $1,000 had been available since the second Town Meeting. This sum (plus interest presumably) was passed on to each succeeding chairman for at least the last three Town Meetings. In short, following the 1969 meeting, Dr. Blinder received $1,000 from Mr. Farey, the preceding chairman, after which two years of interest presumably at 5 per cent accrued. Dr. Blinder was then successful in raising slightly more than $300 from the local business community, expenses were around $300 including voluntary assistance, leaving, one would surmise, $1,100 to be handed on to the 1972 chairman who is to be selected in September.

Several of us felt that the public should be aware of this for several reasons. It might be that this sum of money could assist to fund some of the projects that are usually under discussion at the Town Meeting — assisting to landscape the Hub? assist to fund a teen center? a day care center? Or on the other hand, with enough funds to put on three Town Meetings, perhaps the new chairman should not solicit funds at all unless the balance on hand is disclosed.

We were interested to know that the original "kitty" stems from Dr. Singh of the San Anselmo Theological Seminary who, it was said, hoped to have enough funds to have the Town Meeting self-funded out of income from interest. We felt that this too should be known to the citizens at large and we are happy to have Dr. Blinder's reminder that there should be no secrets in public affairs.

Suspect Unrelated To Christian Church

In a recent I-J newspaper article details were given of a narcotics case, accompanied by a large photograph of loot found at the Irwin Street residence of the suspect, Mark Hampton. The article stated that Mr. Hampton is an ordained minister in the Christian Church.

Since that article appeared, our congregation, and I in particular, have had many inquiries concerning this man. We wish to advise the public that the San Rafael Christian Church does not know this man, nor to our knowledge do any of the surrounding Christian Churches. He is not now, nor has he ever been connected with San Rafael Christian Church in any way whatsoever.

We will appreciate it if you will clarify this matter for us. Thank you.

Can English Keep Abreast Of Sophia Loren Or Gina?

LONDON — "To be or not to be," that is the question bugging every Englishman these days in regard to the Common Market. After finally getting the six members of the Common Market to admit her, Britain does not seem to be very sure that she wants to be a member of the club. In fact, the more Britishers you talk to, the more reasons you hear as to why England should stay out.

There are, of course, the usual fears about joining anything that has to do with the Continent, such as: "If Britain becomes a member of the Common Market, her children will have to put wine on their cornflakes as they do in France" and "Everyone will be forced to wear pointed wooden shoes as they do in Holland" and "We'll have to give up our tea break to compete with the Germans."

BUT THERE ARE deeper and more significant reasons why the British, now that they've been admitted, want no part of the market.

There is a definite fear here that if England joins the Big Six, she will be forced to drive her cars on the other side of the street. It isn't just a question of changing the steering wheels to the other side — though this is no small problem — but also that the population could be severely decimated by automobile accidents during the changeover period.

THE FEELING HERE is that if Britain becomes part of the market her six partners should be the ones to change the side of the road they drive on rather than England.

"Since we gave in on cheese quotas, they should give in on driving," a hotel doorman told me.

If this wasn't enough to worry about, there are also fears here that if England is forced into full partnership with the Continent, she will pick up many of the filthy habits of the French, such as having love in the afternoon with someone who is not your wife.

"WHAT HAS MADE us great," a British friend told me, "is that while Frenchmen spend their lunches and afternoons in bed with their mistresses, we work in our factories and on our farms and in our offices, for God and country. We'd be fools to become part of a system that puts sex before the gross national product."

An English lady friend said she wasn't as afraid of the French as she was of the Italians. "If we join the Common Market, we shall have to develop bosoms to compete with Sophia Loren and Gina Lollobrigida. No British female can hope to match an Italian woman's bust once the tariffs are abolished."

THE CONSENSUS HERE is that becoming a member of the Common Market can only mean trouble for Britain. The cafe will replace the pub, beer will be served cold and the Pope is sure to come over and throw out the first ball at Wimbledon.

As long as the Big Six rejected Britain's application, the English were clamoring to get in and furious at being blackballed. But now that England can join, everyone assures everyone they never wanted anything to do with the Common Market in the first place.

And with reason: As an Englishman put it to me at lunch the other day, "You know, of course, if you don't take a French child away as soon as it's born, the mother will kill it."

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Freedom In Jeopardy As Turkey Clamps Down

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When the Turkish army forced the resignation of Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel last March 12, it demanded a law and order government which would crush leftwing terrorism finding increasing expression in anti-Americanism.

As the largest and most prominent foreign presence in Turkey it was natural that the United States should become a target in what has been called Turkey's unfinished revolution.

IT WAS THE kidnapping of four American airmen by leftwing extremists and the demand for $400,000 ransom for their release that led senior Turkish officers to topple the Demirel regime by ultimatum and to order that its successor halt Turkey's drift into "anarchy, fratricide and social and economic unrest."

Under Demirel's five-year rule, the country's economic growth rate had been moving ahead at a real rate of 7 per cent a year.

But his commitment to industrialization had led to abandonment of more than half of Turkey's pasture land, even though agriculture continued to be the backbone of Turkey's economy.

AND TO COMPLETE a picture of ironic contrast, half a million peasants were landless and impoverished.

Army officers under Chief of Staff Gen. Memduh Tagmac were said to have warned President Cevdet Sunay that civilian politicians would have one year to form a strong government or face a complete takeover by the armed forces.

Within a year they wanted land and educational reforms and a new election law.

SO INDUSTRIOUS has the emergency coalition under Prime Minister Nihat Erim been that now there is apprehension that Turkey's fragile democracy may disappear under an avalanche of so-called reforms.

Couples now may walk safely on the streets of most Turkish cities but it is at the expense of martial law sharply curtailing civil liberties.

Awaiting parliamentary approval are 42 constitutional amendments to the liberal constitution enacted in 1961 after overthrow of the dictatorial Menderes regime. Included is a proposal permitting government seizure of printing plants deemed to be putting out subversive material.

Others would restrict the autonomy of the Turkish radio and state universities.

CREATING SPECIAL concern is the fact that while some newsmen have been arrested on charges of subversion, members of the rightwing press continue free-swinging attacks upon ministers who have been told their jobs are to be carried out "above politics."

Under special attack has been Atilla Karaosmanoglu, Harvard-trained and until recently an expert with the World Bank in New York. He is minister of state for economic planning and coordination.

As the Turkish pendulum swings away from what perhaps had been an excess of freedoms to what could be their disappearance, Turkish liberals are looking toward an elder statesman as they have many times in the past: He is 87-year-old Ismet Inonu, a former prime minister and contemporary of Kemal Ataturk, founder of modern Turkey.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Our poor innocent mixed-up students are not our intellectual equals; we must no longer listen to them as if they were, and we must try to strengthen the spines of our colleagues who do. — J. Mitchell Morse, Temple University professor.

A generation ago man dreamed of fighting the war to end all wars. Today this is no longer a dream to be hoped for but a nightmare to be feared. — John H. Hayes.

Just because technological developments can displace 100 men with a machine does not mean that the machine must be put to use without first calculating the social as well as the economic consequences likely to follow. — William Stringfellow.

THE PLACE IS JUMPING — More and more high rise buildings encircle Alexander Platz, the pre-war Times Square of Berlin, now in East Berlin, the capital of the German Democratic Repubic. Vehicular traffic now runs beneath the square. The structure at center is the Building of Teachers with adjoining Congress Hall. The economic miracle has converted the once lowly Soviet Zone into the world's ninth industrial power.

Sometimes The Teen Runaway Runs Into Far Greater Woes

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Hi! You probably know I'm in another hospital. I feel like they're just shoving me from one hosp. to another. I really wish I could go home. I don't blame them for not trusting me but I wish I could have one more chance to prove myself . . .".

That was the beginning of a letter from a 15-year-old girl to Rev. Richard J. Harvey, assistant pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church in New York City's Greenwich Village. She had run away from her suburban home twice and the second time Pastor Harvey had tracked her down and helped return her to her parents.

The letter was written from a psychiatric hospital.

"SHE KNOWS she'd run away again," Pastor Harvey said andhe told the girl's story — of running away, of becoming involved with a pimp, and prostitution, and drugs.

The girl in some ways is typical of today's runaway teenager — that is, she is female, 15 years old, and from a middle class family. That is the way Capt. Joseph Lynch, head of the New York City Police Department's Missing Persons Unit, describes the typical runaway. Some case histories have happier endings, he said. Some end in death.

UPI interviewed experts on the problem of runaways — policemen, private investigators and clergymen — in an effort to learn who runs away, why, and what happens to them.

The law defines runaways as persons under 18 years old and says they may be returned to their parents, even if they are unwilling. Once a young person reaches 18, he may leave home and cannot be forced to return.

ONE THING no one can provide is an accurate figure on the number of runaway teen-agers in this country each year. The estimates run as high as one million. But police in the two cities that have been most attractive to runaways in recent years — San Francisco with its Haight-Ashbury section, and New York with its East Village — agree that in these areas runaways are declining.

"The number of runaways reported to us had been going up at about 4 per cent a year," Capt. Lynch said. "Three or four years ago it jumped to 7 per cent. Now it's back to 4 per cent, and that rise could just reflect the increase in population. We don't get as many requests from out-of-town police jurisdictions as we used to, either."

An indication that the number of runaways has not decreased nationally only that the runaways now choose different destinations — came from Edward H. Goldfader, executive vice president of Tracers Company of America, a firm of private investigators very active in locating runaways.

"WE OPERATE all over the country," he said, "and lately it seems there are more runaways to less populated areas. These things go in cycles and there's a snowballing effect. One goes and others follow. "Colorado is one of the new places to go, and so is the area around Magnolia, Mass. It relates to their aspirations, and now they want the areas that are unspoiled."

He said many youngsters, after brief and disillusioning stopovers in major cities, head for communes established from Vermont to Hawaii. "One colony on the island of Maui (in the Hawaiian chain) is primarily comprised of kids from western Pennsylvania. The word gets back. How does the grapevine work? I can't even imagine. By osmosis, it seems."

While communes and back-to-nature movements may be diverting some of the runaways, the bulk of them come to big cities.

"SURPRISINGLY, the average runaway is only gone 72 hours," Capt. Lynch said. "Many go back before then, particularly the younger ones. The older they are and the more money they have, the longer they stay away."

He said the peak months for runaways are May and September—partly because of the weather and partly because May is final exam month, September back-to-school month.

Not all the reasons for running away are so trivial. Police Det. Thomas Rynne, who dressed hippie-style as part of the "mod squad" the New York police operated during the hippie hey-day in the East Village, told a story in tones of shock seldom heard from experienced officers.

"We picked up this girl about 2 a.m. — a runaway. She gave us one name and another — they do that, they like to give us a hard time, having us calling people in different cities. It can go on for two or three hours, as if you were questioning a homicide suspect.

"FINALLY WE found out who she was — we did have an alarm on her — and called her home. A lady answered, apparently a maid, and told us the family was out at a social affair. By now it was 4 a.m.

"I called and it sounded like a party. The father, an attorney, said he would call back in 15 minutes. When he did, he said he was tied up and could we hold her until three o'clock the following afternoon?

"She had been gone like five weeks, she was filthy dirty, and he wanted us to hold her until the next afternoon. She was 12 years old!"

The first thing that the runaway in a place such as the East Village finds is squalor — often horribly neglected tenement apartments overrun with cockroaches, rats and vermin.

"The thing that baffles us," Capt. Lynch said, "is that young girls who leave home and clean surroundings can stand more than 15 or 20 minutes in the surroundings they fall into — the dirt, the filth."

THOSE WHO stay away often try to support themselves by panhandling. Some wyo become involved with drugs begin peddling them. Some of the boys steal; some of the girls become prostitutes.

It was the thought of the people ready to prey on young runaways for profit, among other things, that inspired Dr. Fred Eckhardt, Pastor of St. John's, Rev. Harvey's Church, to inaugurate his "rescue" operation. Teen-age volunteers from St. John's consult a church bulletin board with descriptions and photos of runaways, then spread out in the evenings to comb the streets for the missing youngsters in the hope they can be reached before they are hurt.

Dr. Eckhardt said that from the moment young runaways reach new York, often at the Port Authority terminal, the city's main bus depot, there are people waiting to use them. He was backed up by Bronx District Attorney Burton Roberts who said:

"THE INDICATION is that runaway girls are fair game for people who would make a racket from it. If this is part of the youth culture, it is time we start exposing it for what it is and start eradicating it."

One case he specifically referred tc involved charges against five men and eight women accused of subjecting four runaway girls to rape and torture to force them into joining a prostitution ring.

The DA's warning was achoed by Jeremiah P. McAward, head of McAward Associates, a private investigation agency which has been called in by anxious parents to locate their children. He said:

"The runaway children often are naive, idealistic — they have very little knowledge of what life is about. They think the love generation is still here, pot is fine, if you're nice to people they'll be nice to you. It's just not true. People prey on the kids, wait for them to show up."

HE SAID usually the runaways — even the ones who don't voluntarily return home — become disillusioned, even frightened by their surroundings.

He told of one girl, 14, whose family moved to New York and who made new — and unfortunate — friends here. She ran away after a series of disputes with her family about her dates with a 19-year-old boy she had picked up in Central Park near the Bethesda Fountain, a meeting place for hippies, "street people" and more conventionally rebellious youth.

Both 'Sides' Are Impressed With The Transformation Of East Berlin

By JOSEPH FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI) — It was past midnight but good looking girls in minis, midis, maxis and hot pants still were dancing to "Melancholy Baby" in the restaurant of the Hotel Stadt Berlin (Hotel City of Berlin), Berlin's newest and biggest hotel.

From the Panorama Bar on the 37th floor you could see the 1,197-foot high Television Tower, Europe's tallest structure next to Moscow's television tower.

All around Alexander Platz, the pre-war Times Square of Berlin, there were gleaming, bright, light modern buildings of glass, steel and concrete— the 11-story House of the Electrical Industry, the eight-story Centrum department store, the 12-story House of Teachers with a meeting hall seating 1,000, apartment houses, office buildings, shops, restaurants.

THIS IS East Berlin, the capital of the German Democratic Republic.

Visitors from Moscow, Warsaw, Budapest and other Soviet bloc cities stare in awe at the shop windows that reflect the economic miracle that has converted the once lowly Soviet Zone into the world's ninth industrial power with a standard of living higher than any other Warsaw Pact nation.

Visitors from the west are impressed, too. In the 10 years since the wall was built on the East-West Berlin border East Berlin has been transformed.

Gone are the rubble heaps of war that were everywhere, the look of poverty and despair on the faces of the people, the feeling that the nation and its Communist leaders existed in a precarious state of balance and soon might be swept away.

Now the leaders exude confidence. And the people show pride in the efficiency and application that has made their country the second strongest industrial state in the Soviet bloc.

East Germans might not love their country or its leaders. Werner Obst, 41-year-old East German government management expert who escaped to the West two years ago, estimates East Germans would flee to the West by the hundreds of thousands again if the wall were removed.

But the wall, like the German Democratic Republic, appears here to stay. Behind it 17 million people in an area slightly larger than Ohio are making the best of the bargain.

For all its prosperity East Germany is a Communist dictatorship still run on the tight police state lines established by old Stalinist Walter Ulbricht.

The replacement, for example, of the 77-year-old ailing Ulbricht as Communist Party first secretary by Erich Honecker set an example for peaceful change.

Ulbricht stepped down without pressure, ill will or recrimination and made way for the man always considered his protege and crown prince.

Although a Stalinist, Ulbricht allowed his managers and specialists to carry out economic reforms and freed them from the bureaucratic central planning that has stifled the economies of other Communist nations.

EVEN THE collective farms in East Germany are models of efficiency and profitable enterprises by Soviet bloc standards.

East Germany's prosperity, of course, is relative. Not only does East Germany lag far behind West Germany economically but the gap is growing.

In the last 10 years the real income of the average West German worker has increased 58 per cent compared to 34 per cent in East Germany.

Talk to an East German and you get the feeling that no matter how much things improve in East Germany the average East German always will consider West Germany the "Golden West."

"I CANNOT complain," a well-dressed housewife said as she ate a piece of chocolate layer cake with whipped cream in the fashionable Linden Corso cafe on Unter den Linden.

"But I know things are much better in the West. I can see that on West German television. A nylon shirt for my husband costs 60 marks ($15), a pair of nylon stockings for myself 12 marks ($3)."

Soviet Citizens Can Complain

By DAVID NAGY

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet newspapers, including the government newspaper Pravda, have their own version of the "action line" and "hot line" columns in American newspapers in which citizens may seek redress of injustices, or plain nuisances.

As is the case in American newspapers with such columns, the Soviet gripe columns provide a channel through which the average citizen can seek help on grievances. There are some unspoken ground rules, of course, that limit the area of complaints --no attacks on the Kremlin leadership, no politics, and so on.

For example letters written by Zionist Jews to Pravda and other major newspapers, in which scores of signatories might rebut the official line on xionism and beg to go to Israel, never get published.

But so long as the letters complain of economic or social villainy and the like, they can and often do get action, even if the axe falls on some fairly well-connected necks.

One hopping mad retired army officer, who signed himself Col. D. Doverov, wrote to Pravda that a man could hardly ride a train any more without being surrounded by and pestered by drunks. Pravda printed the letter and also told what action had been taken:

"Col. Doverov's letter has been discussed by the entire personnel of the Ukrainian transport police and the Ukrainian Deputy Interior Minister, I. Bondarenko, has informed us of the results.

"Railway militia (police) will furnish flying squads to accompany passenger trains.

"In addition to the regular militia, these groups will include railway inspectors, volunteer police and, on local lines, teams of railway workers and industrial laborers who commute to and from work on those lines."

Pravda concluded: "All railway passenger service units held meetings where attention was drawn to the need for conducting a relentless fight against drunkenness."

State's Competitive Spirit In Tourism Lacking — Sole Possession Of Last Place

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The resignation of the state's director of tourism raises the question whether California has any real desire to compete with 49 other states for a share of the tourist dollar in this age of travel.

If California is interested, it hasn't demonstrated that interest by keeping up with the other states in financial support. Perhaps the legislative and administrative budget makers don't hold with the theory that it takes money to make money.

SINCE THE start of the Division of Tourism five-and-one half years ago, California has shared with Nebraska the distinction of providing the skimpiest tourism budgets of all the 50 states.

They were the only two states to provide less than $100,000 for the purpose, but California took over sole possession of last place in July, 1970, when the conference committee on the state budget made cuts that reduced the Division's share to $41,000.

By contrast, Hawaii, the newest state, budgets more than $2 million. Texas, New York, the two Carolinas and Virginia hover right around the million mark, and the average state support is $600,000.

THE DIVISION and the Tourism and Visitor Services Commission consider that $250,000 a year would be a bare minimum appropriation to do the job they have been assigned, and that only because the problem is easier in California.

With the 1971-72 state budget now before another conference committee and with the same $40,000 appropriation in prospect, Director Hans Engh finally threw in the sponge.

Supplies of materials accumulated or scrounged during the years when the Division's budget ranged from $80,000 to $100,000 a year are running out and the cupboard is bare, Engh says.

"When you get through paying salaries and office rent and buying paper clips," he adds, "you just don't have much left to answer those 35,000 inquiries we get every year."

WHICH IS really about all the Division has been able to do up to now. Such items as promotional programs, travel shows, a news bureau operation, photo files — a favorite object of unfulfilled requests — packaged tours and the like have been out of the question.

So has any real research on the nature of the tourist industry in California and its effect on the economy.

Engh and members of the commission are now pinning their hopes on a bill which, among other things, would abolish the Commission itself.

The bill, SB 1407, by Sen. Robert Lagomarsino R-Ventura, would also abolish the Industry and World Trade Commission and replace them both with a Commission for Economic Development.

THIS IS another area in which California is among the also rans, there being no single state agency from which a business or industry wanting to ocate here can get all the information it needs.

Previous attempts to match other states in this respect have foundered on the rocks of sectionalism or political partisanship or lack of legislative interest.

Lagomarsino has attempted in SB 1407 to compensate for the partisanship and lack of legislative interest in the makeup of the 17-man commission proposed in the bill.

The chairman would be the lieutenant governor because the commission would be in the Department of Commerce, which is under his tent.

SIX MEMBERS would be appointed by the Legislature from among its own members. These would include two assemblymen and two senators from the majority party and an assemblyman and senator from the minority party.

Of the remaining 10 members, to be appointed by the governor, no more than six could be registered in the same political party. The expiration dates of the four-year terms of the first appointees would be staggered.

The bill says that these members will be appointed after consultation with business, industry and labor organizations, "from the economic development fields of manufacturing, tourism, world trade and such other fields as may be appropriate."

It is this provision on which the present commissioners are hanging their hats. The thought is that if a good sound Commission for Economic Development can get off the ground with proper funding it could turn out to be a going operation.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong died this week, two days after celebrating his 71st birthday on the Fourth of July.

The trumpeter and singer grew up in New Orleans along with jazz.

Armstrong was released from a hospital in June after 10 weeks of being treated for heart, liver and kidney diseases. But he seemed in good health and had planned to perform again. He died in his sleep of a heart attack at his New York home.

Another jazzman, Charlie Shavers, also died. He was 53. Shavers was a trumpeter and composer.

Jim Morrison, 27, the lead singer of "The Doors" rock group, died and was buried in Paris. The announcement was made in Los Angeles five days after he apparently died of natural causes due to a heart attack.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese delegations in Paris turned down a United States suggestion for an off the record meeting to discuss the Communists' latest peace plan. North Vietnam asked Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's special adviser who was expected in Paris Saturday, to discuss the plan.

Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., told a House committee that a high-ranking South Vietnamese general is one of South Vietnamese general is one of Southeast Asia's chief heroin traffickers. He identified him as Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzu, commander of the II Corps, Dzu denied the charge. Japan's Premier Eisaku Sato installed a new cabinet after a near crisis in economic relations with the United States brought on by Japan's high exports and American's high unemployment.

The New York Times finished its series on the Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Indochina war. The final installment said the United States during the 1950's had acted against North Vietnam and that North Vietnam was not alone in responsibility for the breakdown of the Geneva agreement.

The Times series, which began June 13, was interrupted while the government sought an injunction against its publication. The Supreme Court struck down the injunction.

President Nixon, in a White House ceremony, presided over formal certification of the 26th Amendment giving 18-year-old the right to vote.

Unification Amendments Given Nod

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state Board of Education has approved two amendments to the state-approved — but voter-rejected — master plan for unification of the Dixie and San Rafael school districts.

Accoring to Robert E. Spain, secretary to the county committee on school district organization, the amendments propose a unified school district with a five-member board and a consolidated general purpose tax rate not to exceed $4.822 per $100 assessed valuation.

The original master plan submitted years ago called for a seven-member board. The tax rate adjustment is needed primarily to equalize salaries between Dixie and San Rafael teachers if the plan is accepted by voters during a mandatory election in June 1972.

Under the proposal, taxpayers in the Dixie district would see a 78-cent reduction in their general purpose tax rate, while San Rafael taxpayers would see an 82-cent increase.

The last unification election between the two districts in 1966 failed on a vote of 6,789 for and 7,139 against.

Cotati Youth Gets 12 Days For Rifle

Floyd Johnny Broadwell, 18, of Cotati, was sentenced to 12 days in Marin County Jail yesterday for possessing a sawed-off rifle in a car in Corte Madera March 22.

Judge Samuel V. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court also placed him on probation for three years.

Planning Costs

Costs and revenues of the current countywide planning program, and cost of secondary road maintenance will be considered by the Marin City-County Services Committee when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in Room 332 at the Marin County Civic Center.

Another Round On Cove Apartments

The controversial Strawberry Cove apartment project plans of developer Paul J. Broman will be back before the Marin County Planning Commission Monday.

Broman has asked approval of revised plans for 72 apartments instead of the 96 for which he received county approval late last year. Complicating the issue is a letter from the Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission, again suggesting the county find some way to link Broman's project with the so-far unformulated plans of his neighboring Richardson Bay landowner, Clipper Yacht Harbor.

Broman's 96-unit is on the BCDC agenda for hearing on Aug. 5 only to obtain the bay commission's ruling on adequacy of public access to Richardson Bay. The plans do not call for any fill.

The 72-unit plans have not officially come before the BCDC, but the Marin Planning Commission and Broman asked the BCDC for informal review of the revisions last month.

Joseph E. Bodovits, BCDC executive director, wrote Thursday that the commission's board of design review now would like to see building restricted to the southermost portion of Broman's area, as well as integrated with any future Clipper lands development.

Approval of Broman's new design will be recommended by the county planning staff Monday, with a number of conditions.

The county planning commission also will hold the first of the week's two reviews of the proposed countywide general plan. It also will be discussed at the city-county planning council Thursday.

Other items on the planning commission agenda for the meeting beginning at 9 a.m. Monday in the commission chambers in the Marin County Civic Center will include:

AGRICULTURAL — A hearing on proposed text amendments to provide a variety of lot size minimums and land uses in the county's agricultural zone.

SANTA VENETIA — A hearing on the master plan proposed by Hector Rubini and Guido Farina for a resort and commercial recreation areaon the small island in Gallinas Creek off Meadow Drive.

RICHARDSON BAY — A hearing on the City of Mill Valley appeal against County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell's approval of a use permit for the Universal Land Co. to build a 100-unit motel and complete the partly-built Howard Johnson restaurant opposite the Fireside Motel, west of the Richardson Bay Bridge on Shoreline Highway.

Status Report On Commission Due On Monday

The Petaluma City Council will hear a status report on the formation of the North Coast Planning and Development Commission at an adjourned meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Sonoma Supervisor Henry Spomer is scheduled to make the report. The council will also consider appointments to various commissions and boards.

The council will also meet Tuesday in joint session with the planning commission to hear a progress report from planning consultants Williams and Mocine on the plan for Petaluma development. Both groups will also review a proposed dog kennel ordinance.

Merchant Fleet Gets $507 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has signed a $507.6 million appropriation bill to subsidize operating costs of private ship owners and build 20 to 22 new merchant ships.

The appropriation is for the second year of a 10-year program to update the U.S. merchant fleet. About 300 new ships are to be constructed during the decade. Nineteen new vessels were started the first year, and 20 to 22 will be started during the second year.

Bales Named To Regional Crime Panel

Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales has been named to serve on an expanded four-county regional criminal justice planning board.

The board was organized this year to develop a comprehensive criminal justice improvement plan for Marin, Napa, Sonoma and Solano counies and will set priorities and process applications for federal grants by police agencies.

The district attorneys of the four counties had been represented on the board by James Boitano of Napa County, but at a meeting Thursday the board voted to expand itself to include an additional district attorney and an additional sheriff.

Bales was selected to serve with Boitano by agreement of the four district attorneys.

Other Marin representatives on the board include San Rafael attorney Bella Aaron as Marin's public representative, Fairfax Councilman Lee Nelder, Corte Madera Police Chief David L. McIntosh. Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste and Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

John F. Barrows, assistant county administrator, is serving as acting chairman of the board.

Bus Plunges

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI)—A bus plunged off a bridge into a river Friday near Stanger, 45 miles from Durban. Police said 19 persons were killed and 15 injured.

Appeals Board To Eye Building Code

The Marin County Board of Appeals will meet at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Room 332 of the Marin County Civic Center, to consider revisions to the county's uniform building code.

County Building Inspector Herbert F. Wimmer, secretary to the panel, said the board of appeals' scheduled meeting June 30 was cancelled for lack of a quorum.

Forecast For End Of World Wrong

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Madalena Rosa Cavalcente had predicted she would die and the world would end Friday. Police had to rescue her from angry neighbors when neither came true.

Madalena said God had told her she would die and go to heaven in a flaming chariot as the world ended. She bought her own coffin and a white gown and waited, a crowd gathered at her home in the town of Vila Rosali.

Police said she would undergo a psychiatric examination.

Postal Waste

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The General Accounting Office has charged the Postal Department in 1966 spent more than $60 million on an automatic system of collecting payroll and mail volume information that proved largely ineffective.

Cain's Tire IS NOT On Strike AGAIN

But we are being picketed again. They say this is an information picket. The sign says Cain's is unfair. What it doesn't say is to whom!! Surely not to our employees, 'cause they're all at work. No Cain's employees are on strike — these pickets are guys the union picked off the unemployment lines, and they have plenty of those to choose from.

The thing is, Cain's Tire employees are working as usual — the union couldn't get our employees to vote union last year when we went through this — so they are trying again, which is their right. Your right is to buy tires from Cain's as usual — and I'll be dealing lower prices than ever — and when you pull in — please be nice to the picket — he's only there to inform you about something? . . . And to pick up a few bucks. If he could change tires, I could probably put him to work — but then carrying a sign is easier.

Pays you at the rate of $600.00-A-MONTH tax-free cash when you're hospitalized...even for life, if necessary.

PAYS YOU CASH... at the rate of $600.00 A MONTH for each accident or illness—even for life, if necessary. Coverage for sickness starts 30 days after the policy Effective Date; accident coverage becomes effective immediately. You receive benefits for accidents from your very first day in the hospital; sickness benefits begin the sixth day of hospitalization.

PAYS YOU CASH... at the rate of $300.00 A MONTH for first 3 months after you have reached age 65, and $600.00 monthly thereafter, while you remain in the hospital—even for life, if necessary. Coverage for sickness starts 30 days after the policy Effective Date; accident coverage becomes effective immediately. You receive benefits for accidents from your very first day in the hospital; sickness benefits begin the sixth day of hospitalization.

PAYS YOU CASH... at the rate of $360.00 A MONTH if a covered child is hospitalized for injury or illness. Coverage for sickness starts 30 days after the policy Effective Date; accident coverage becomes effective immediately. You receive benefits for accidents from your very first day in the hospital; sickness benefits begin the sixth day of hospitalization.

PAYS YOU CASH... when both insured husband and wife are hospitalized at the same time because of accidental injury. Collect DOUBLE CASH BENEFITS every month—$2,400.00 A MONTH (when under age 65)—for as long as both remain in the hospital — even for life, if necessary.

ONE out of two families will have someone in the hospital this year! It could be you—or some beloved member of your family—tomorrow . . . next week . . . next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have more than doubled in just a few short years.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have the answer in this National Home plan.

Pays you $600.00-a-month tax-free cash when you are hospitalized.

What a blessing it is when you know you have $600.00 cash coming in every month — beginning the very first day you enter the hospital due to an accident, and the sixth day for confinements due to sickness.

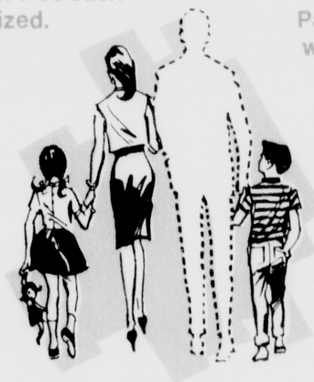
All benefits of this $600.00-a-month plan are paid directly to you in tax-free cash, in addition to whatever you may receive from your insurance with any other companies. Use the money as you see fit—for hospital or doctors' bills, to replace savings, mortgage or rent payments—or any necessary, but costly, extras not fully covered by other hospital policies.

For older folks—greater protection than you ever would have thought possible!

This National Home Hospital Plan (NH10-669 Cal.) welcomes folks of all ages. Yes, even if you're 65 or over, even if you're OVER 100—each time you go to the hospital you collect cash benefits. To get complete information on our special plan for folks 65 and over, just fill out the coupon on the back page, and we will send full details as soon as we receive your inquiry.

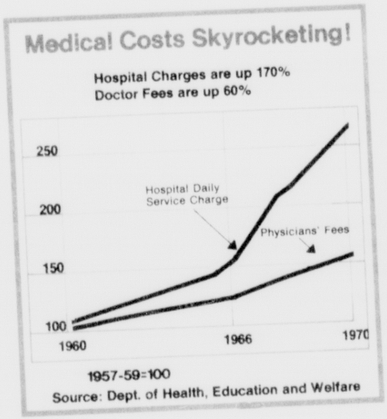


Pays you $360.00-a-month cash whenever any dependent child is hospitalized.

When you choose Coverage for Children, all your unmarried dependent children from age one month through 18 years are covered, too! What's more, any newborn children you have in the future are covered automatically at the age of one month—at no additional cost to you. And when any of your children go to the hospital, this National Home plan pays you at the rate of $360.00-a-month cash, for as long as necessary. Children are covered for accidents from the first day and for sickness from the sixth day.

Pays you at the rate of $600.00 a month for Maternity Benefits!

Other hospital insurance may take care of part of your expenses when you go to the hospital to have a baby. But now, this plan can give you additional help when the new baby arrives. If Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits are added to the basic plan, you get tax-free cash to use any way you want. If a pregnancy, childbirth or even miscarriage puts you in the hospital for one day, five days, ten days—as long as necessary—you get cash benefits for every day of your confinement.



Pays you $400.00-a-month cash for a Registered Nurse at Home.

Yes, in addition to the $600.00-a-month cash we send you for your hospital stay, we pay you an additional $400.00 a month if the doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse to take care of you at home.

How comforting it is to know that—after your stay in the hospital, if you've been there five days or more for which benefits were payable—you can return home to recuperate and yet not be a burden to your loved ones. Yes, if your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse within 5 days after you come home, we'll pay you benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month. And your benefits continue up to 12 full months.

Double Cash Accident Benefit.

When you and your insured spouse are hospitalized at the same time for an accidental injury, this National Home plan pays you an EXTRAORDINARY DOUBLE CASH BENEFIT. You receive not $600.00 but $1,200.00 a month. Your spouse receives not $600.00 but $1,200.00 a month. That's $2,400.00 in cash payments to you every month (when under age 65) starting the day you enter the hospital for as long as you both remain there.

Pays you up to $2,000.00 cash for these accidental losses . . .

The accidental loss of limbs or eyesight can be terrible. But if such loss occurs within 90 days of the accident, you collect $1,000.00 for the complete loss of a hand or a foot or the sight of an eye — and $2,000.00 for loss of two limbs or the sight of both eyes.

Waiver of premium benefit.

Should you or your spouse be hospitalized for eight consecutive weeks or more, this National Home plan will PAY ALL PREMIUMS that come due for you and all Covered Members of your family while you are confined to the hospital beyond this initial eight-week period. And your protection continues just the same as if you were paying the premiums yourself. Then, if you leave the hospital and must return for the same condition before you have resumed full normal activities for 90 days, we will again pay any premiums coming due while you are in the hospital. This means you pay no premiums, yet your full protection remains in force for as long as you are in the hospital.

Your National Home policy covers every kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or functional nervous disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and expenses resulting from any sickness or injury originating before the Effective Date of your policy . . . during the first 2 years only.

This last provision is a real help if you already have a health problem. If you are sick before you take out this policy, you will even be covered for that condition after the policy has been in effect for only 2 years. Meanwhile, of course, every new condition is covered.

Pays in addition to any other coverage you have—tax-free—to use as you see fit.

Nationally known and respected.

This is the kind of outstanding protection you may have seen in Reader's Digest, Parents', National Geographic and other leading publications. The special plans offered by the National Liberty Corporation group of companies are today helping policyowners in all 50 states — and many foreign countries — paying benefits at the rate of more than $1,500,000.00 a month. In addition, our Company has a RECOMMENDED rating from Best's Insurance Reports, one of the foremost insurance authorities in the nation.

Why you must act before the date shown on your Enrollment Form—just a few days from today.

Why do we give you so little time to enroll in this plan? Because this is a guaranteed enrollment offer, we can open the enrollment only during a limited time period—with a firm deadline date for everyone. To provide you with this broad coverage at these rates, we must receive your Enrollment Form during the same period as all the others.

Here are your low renewal rates.

The following rate chart shows how little it costs, after the first month, to cover yourself, your spouse or any adult dependent. Naturally, at these low rates, we can issue you only one policy of this type. Each adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown for his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium per Adult
16-44	only $3.45
45-49	only $4.00
50-54	only $4.40
55-64	only $5.10

Only $1.80 more per month covers all your unmarried dependent children . . . from the age of 1 month through 18 years. Newborn children are covered automatically at the age of one month — at no additional cost. For Maternity

65 or OVER?

Write for complete information on our health plan for folks 65 or over. Just print your name and address on the coupon on the back page of this booklet; then cut it out and mail in the post paid reply envelope. We will promptly send you full details.

Benefits just add $1.35 monthly if both husband and wife are covered — or $2.10 monthly if the wife only is insured.

NOTE: The regular monthly premium shown (for age at time of enrollment) will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled in this National Home plan, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age—but only if there is a general rate adjustment up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state.

Act now—"later" may be too late!

TIME IS PRECIOUS! Act quickly. (No salesman will call.) Get your Enrollment Form and Introductory Premium into the mail today—because once you suffer an accident or sickness, it's TOO LATE to buy protection at any cost. That's why we urge you to act today—before anything unexpected happens.

Money-Back Guarantee

We will send your National Home policy by mail. Examine it carefully. If you decide, for any reason, that you don't want to continue as a member of this plan, return the policy within 15 days of the date you receive it, and we will promptly refund your money.

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED

1. How much will I be paid when I go to the hospital?

You will receive cash benefits at the rate of $600.00 a month ($20.00 a day), whenever you are hospitalized. Your coverage begins as soon as we receive your Introductory Premium—this is the day you are covered for any accident. Sickness coverage begins 30 days after the policy is issued. Once you have reached 65 years of age, you collect in addition to any Medicare benefits—$300.00 a month for the first three months, and $600.00 monthly while you remain continuously hospitalized afterwards.

2. Do you pay me cash when my children go to the hospital?

You collect cash benefits at the rate of $360.00 a month any time your child goes to the hospital, when Coverage for Children is added to the basic plan . . . each time any unmarried dependent child (age 1 month through 18 years) is in the hospital for sickness or injury.

3. When do I start to collect hospital benefits?

This new plan (NH10-669 Cal.) covers you from the very first day for accidents and from the sixth day for sickness—even for life, if necessary. Most everyone has some insurance or savings to take care of a one to five-day hospital stay. Since we provide lifetime benefits, this "deductible" feature enables us to give you broad coverage at a lower cost than would otherwise be possible.

4. Will you pay me cash benefits for pregnancy?

Yes. While some health plans don't cover pregnancy, we do. When you have Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits, you collect benefits at the rate of $600.00 a month for each pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage that results in a hospital stay. (The wife only must be enrolled in this plan for the entire pregnancy.)

5. Will my protection be cancelled because I have too many claims? Or because of advanced age?

No! Only you can cancel. The company cannot—no matter how many claims you have or how old you become . . . or for any other reason whatsoever. A Guaranteed-Renewable-for-Life clause has been written into your policy, and we're bound by it.

6. Now tell me what's the "catch" — what doesn't my policy cover?

Get ready for a welcome surprise. Your policy covers everything except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or functional nervous disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and any sickness or injury originating before the Effective Date of your policy—but even this last "exclusion" is done away with after you've been a policyowner for two years. Everything else is definitely covered. You will be covered in any hospital of your choice, except, of course, a U.S. Government hospital or a nursing or convalescent facility.

7. What are the requirements to enroll in this National Home plan?

You must not have been refused or had cancelled any health, hospital or life insurance due to reasons of health; and, to qualify during this Enrollment Period you must enroll before midnight of the date shown on the Enrollment Form.

8. Besides saving money — are there any other advantages to joining this plan now?

Yes. A very important one is that you don't need to complete a lengthy, detailed application—just the brief Enrollment Form on the back of this booklet. Also during this Enrollment Period there are no requirements for eligibility and no "waivers" or restrictive endorsements can be put on your policy.

9. How do I enroll?

Fill out the brief Enrollment Form and mail it with your Introductory Premium for the first month's protection for your entire family—before midnight of the date shown. Mail to: National Home, Valley Forge, Pennsylvania 19481.

Fast, Reliable Claim Service

You never really know how good a policy is until you have to make a claim. That's why we think you'll be interested in what some of our National Home policyowners have to say.

"I took out the policy and had only paid two monthly premiums when I was unexpectedly put in the hospital. Was there 11 days and the National Home Life Assurance Company paid exactly what they had said they would. How happy we were we had taken the policy out."
DEWEY M. FAILOR, Upper Sandusky, Ohio

"Thank you for the check in payment of my recent claim. I am well satisfied with the service. I will certainly recommend your company at every opportunity."
ALGIE M. DAVIS, Waterville, Maine

"I was more than satisfied with the way my claim was handled. One couldn't ask for better service and the 'get well soon' message was one of the nicest thoughts on your part. I thank you sincerely."
MARGUERITE LINDAU, Duluth, Minnesota

National Liberty commended in the Congressional Record of the United States Congress

National Liberty Corporation, parent of National Home Life Assurance Company, has been commended in the United States Congressional Record for bringing low-cost insurance to the general public: "National Liberty deserves recognition for providing service beyond the expected, service willingly offered to those who are not being cared for in other ways. This is the secret of success for its low-cost insurance plans. With the highest public interest at heart, the National Liberty Corporation group of companies combines reliability and quality of service with noteworthy price advantages. It is to be commended on its leadership and vision in this field of human welfare."

Decorated accents make a room vibrant

Now, at low sale prices, bring a gay splash of color home and enjoy a timeless folk art. Ethan Allen's famous American Traditional skill in hand-decorating authentic designs on furniture is so much in tune with today's hand-crafted look. This art is so painstaking, it often takes from 5-6 stencils to recapture the detail of the original motif. Pick your favorites—give them as gifts for weddings or housewarmings.

Where hand-stencil motifs came from.

Patterns used in Colonial times were taken from American Indian designs — eagles, animals, bolts of lightning. The Swiss and Germans brought over the Tree of Life, Tulip and Daisy designs. More sophisticated classical subjects were based on the Acanthus leaf, honeysuckle, urns and fruit painted on furniture from England and France. All of these were adapted by our early craftsmen.

What a pampering chair to come home to! And what inviting reductions! Each style delivers superb comfort as a rocker, club chair and recliner. For the large man, the high back style offers excellent support. In all three, the slightest pressure of body weight adjusts the entire chair to any one of three positions. The extra-thrust footrest adds extra length to the full reclining position to permit stretch-out leg room for even the tallest person. Pick your favorite now.

Is this an English cottage or an Early American home? No, but now you can recreate their romantic atmosphere at low sale tags. Our recipe—a dramatic fireplace, stucco walls, two very compatible woods: solid Antiqued Pine with richly distressed Old Tavern finish and imported English Oak, both with selected veneers. Each wood is bold and rugged-looking. The Pine buffet and hutch have charming panelled and scalloped details, "worn" edges. There's a choice of two Pine table and chair styles, too. And the Oak designs are exclusive Ethan Allen imports, prominently grained, beautifully hand-carved with 17th century Gothic arches, spirals, fascinating grapevine patterns—even the Sussex coat of arms.

A Marin Profile: Bert Balmer Fits His Tiburon Post

By GEORGE NEVIN

Tiburon and its new city manager, Bert A. Balmer, appear to be made for each other.

A dedicated conservationist who just completed a book on the preservation of the wilderness, Balmer sees a challenge and an opportunity in Tiburon's remaining areas of open space.

"This is a city just getting ready to grow," the 54-year-old Balmer said the other day, predicting that Tiburon's population will increase from its present 6,000 to 30,000 eventually. "It's exciting to have such a large area of land that isn't developed yet.

"I'd like to see the finished Tiburon a beautiful place with open space along the ridges and shoreline."

HE IS AN articulate man — not surprising, considering his Mater's Degree in creative writing — who punctuates his remarks with quick, incisive hand movements.

Balmer sees great differences between Tiburon and Mill Valley, where he served for six years as city manager before resigning in 1969 to write his book.

"Mill Valley was a well established city when I was there; its patterns and physical features were already developed," he said. "Tiburon on the other hand is a young city, with more than half of its area undeveloped."

GIVEN HIS upbringing in the Cascade Range of Washington and his love of nature, the city manager would seem to be an ideal choice as the man who will oversee that development.

"Most cities are too far gone to ever become beautiful, but Tiburon is an exception," he said. "It's a vital city; Mill Valley is a static city."

Perhaps it is this attraction that led Balmer to give up a $20,123 salary in Mill Valley to write hs book and then to accept the Tiburon position at $18,600 per year.

BALMER SAID he had no qualms about assuming the direction of Tiburon, the city which was his chief opponent and obstacle to his annexation proposals as Mill Valley city manager.

"There haven't been any problems adjusting to working in Tiburon," he said with a smile.

During Balmer's stay in Mill Valley, he engineered the annexation of 597 acres to that city, mostly in the North Ridge, Alto Bowl and tidelands areas.

HIS PLAN TO annex all unincorporated land from Tiburon to the Pacific Ocean did not materialize, however, and efforts to bring the tax-rich Strawberry Town and Country Village Shopping Center into the Mill Valley municipal fold were fought fiercely by Tiburon and thwarted.

With his reputation as an annexation specialist, Balmer will find that skill much in demand in Tiburon. With the blessing of the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission, Tiburon has embarked on a program to absorb the Bel-Aire-Eagle Rock area and the entire Strawberry Peninsula.

Balmer is confident the annexation movement will succeed. Tiburon offers improved police protection to Strawberry, he said, but most of all it offers a chance for local determination of its planning affairs, a power now vested with the county.

IN CHOOSING him as city manager, Balmer feels, the Tiburon City Council opted for "an experienced, more mature person who could build the city and save the environment at the same time." The alternative, he said, was a young administrator who would stay only a few years.

The silver-haired Balmer sees himself as "a strong manager. Once an ordinance is passed, I don't expect to go back to the council unless, a special problem comes up.

"Local government is best when the council is the legislative body and puts its trust in the staff. If the staff is weak, the government begins to fall apart."

CHANGES IN Tiburon's appearance already are apparent under Balmer. One surface difference that is perhaps indicative of more significant shifts is the rearrangement of the front offices at city hall. No longer cramped and close, they now give a more open, inviting look.

Another difference: Lawrence D. Rose, who preceded Balmer as city manager, believed in the committee system. Under this system two city councilmen would study a problem, arrive at a proposed solution and make a recommendation to the city council.

A committee report, coming as it did from two councilmen, was deemed to have been moved and seconded by them, and only one more vote was needed to approve the action.

BERT A. BALMER became city manager of Tiburon on Feb. 22, 1971, intrigued by the opportunities presented by a young municipality within whose confines there are still large, undeveloped spaces. His previous experience includes six years as Mill Valley city manager, the authorship of a book on conservation, service as a combat historian in World War II and work as a consultant to state government and various cities in his native Washington.

BALMER HOPES to phase out the committee system.

"I don't like it," he said. "It's not necessary with a strong staff. It's burdensome and slows things down. Committees take away some of the responsibility of the city manager."

Curiously, despite their basic differences, Balmer and Rose do share one similarity: both were writers before becoming involved in city government.

ROSE WAS publisher of the Monterey Pine Cone prior to moving to Tiburon, and Balmer majored in English and creative writing and worked as an official historical writer for the Army during World War II.

Bert A. Balmer was born in Cle Elum, Wash., a small town (population 2,206) in the Cascade Mountains. He lived there until he finished the fifth grade, then moved to Seattle to complete his schooling.

World War II invervened during his college years at the University of Washington, and Balmer was assigned first to the Army and later to the War Department as an official combat historian.

"IT WAS MY job to interview the top generals after battles, They had to talk to me; they couldn't refuse," he said. "If I didn't understand the operation as they explained it, I was entitled to go out into the field and talk to the troops directly."

As a result of his experiences as a combat historian, Balmer said "I knew more about the battles than anyone else, including the generals themselves. I really saw what war was, and why things went wrong."

Balmer was assigned to battles in the Pacific Theater, including Guadalcanal and Okinawa, where he was wounded. He still draws a 20 per cent disability pension.

HIS WAR writings were combined with those of other battle historians and made a part of the official record of World War II. They are now on file at the Pentagon, he said.

After the war, Balmer returned to college and received his Master's Degree in creative writing in 1948. He then served as a municipal consultant to the state government and several cities in Washington, helping them solve local problems.

In 1959 Balmer, having chosen government rather than writing as a career, became assistant city manager of Redwood City. He took a similar post in Fresno in 1962, and come to Mill Valley as city manager in 1964.

ALTHOUGH HIS primary interest during these years was government, he did not forego writing completely. He combined the two interest by working as correspondent for Western City Magazine.

But the choice between administration and communication was not easy, and in 1969 Balmer resigned as Mill Valley's city manager and took his wife, Mary, and three children, John, Kelly and James, to the remote tip of Vancouver Island on the Juan de Fuca Strait in Canada.

Balmer described his book, which is now in the hands of publishers in New York, as a "labor of love."

"I wanted to write it for a number of years," he said. "I tried to finish it in Mill Valley but my job there was too demanding. Finally I decided to quit the job and concentrate on the book."

LIVING ON the water's edge in Canada was precisely the tonic he needed. "It was a joy waking up in the morning," he said.

From the shore he could see killer whales and sea lions swim by, sharing the busy channel with freighters, tugs and fishing boats.

The book, which took more than a year to complete, concerns the nature and character of the wilderness and the ecology of the outdoors, Balmer said. It draws on his experiences as a child growing up in the Cascades and his extensive hikes through the mountains.

FOR HIS future work in Tiburon, Balmer foresees even closer cooperation between Tiburon and Belvedere in several areas — law enforcement, flood control, planning and other municipal services.

"In these days of high cost of government, one of the answers is more agreements between cities," he said. "It's logical for Belvedere to contract with Tiburon for police and fire protection and such services as street maintenance."

JAMES MILLER and his wife, the former Mary Murphy, both born in County Wexford, Ireland, in the early 19th Century, were married at Frampton, Canada, in 1834. They were members of a historic wagon train party that pioneered the overland crossing of the Plains, the Rockies and the Sierra to California. And they settled in Marin County, to raise a large family and to become among Marin's most prominent early-day residents. The photographs are the property of William J. Miller of Corte Madera, great-grandson of James Miller.

The Story Of The Millers Of Marin

Pioneer Family Helped Lead The Way When The Wagon Trains Rolled West

(Editor's Note: This is another of the manuscripts on early-day Marin County completed by the late historian, Florence Donnelly, for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine prior to her death.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

It is a story that begins in County Wexford on Ireland's east coast with the birth of Martin Murphy on Nov. 12, 1785. Murphy grew up in Wexford and married Mary Foley. They had a number of children including Mary Murphy who was to become the wife of James Miller, patriarch of the Marin clan.

MARTIN MURPHY was filled with the spirit of Irish nationalism and embittered by British rule in Ireland. It was in search of political freedom and greater economic opportunity that he brought his family to North America, sailing for Canada in 1820 and settling on a farm at Frampton near Quebec.

Both the soil and climate proved unfriendly, and the family's stay there was relatively short.

But it was at Frampton that Mary Murphy was married to James Miller. He, too, had been born in County Wexford, on May 1, 1814, and he had been brought by his parents at age 14 to Canada.

MILLER WAS 20 when he was married, and he and Mary began to rear a family. When Martin Murphy decided to move his clan further south, into the United States, the Millers accompanied them. Most of the trip was made by river and lake, with the Murphys and the Millers eventually settling in Holt County, Mo., in a community known as Irish Grove.

There the soil was rich and the crops good. But malaria plagued the settlers, and Martin Murphy's wife and three of their daughters were among those who succumbed to the disease. Furthermore there were no religious or educational facilities available.

The colonists were still dazed from the onslaughts of malaria when they were visited in 1843 by a missionary priest who told them glowing tales of the west coast where the Franciscans had established missions, and where the climate was mild and the valleys fertile.

THE PRIEST could offer only vague information he had gleaned from hunters and trappers of the route to be followed, but the Murphys, the Millers and some of their neighbors vowed that in the spring they would head west for California and Oregon.

Circumstances in the early spring of 1844 brought them into contact with a remarkable man by tha name of Elisha Stevens who was also bent on heading west to Oregon.

Irving Stone, in his best-selling "Men to Match My Mountains" described Stevens as "probably the ugliest man to cross the plains," but gave high marks to his character and ability.

STEVENS, HE wrote, was about 40, South Carolina-born of a French Huguenot family. He had been raised in Georgia and had become a blacksmith, but had spent most of his years as a hunter and trapper in the Northwest.

He was described as a lean, turkey-necked man with a strong, narrow, misshapen head and a huge beaked nose that made him look like an eagle. He was taciturn, but courteous.

And although he was a stranger to the 20-member Murphy clan and to their neighbors, the Townsends and Montgomerys, in only a matter of days they decided upon him as the leader for their overland crossing to the West.

ALL IN ALL, it was an unusually well-prepared party that gathered at Council Bluffs in May. There were 13 wagons in the train, all 13 in good condition, some of them built especially for the trip. Good oxen were available to haul the wagons, and horses and a large herd of cattle were also to accompany the party.

An authentic medical man, Dr. John Townsend, was included in the party, as were a blacksmith and a gunsmith.

Caleb Greenwood, an experienced mountain and plains man, was hired as a guide. And with him were his two half-breed sons, as well as three French Canadians with backwoods experience.

ONLY FOUR OF the 26 men in the party could be considered old. The others ranged from

MILLER HALL was the large and luxurious dwelling that pioneer James Miller built for his family upon the Las Gallinas Rancho land deeded to Miller by his fellow Irishman, Don Timoteo Murphy. The place was famous for its hospitality, and remained the quarters of the Miller family through the years that saw James Miller expand his holdings extensively. The location today is the site of the Marinwood development.

three 17-year-old youths to Stevens' 40 years. Of the eight grown women, five were wives under 36, one a widow and two unmarried girls.

The participating families had all put in supplies to last them eight months.

All in the party buried any personal differences, and all put their complete trust in Stevens. This proved wise, for he provided a caliber of leadership that was sadly missing in the later ill-fated Donner Party.

The wagons crossed the Missouri River and continued west without difficulty until they reached the banks of the Elkhorn. Here a crude ferryboat was improvised by making one of the wagon boxes water-tight with a covering of rawhides. The other wagons were then dismantled, and these and their contents ferried laboriously across the river.

The oxen, cattle and horses were then forced to ford and swim the river where, on the other bank, the train was reassembled.

AGAIN THE party moved on across the plains, sighting young buffalo along their way that provided them with fresh meat.

A stopover of several days allowed both people and animals to rest, and also permitted the travelers to trade some of their horses for Indian ponies, which they believed to be hardier, and to purchase mocassins from the Indians to replace worn-out shoes.

Although the relationship with the Indians was friendly, sentinels were posted at night and a vigilance maintained.

THE NEXT stop occurred at Independence Rock near the Sweetwater River, to permit the killing of buffalo and the drying of the meat. While the hunting party was out, Mrs. James Miller gave birth to a daughter who was named Ellen Independence.

There was an anxious day when the pioneers were completely out of water, until they reached the Green River. And a tense moment when a scouting party encountered two mounted Indians, and a short time later the entire wagon train was surrounded by shouting, whooping redskins.

The party stood its ground, rifles in hand, as the Indians came nearer. The the Indians' hands came out in a gesture of friendship. And the mountain men in the party recognized the newcomers as friendly Shoshones.

AT FORT HALL another rest stop was made. There flour, for a d o l l a r a pound, and other provisions could be bought. And here, too, according to most sources, the California-bound parted with those destined for Oregon. From then on, Martin Murphy and James Miller were in charge of the wagons headed for California, and the Stevens Party became the Murphy-Miller Party. (Although Stone's account d i s a g r e e s and has Stevens continuing with the California group.)

The wagon train t u r n e d southwest and followed the Humboldt River until they reached its sink and were confronted with only alkali water for drinking. There was uncertainty now as to the best direction. But by good fortune, a kindly Piute Indian appeared and by making drawings in the sandy soil, indicated there was a river ahead where the water and grass were good.

Scouts rode ahead with the Indian, now called Truckee because he resembled a French-Indian of that name some of the white men had known in Canada, to explore. They returned to report that Truckee had told the truth.

BUT EVEN as the t e a m s were being harnessed to resume the journey, an incident that nearly spelled disaster occurred.

Moses Schellenberger, brother-in-law of Dr. Townsend, d i s c o v e r e d that a halter was missing from his wagon. Hot-tempered and incensed, he seized his rifle and pointed it at a nearby Indian he suspected of the theft.

Moving quickly, Martin Murphy took the weapon away from the youth. But now the Indians were angered. And it took some time — and some presents — before they were mollified.

The party now was moving across the desert under a broiling sun. For 36 h o u r s they marched without a stop. Then after a two-hour halt at Boiling Springs, they continued on another 12 hours, which brought them to the promised river which they named the Truckee in honor of their Indian benefactor.

AGAIN THERE was a pause before the travelers began to struggle up the east side of the Sierra. Much of the time they moved along the Truckee's bed. Even then progress was slow, and they were soon confronted by snow that buried the grass.

The oxen were footsore and hungry, and their piteous bawling made the emigrants forget their own misery in their sympathy for their animals. At one point the crooked stream had to be crossed 10 times in a single day. But after weeks of winding up and down the canyons the party eventually reached a river fork where a lush meadow invited them to set up camp. Ahead were forbidding domes of granit.

Once more scouts rode out, and it was Daniel Murphy who made it all the way to Lake Tahoe, gazed up those waters enraptured, then continued to St. Clair's Rancho.

THE MAIN party followed along the bed of the L i t t l e Truckee to what became known as Donner Lake. There another stop was called. And there Dr. Townsend and Moses Schellenberger decided to leave behind some luxury items such as silks and satins that hey had brought along to sell in California. Their wagons, they decided, had to be lightened for the mountains that lay ahead.

Young Schellenberger agreed to remain at Donner Lake with the goods until his brother-in-law could return with help. Two other young men, Joseph Foster and Allen Montgomery, were willing to remain with him. They built the cabin that was later to be occupied by Patrick Breen of the Donner Party.

The food supply of the trio dwindled rapidly and they were faced with starvation. Foster and Montgomery left, following after the wagons. But Schellenberger was left in the cabin with what remained of the food, too frail to travel farther.

TWO F E E T OF snow had f a l l e n onto the face of the mountain that the Murphy-Miller party had to c o n q u e r to reach the Pacific. Wagons were unloaded and their contents carried on the backs of men. The teams were then doubled and tripled to haul the empty wagons up the mountain.

Wrote Stone: "Halfway up the mountain the party met a vertical cliff, solidly blocking the trail. Inch-by-inch searching revealed a narrow crevice by means of which a man could painstakingly lead the oxen one at a time up through the face of the rock.

"Then, at the bottom, chains were fastened to the tongue of a wagon and c a t t l e at the top hitched to the chains, the men at the bottom p u s h i n g and straining and shoving the wagons, the animals hauling from above.

"EVERY LAST wagon was successfully brought up the face of the formidable rock. Again men had matched the mountains."

A 25-mile push westward brought them to the Yuba River's headwaters. By then, full winter had overtaken them, so they made c a m p , well prepared, except for their worries about young Schellenberger, to wait out the snows.

Finally, in February, concern had grown until Dennis Martin, carrying a heavy pack of food and medical supplies, rode back over the Sierra through heavily drifted gulches to the cabin where Schellenberger had been left. He found the young man in a state of collapse, but nursed him back to health, and then took him on to the camp on the Yuba.

WHILE MOST of the party spent the winter on the Yuba, some of its able-bodied men had pressed on down the moun-

THIS ARTIST'S SKETCH gives another impression of Miller Hall, the showplace home of the James Miller family in the Las Gallinas Valley. It shows the circular pool in front of the mansion that made such a pleasant i m p r e s s i o n upon visitors coming to enjoy the famed hospitality of the home and the beauty of its landscaped grounds. At first beef cattle and then dairy cattle were raised upon the ranch by the hard-working and prospering Miller.

"What Happened To The Design On My Housedress?"

Designs are applied to fabrics in various ways. One, which was used on your dress, is a "pigment print." This method is often difficult to distinguish from a regularly printed fabric, though a "pigment print" usually appears heavy and intense in color. Such a print is not a dye, but a finely ground insoluable pigment mixed with a binder and printed on the fabric. It does not enter the fabric.

The trouble you encountered is that the pigment binder selected was not intended for a fabric that would be drycleaned. The same pigment removal will result from the use of a poor pigment binder or improper curing at the required temperature.

Many pigment prints will withstand repeated drycleaning. However, it is best to test a pigment print on an unexposed seam with a sample of drycleaning solvent. Discoloration of the solvent or any change in color in the f a b r i c will warn against drycleaning. In your situation, Mrs. T.T.R., the pigment print was lost and cannot be restored.

tain side and had reached Sutter's Fort in mid-December of 1844.

When they returned it was with word that there was trouble between the Mexican authorities in California and the oncoming wave of American immigrants. While James Miller and a few of the men remained with the women and children, Martin Murphy took the rest of the male members of his party to Sutter's Fort where they volunteered for a military foray being planned by the Americans.

The affair proved a farce. The rifle-armed Americans marched toward Southern California, but the result was a rout, and John M. Murphy, 19, was one of a scouting party of 15 taken prisoners and held five days before being released on parole.

THE MURPHYS then rode back north, stopping at Monterey for provisions. Upon their return to the Yuba River camp they were greeted with the news that their numbers had been increased during their absence. Mrs. Martin Murphy Jr. had given birth to a daughter — named Elizabeth Yuba.

Finally, the Murphy-Miller party broke up the Yuba camp and the wagons rolled on to Sutter's Fort, arriving in March of 1845 to complete the long journey.

Wrote historian Hubert Howe Bancroft: "The Murphy Party was thus the first to open a wagon trail across the plains to California . . . They were also the first to cross the Sierra by way of Truckee and Bear rivers, and their train contained the first emigrant wagons that ever made tracks on California soil."

HITTELL'S "History of California" agrees that:

"The Murphy Party are said to have been the first, or at least the most successful, in getting through with ease and bringing their wagons safely over the mountains. It was their good fortune, owing chiefly to their good management, to conciliate the Indians all along the route.

That same source says the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Murphy Jr. was the first child of American overland immigrants to be born in California.

THE SENIOR Murphy and his large family settled in the Santa Clara Valley. There Murphy bought Rancho de Agua de la Coche, which had been granted to Juan Maria Hernandez on Aug. 5, 1835, and built an adobe hacienda not far from the town of Morgan Hill.

Martin Murphy Sr. lived well into his 80s. His grandson, Martin J.C. Murphy, received the U.S. patent to the rancho of 8,927 fertile Santa Clara Valley acres in 1860.

But James Miller, his wife and their children came to Marin County in 1845, and were greeted by colorful Don Timoteo Murphy who was delighted to learn that the newcomers hailed from near Wexford where he was born.

DON TIMOTEO offered to deed Miller 680 acres on the Las Gallinas Rancho where the Millers had camped on their first night in Marin. The agreement was made in 1846 and the Miller family moved upon the land, although it was not officially recorded until 1850.

It was thus the first deed to be recorded in Marin after the admission of California to the Union.

Bancroft reports that the eldest son, William J. Miller, was already 12 when the family arrived in Marin, and that there were also three daughters at that time. Here the family increased to eventually number 10 children — William J., Kate, Mary, Martin, Ellen, Julia, Frances, Therese, Bernard and Josephine.

MILLER PROVED a hard-working and shrewd man. He built up a large herd of cows and acquired horses and mules. And he built a shake house for his family that was replaced first by an adobe dwelling and then by a much larger and more pretentious residence that came to be known as Miller Hall.

The Marin County History described it as "a square building, massive in appearance and commodiously apportioned into convenient apartments. From the broad verandahs, which surround the edifice, a grand view of varied scenery is obtained, while the house stands the central figure of tastefully laid out grounds and well wooded groves.

"Contiguous to the mansion are the well-appointed farm offices, where a large dairying business is conducted.

"BESIDES OWNING a considerable quantity of real estate in the thriving town of San Rafael, he (James Miller) is the proprietor of no less than 8,000 acres of land in different parts of Marin County."

Thus Miller had added extensively to the "home" ranch by the time the history was published — in 1880.

He was content to remain upon his Marin land except for one money-making adventure in 1849. Then he, his son and their vaqueros drove 150 head of steers to the placer mines in the Gold Rush country where they slaughtered the beeves and sold the meat for a dollar a pound for a good profit.

By 1864 Miller was prosperously engaged in dairying on a large scale, selling milk and butter to the San Francisco market.

The Millers saw to it that their children received good educations. The older ones were taught at home by tutors and governesses. Later the boys were sent to the college at Santa Clara that is now the University of Santa Clara, while the girls went to Catholic convents to study.

When youngest son Bernard was 6, Miller contributed land for a school site, and the Dixie School was erected there.

ALTHOUGH transportation was difficult, the Millers and their relatives, the Murphys, exchanged frequent and long visits, no doubt often talking over their difficult crossing to the West.

The James Millers' oldest son, William J., worked for his father on the ranch, then began his own business career early, buying land and cattle and carrying on extensive building operations. He owned a large ranch at Nicasio where he built a three-story hotel fronting on the village square.

William J., who had been born in Canada, often recalled the days when he came west with his family.

"My father," he said, "was captain of the party, and everything was done with military precision.

"EVERY MAN and woman had certain duties to perform, and these were done without a murmur. We had scouts go ahead and pick out our camping places for the night. Other men had to harness and unharness the horses and oxen and take them to pasture.

"The men, working in shifts, guarded the wagon train from attack by the Indians. The women attended to the cooking and other duties, and the boys of the party gathered the firewood.

"The crossing of the plains through the intense heat and the tortures we suffered at times from the alkali and scarcity of water were indes-

History Of The Miller Family

WILLIAM J. MILLER, oldest son of the James Millers, built this home in San Rafael at the corner of Fifth and B in 1887. It was later the home of the Fred Gibsons, and then was acquired by the San Rafael Elks Lodge and converted into a clubhouse. It was sold in 1963 to the Bank of Marin, which razed it to make room for its present modern bank building on the site.

cribable. We had to go miles in search of the chips of the dried manure of the buffalo for fuel.

"ONE DAY would be lovely and the following would be coupled with misery and sorrow, and the undertaking was really heroic — sufficient to immortalize those who succeeded in its accomplishment.

"After weeks of drudgery and suffering, not to mention the fear of attack and possible annihilation by Indians, the monotony wore off as the snow-capped Rocky Mountains, in their solemn grandeur, arose in front of us. For a few days the change kindled within the human breast a hope that from the summit of the highest pass through those rugged mountains we would soon procure a glimpse of the land of sunshine, fruit and flowers, which we were soon to possess."

But still a long journey lay ahead of the travelers with the ordeal in the Sierra described by Stone, Bancroft and others.

"And there were times," related William J. Miller, "when the hide of the buffalo or the riata was used to make soup for our hungry and fatigued wanderers."

WILLIAM J. Miller was also the source of information about happier days, after the Irish Millers had settled in Marin County, learned the Spanish language and quickly adapted themselves to the Spanish-flavored customs of gracious and hospitable living of the area.

Of Miller Hall, he said: "It was the mecca of the young aristocrats of the county and many delightful functions were held there. In the large fireplace in the spacious parlor the coffee pot always swung on the crane and delicious refreshments were served by the young folk."

Other early-day Marinites have left their recollections of Miller Hall hospitality and spoke of the beauty of its gardens, and of the fountain that "sprayed and played" in the circular pool at the entrance driveway.

IN A DIFFERENT light, two of the Miller girls had stood up as godmothers to two Indian babies. When their mother died, the father brought the Indian children in baskets to Miller Hall and presented them to their godmothers. The Millers raised the Indian youngsters as part of their household.

Sorrow invaded Miller Hall when the James Millers' daughter Julia died May 30, 1880. Mrs. Miller, weakened by grief, followed her on Dec. 26, 1882, and in October of 1888, a son, Martin, was killed in a railroad accident.

Finally, on Nov. 25, 1890, the long trail came to an end for intrepid pioneer James Miller after a prolonged illness.

THE FUNERAL services were held across the road from his beloved Miller Hall at St. Vincent's orphanage, an institution in which James Miller had always taken a keen interest and to which he had contributed lavishly, so that he was sometimes called "the foster father of St. Vincent's."

Unmarried daughters of the James Millers remained at Miller Hall for a time, continuing the hospitable traditions of their parents. Kate Miller married John Keys while another daughter became Mrs. Joseph Kirk.

The afore-mentioned William J. Miller married Isabella (Belle) Green. They had two sons, George J. and William A. Miller.

THE WILLIAM J. Millers moved into San Rafael in 1865, and the father constructed the Marin Hotel building and the Miller Block of business buildings on Fourth Street between A and B.

He was a member of the San Rafael Board of Trustees, the town postmaster, a member of the state legislature, one of the petitioners for the purchase of the Heuston property where the Marin County Courthouse was built in downtown San Rafael in 1872-73, and a real estate dealer whose transactions included the sale of the Patrick King Ranch, now Larkspur, to the American Land and Trust Co. for $26,000.

William J. Miller bought the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and B Street in 1887 and built a two-story house there. In later years he sold that property and moved a short distance east to a two-story Victorian residence. The earlier Miller home was bought by the socially prominent Fred Gibsons. Gibson, in turn, later sold the showplace to San Rafael Elks Lodge No. 1108 which converted the dwelling into a clubhouse and used it for years before selling the property in 1963 to the Bank of Marin which razed the clubhouse and constructed a modern new bank building.

WILLIAM J. Miller died in March of 1916. His obituary in the San Rafael Independent listed as his survivors his widow Isabella, sons George and William A., his brother Bernard T. Miller, and his sisters Therese Miller and Mrs. Joseph Kirk.

The funeral was held at St. Raphael's Church with interment at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

One son, George Miller, married Edith Scott, and the other, William A., married Martha Curtis Forsyth. The William A. Millers in turn, had two sons, Don Alfonso Miller and Milton Miller.

Bernard Miller, son of the James Millers, married Emma Senter. He, too, was prominent in Marin affairs of the time. And they reared four daughters and a son, first living at Nicasio where he had bought land from his brother Martin, and then moving to San Rafael.

A story is told of how Bernard Miller signed as a parole witness for a San Quentin Prison convict serving time for murder, and pledged him a job on the Nicasio ranch.

"Aren't you worried at having a murderer on your ranch?" he was asked.

"Why should I be?" queried Miller. "He isn't mad at us."

Bernard Miller died in March of 1927 at the age of 72, according to his daughter, Mrs. Adolph Lietz (Frances Miller), now of St. Helena.

WITH THE immediate members of the James Miller family gone from the ranch where Miller Hall still stood, the place was leased. Then on July 11, 1929, the Marin Journal carried this notice: "The Miller Ranch is reported sold for $100,000 or more." The acreage was given as 1,084.

Mary Silveira, widow of Anthony F. Silveira, told of how she had gone to the Miller Ranch to live as a bride and remained there until 1936 when she and her family moved to a new home across the highway.

But the strong stamp of the Miller family, from James Miller down to present generations, remains indelibly affixed upon Marin County history, geography, its physical development and the pioneering spirit of its people.

A Marin Tradition—

Luncheon Under The Trees At Ross Is a Pleasant Part Of Summer Time

By DON KEOWN

It is a custom that dates back to 1947, the year when a group of women from the Marin Garden Club planned a series of outdoor luncheons to raise funds for the art and garden center, then only two years old.

Co-chairmen for that first luncheon were Mrs. Fred Herrington, then Mrs. Frank Stratford, and Mrs. Russell G. Smith.

Thirty-five guests turned out to enjoy Turkey Tetrazzini, prepared in the kitchens of Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Smith and served by Marin "provisionals" from the San Francisco Junior League. The price: 75 cents.

THE EVENT marked not only the start of what was to become an annual series of luncheons, but also the beginning of the Northgate Group, an offshoot of the garden club, dedicated to the financial support of the art and garden center.

Before that summer was over, six other women had served as hostesses for three more luncheons under the trees. They were Mrs. Thomas Page Brooks, Mrs. Paul Foster Sr., Mrs. Harry Johnson, Miss Elsa Korbell, Mrs. Wallace Scott and Mrs. E. M. Shelton, most of them still active with the Northgate Group today.

The cooking continued to be done in the homes, with service upon card tables using silver and dishes of the members, and luncheon cloths made by Mrs. Thomas Kent.

DISHES WERE washed in a small shed built by the husbands of the women, using charred lumber that had been salvaged from a fire: Later a donated sink, stove and ice box were installed by E.E. Ongaro Sr.

Mrs. Herrington, the Northgate Group's first president, and Mrs. Scott have vivid memories of the early luncheons.

"Whenever we needed money for operating expenses, we would run across the street and borrow from the bank," they recall. "Then we would work madly to pay it back."

THEY REMEMBER particularly in 1948 approaching Eugene Ostaggi, then manager of the American Trust Bank in San Anselmo, to ask for a $1,000 loan "in fear and trembling at the repercussions from our husbands." That sum was repaid the same year. And banker Ostaggi jokingly told the women he couldn't really afford to loan them money because they repaid him too fast for the interest to mount.

And young women of the county were "invited" to serve punch before the luncheons. Many of these later became Northgate Group members. And one of them remembers today: "We weren't really so much invited as we were simply summoned on the telephone."

THERE WERE problems, such as the worms that persisted in dropping from the trees onto the tables in front of the surprised diners. This necessitated a special detail to shake down the trees before each luncheon, and some strategic placement of the tables.

There was the unseasonal and unexpected rainstorm that forced the moving of one luncheon indoors, into the Octagon House. In those crowded quarters, despite the congestion and roof leaks, Mrs. Kent calmly, almost formally, seated her guests. Hostesses and helpers, somewhat less calmly, served spaghetti and meatballs while dodging the rain.

And there was the time when luncheon was very much delayed. One of the hostesses was preparing pettit fors as the dessert. And the little cakes simply could not be hurried.

EVENTS SUCH as the minor crisis of the pettit fors were no doubt responsible for one major change in the luncheon procedure fairly early in its history. Home-cooked meals prepared in the kitchens gave way to catered menus.

Catered or home-cooked, the popularity of the luncheons under the trees grew so rapidly that, the women recall, "soon it was no longer necessary for us to browbeat our friends into patronizing and enjoying the al fresco refreshments."

By 1949 the Marin members of the San Francisco Junior League were an intergral part of the luncheon programs, setting up the tables, serving the food and modeling for the fashion shows that became the customary entertainment.

CALLED LOCKSIDE because it had been "locked", or attached to the side of the home of Helen Van Pelt on Barber Avenue in San Anselmo before being acquired and moved to the Marin Art and Garden Center, this small structure was serving as the Northgate Group's antique shop in 1952 when the photograph was taken. The Northgate Group members are Mrs. Fred Good and Mrs. Ralph Alden.

TODAY THE ANTIQUE SHOP of the Northgate Group at the Marin Art and Garden Center is located in the Laurel House, one of two former residences fronting on Laurel Avenue acquired by the center. Seated outside the shop are two of the members who staff the fund-raising enterprise, Mrs. Mervyn F. Burke Jr. and Mrs. William Grace. The Northgate Group began dealing in antiques in 1948.

HOWEVER, THE Junior League's membership was small, and they were busy young women with families. So, in 1951, Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Wallace Hickman hit upon the idea of inviting other Marin charitable and social organizations to participate, in order to lighten the Junior League's burden.

"After all," the two women pointed out, "the art and garden center is a cultural center from which all of Marin County benefits."

So began the practice of designating each luncheon as the day of one or more participating organizations. These in turn furnished not only waitresses and models, but also a good part of the guest list, for their particular luncheon.

WHEN THE growth of the organization and its programs made apparent to the Northgate Group women their needs for a building of their own on the art and garden center grounds, they approached James Goodale, then president of the center's board of directors.

Goodale challenged the women: "You show me $7,000 and then we will talk about a building."

The always resourceful Mrs. Herrington instructed each member of the group to earn $100 for the project, and the fund-raising endeavors that resulted were varied and original.

THE RESULT was a $10,000 building in 1957 that incorporated the Livermore Room for meetings, classes, wedding receptions, etc., and a kitchen.

But still lacking were the funds for a huge fireplace that would add a final touch of warmth and charm to the Livermore Room.

Undaunted, Mrs. Herrington began selling stones for the fireplace for a $5 donation. And thus the stones that make up the handsome fireplace "belong" to the Ross Valley Grocery, to Sam the Butcher, etc.

CERTAINLY THE luncheon upon which most Northgate Group members look back most fondly was the one in 1963 honoring Mrs. Norman Livermore on her 80th birthday and in recognition of her contributions to the art and garden center.

Caroline Livermore was seated at a special table with her family. All present received an individual cake with candle, and all stood to sing "Happy Birthday." The Hamilton Air Force Base band was present to play Texas-born Mrs. Livermore's favorite song, "Yellow Rose of Texas." And she was presented with a bouquet of 80 roses, and lauded as "the person who made possible the Marin Art and Garden Center for all of Marin."

After Mrs. Livermore's death, Mrs. Herrington took the lead in raising funds for a Caroline Livermore Memorial Wall of used bricks to enclose her beloved art and garden center grounds.

THE LUNCHEONS in the open air are by no means the Northgate Group's only functions. Annually the women stage a Market Day sale in May and Table Decor in the fall as fund-raising projects. And a cookbook composed of the members' favorite recipes proved a local best-seller and is now in its second edition.

The antique shop operated by the group has been a long-standing source of funds for the art and garden center.

It had its beginning back in 1948 when Mrs. Scott suggested that the members bring antiques from their homes for sale to each other with the proceeds going to the center.

Soon, antiques and art and craft goods, such as Joan Polsdarfer's jewelry creations and handwoven goods from the Pi Beta Phi alumna club's settlement school, were being consigned to them.

THE FIRST sales were made from tables set up on the grounds. As the program grew, it was moved, first into the Bottle House, and then into the Octagon House, now the Moya del Pino Library.

Its next home was the Lockside house which had formerly been attached to the home of Helen Van Pelt on San Anselmo's Barber Avenue and which was moved to the art and garden center grounds by John Pomeroy.

Now the antique shop is located in Laurel House, one of two houses on the Laurel Avenue side of the center acquired by the art and garden center.

MEANWHILE the outdoor luncheons held on Wednesdays through the summer months have continued to climb in popularity until now as many as 500 guests are served. The one-time 75-cent fee has grown, too — to $4.50.

And for it, the guests enjoy not only a gourmet feast in the most pleasant of surroundings and upon tables especially decorated for each affair, but also the traditional fashion shows.

The 1971 series gets under way this Wednesday with the Junior League of San Francisco joining the Northgate Group as co-sponsors, and with fashions from Modern Eve of San Rafael, Novato and Northgate.

THERE WILL be subsequent luncheons on July 21 and 28 and on Aug. 4, 11, and 18.

Catering will be by Red Robin of Larkspur, which has performed those services now for the past several years.

But harking back to the days when she and Mrs. Smith got a Marin traditional off to a successful start with their Turkey Tetrazzini casserole prepared in their own kitchens, Mrs. Herrington is still able to supply the recipe:

INGREDIENTS: one cup of white sauce, one cup of cooked turkey cut in thin strips, a half cup of cooked spaghetti in half-inch pieces, a half cup of mushroom caps sliced and sauteed in butter, a third cup of grated Parmesan cheese, and three-quarters cup of buttered cracker crumbs.

Directions: Season the sauce with celery salt, bring it to a boil, and add the mushrooms, spaghetti and turkey. Fill buttered ramkins, sprinkle with the crumbs and cheese, and bake at 350 degrees for one-half hour.

It is fitting, say her fellow members of the Northgate Group, that Fen Herrington should have played a leading part in the beginnings of the organization, for she has remained its mainstay through the years.

"FEN HERRINGTON," they say, "is the one name that has consistently, through all our 24 years at the art and garden center, remained in the forfront in all of our activities."

And Mrs. Herrington will be present once again on Wednesday to make certain that the 1971 luncheon series gets off to a good start, admitting as she does so that "we really didn't realize what we were starting when we arranged that first luncheon in 1947."

And asking: "But hasn't it been nice?"

CAROLINE LIVERMORE, long-time benefactor of the Marin Art and Garden Center, was seated at the head table, facing the camera, with members of the center's board of directors at this Northgate Group luncheon in 1964. Mrs. Livermore was honored by the unit with a luncheon in 1963 upon the occasion of her 80th birthday, and the affairs remains one of the most pleasant memories of Northgate members.

WHEN THIS SNAPSHOT was taken of one of the Northgate Group luncheon gatherings at the Marin Art and Garden Center, the quaint Octagon House, in the background, was serving as the group's antique shop. Later the Octagon House was moved to another area in the center, and it is now the Jose Moya del Pino Library.

Bit Of Old Holland In The Caribbean

The Antilles Isles Draw Vacationers

The Travel Pages

Willemstad, Curacao, is a city that has been called "a quaint bit of Holland with a Caribbean accent."

The description applies to all of Curacao and to its smaller neighboring island, Aruba.

Aruba and Curacao are the "A" and the "C" of the Netherlands Antilles "ABC" group that also includes tiny Bonaire. They lie just off the northern coast of Venezuela.

It is said that an early governor had weak eyes and that he complained of headaches caused by the sun's glare. To lessen the glare, he banned the whitewashing so typical of the tropics. Islanders turned instead to the bright hues that still enliven the local scene.

This is the only place in the world where ocean liners sail up a "water street" through the heart of the town. Canal-like St. Anna Bay divides the two principal downtwon sections — Punda and Otrabanda.

Spanning the estuary is the biggest floating bridge in the world, the Queen Emma, which swings open many times a day to let freighters and cruise ships by. The pontoon bridge is a Caribbean landmark.

THERE WAS once a two-penny toll for pedestrians who were wearing shoes. Barefoot walkers crossed free. Islanders found a way to save the two pennies by removing their shoes. Now there is no charge for anyone.

Neither is there a charge for the ferries that link the Punda with Otrabanda. If you are late and stuck on either side, you can call ahead without charge. The public telephones are free too.

Punda is fine for shopping and strolling. Tidy streets such as Breedestraat and Heerenstraat behind Fort Amsterdam (from whose grounds the tall Hotel Intercontinental rises) are lined with shops containing goods from all over the world.

A PLEASANT hour or two can be spent on Saturday afternoons at one of the sidewalk cafes along the Gomez Plein watching an island custom. Curacao's youngsters, their week's work and schooling done, parade up and down the plaza or gather to watch other young people pass in review.

The interlude affords an opportunity also to sample some of the island's seafood specialties or Rijsttafel, a Dutch take-off on an Indonesian feast of stewed rice and succulent side dishes of meat, fowl, fish, shellfish, vegetables and fruit laced with savory sauces.

Down the channel from Queen Emma a high-level bridge is being constructed to provide another link between the city's two sections.

A BATCH OF new hotels is rising in the nearby Piscadera Bay area. And there are plans in this area for one of the Caribbean's largest "vacation village" developments.

Curacao was first occupied by the Spanish in 1527. It was fought over by them, by the British, the French and the Dutch, until the Dutch won out in 1634.

English is virtually a second language to Dutch, and Spanish also is widely spoken. And there is a fascinating local language called Papiamento — a mixture of Spanish, English, Portuguese, Dutch, Indian and African words.

THE OLDEST Hebrew house of worship in the Western Hemisphere is located near the Punda shopping district. A gem of Dutch colonial architecture, the Mikve Israel Synagogue dates from 1732.

Inside Fort Amsterdam, an old garrison now used for government offices, stands the United Protestant Church dating from 1769. A British cannon ball is imbedded in the church's walls.

Dutch marines man the inner courtyard, as if standing guard against urther intrusions.

THE CHURCH is on the site of an earlier Protestant sanctuary attended by Peter Stuyvesant. He served simultaneously as governor of Curacao and Nieuw Amsterdam (old New York) and is something of a presence still, lending his name to a modern college just outside the city.

There is a statue of him in his burgher's garb with his staff and peg-leg, a reminder of his role in securing Holland's flag in the Antilles. He lost his leg leading an attack on St. Maarten.

The Curacao Museum, located west of the harbor, is an interesting showplace of Dutch colonial interiors, including an 18th Century kitchen, bedroom and living room. There are paintings, industrial development exhibits and an aviary and garden with specimens of every plant that grows on the island.

LESS THAN 30 jet-minutes away are Aruba and its main town, Oranjestad, where the shopping also is excellent along Nassaustraat. The wharfside market, houseboat restaurant at Schooner Harbor and the Willem III Tower are other points of interest in the town.

But some of the real treats lie outside Oranjestad and they are easily reached by car, since the island is only 19 miles long and five miles wide.

Several loop trips are possible, depending on the roads used.

A GRAND circle leads to at least 50 highlights, ranging from caves to a tour of an oil refinery. The drives can be made clockwise or counter-clockwise, but the latter is recommended since it winds up by some of the world's most beautiful beaches.

Flamboyant tropical flowers, living fences of cactus and windblown, distinctively-shaped divi-divi trees are among the eye-catchers. So too are the 541-foot high Mount Hooiberg or the Haystack jutting sharply above the terrain.

OVER THE years, the waves have worn into some sections creating odd formations such as the Natural Bridge or little coves like Andicouri and Dos Playa where water-etched rock walls embrace pocket-size sandy beaches.

Inland, particularly in the area around the Pirate Castle (actually the ruins of another gold mill) at Bushiribana, the lonely panoramas resemble stark Scottish moors dotted with grazing goats and sheep.

In sharp contrast is the western coast with its series of white sand beaches. The sweep of Eagle and Palm beaches is one of the most magnificent in the world and one of the reasons for Aruba's growing popularity as a vacation destination.

ONE OF THE BEST places to savor the Dutch-flavored local culture of Curacoa and Aruba is the former's Schooner Market Place where good-natured sellers and buyers bargain over the fresh produce and other goods.

Friendly Reception Awaits Americans Who Tour USSR

Many Ethnic Groups All Share A Curiosity For The Tourists

By NORMA SPRING

It isn't eacy to tell a Russian when you see one, even in his own country.

Technically, a real Russian can only be one living in "Russia," the name of the largest republic among the 15 that make up the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Twenty-one smaller, autonomous republics are contained within the Union. Over a hundred ethnic groups with their own customs, dress and languages, are counted among the 235 million assorted souls in the USSR.

THE SOVIET Union stretches from Arctic to desert, and from ocean to ocean. It straddles Asia and half of Europe, covers a sixth of the earth's surface, and has 11 time zones. It's small wonder the visitors are overwhelmed by the almost incomprehensible variety in geography — and people!

Alaska Airlines' 15-day charter tours (12 in 1971) are especially geared to people-to-people contacts. Their original, first-of-a-kind western approach, leaving from Anchorage, Alaska is continued, with new wrinkles added.

Besides the Siberian gateway, a new route, directly over the North Pole to Leningrad, was inaugurated June 12.

TOURS THEN continue on to the Black Sea and European face of the USSR, to Middle Asia and Siberia, exiting at Khabarovsk for Anchorage. By alternating the gateways, all tours become "round the world," plus a pixie "extra" world tour, either coming or going. In passing, the 707 jet whips around the Pole once, again touching all 24 time zones.

Alaskans feel a kinship with Siberians. Both vast, newly-developing wilderness lands have permafrost and tundra and taiga forests, and wide open spaces. Temperatures plunge far below zero in the long winters, and soar to the 90s in the short, light-filled summers.

Like Alaska, the land is surprisingly colorful and flourishing in summer, and the people take to healthful outdoor recreation.

AFTER LANDING at transportation center Khabarovsk on the Amur River, the tour flies to Irkutsk, a Siberian outpost founded by Cossacks in the mid-17th Century.

An excursion to Lake Baikal, homeland for many ancient groups of people, points up the age of the region. At the Limnological Institute, visitors learn the story of this unique lake, which has many unusual specimens in its depth (up to a mile deep in some places).

"Scratch a Russian, find a Tartar" goes the saying. The exotic, Oriental heritage is a striking contrast, in Middle Asia. The tour visits Tashkent, today's Uzbekistan capital, and Samarkand, a 2,500-year-old crossroads of camel caravans that followed the silk routes.

PHOTOGRAPHERS consider these Middle Asian cities tops for people-watching. The market place in Samarkand is backdropped by sun-baked ruins and blue-tiled domes. The buyers and sellers set up shop out of doors, and carry on much as they have for centuries, undaunted by their foreign admirers.

In Sochi, Russian "Riviera" on the Black Sea, it's a wise traveler who can tell a Russian from all the other visitors who converge there. On the beach, or while taking a dip in the famous Black Sea you may rub shoulders with a Russian worker on vacation.

You might try the language test, but the answer could come back in any language.

ALASKA AIRLINES tour guests take a day's excursion, part way by hydrofoil on the Black Sea, and then by bus, to Lake Ritsa. High in the Georgian Caucasus mountains, this lake is a prime scenic Soviet recreational destination.

Naturally, today's capital city, Moscow, and Leningrad (alias Petrograd, and also St. Petersburg) are full of Russians — real ones. They are cities in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic. Alaska Airlines provides well-organized sightseeing tours, led by personable Russian guides.

Or you can strike out on your own. Try the fabulous subway system, with stations like art galleries. Maybe you will want to sample a fine restaurant, or additional entertainment besides the circus and theater performances included on the tour.

ENTERTAINMENT is reasonable and well-attended by Russians, who take their culture seriously. Your guide will help you with tickets, directions and reservations.

Leningrad, which has been called "the most beautiful city in the world," is a showplace for palaces. The Winter Palace on the bank of the Neva River houses the famous Hermitage Museum, once a private museum for the czars and their noble friends. Now visitors, along with the Russians, can admire art treasures from all over the world.

There is also an excursion out of Leningrad to Peter the Great's Summer Palace, noted for its outstanding fountains with golden statues, and beautifully landscaped grounds.

Seeing the various faces of the USSR, visitors discover that the Soviets have a common trait: a friendly curiosity toward guests (especially Americans).

The citizens, from pioneering Siberians to metropolitan Muscovites, are pleased when visitors come to admire their achievements.

A Treat For Railroad Buffs

By PITT CLARK

You blink. Can you believe your eyes?

The name on the signboard is "The Romney Hythe & Dymchurch Light Railway." Shades of the Toonerville Trolley!

A green flag waves, a whistle shrills, and with a snort of steam a tiny train squeaks away. This, in Southern England, is the smallest public railway in the world.

On a 15 and one-eighth inch track is a perfectly proportioned locomotive — five feet high, weighing five tons — which hauls a dozen coaches, crowded with passengers, across the meadows and over the shingle of Kent's bogey-haunted Romney Marsh.

OUT OF HYTHE it speeds, at about 20 miles per hour, on the 70-minute journey to its terminus 14 miles away at the pebbly promontory of Dungeness, nosing out into the English Channel.

It has nine locomotives, all replicas of steam engines which ran on British main lines until diesel and electric services took over a few years ago. One bears the name "Winston Churchill," another is called "Doctor Syn" after the fictitious smuggler-clergyman of Dymchurch in Russell Thorndike's novels.

While it is used today primarily to carry holiday-makers — $350,000 in the average year — the little railway has had its exciting moments.

It was, in 1941, a vital part of Britain's "invasion coast." It was taken over by the army and an anti-aircraft train, built in the New Romney workshops, patrolled the line.

Out of Hythe, to seaward, are gaunt Martello Towers, built as a first line of defense against Napoleon's legions. Curving inland are the chalk hills which were cliffs until, over many centuries, the sea receded and left a margin of marsh.

THE TRAIN runs along side the Royal Military Canal, a narrow waterway which was to be the second line of defense against the French, but today shows no more warlike sight than the occasional angler searching for elusive perch or pike.

Then into the Marsh and across pastures, where lookers (as they call the shepherds) tend the famous Romney Marsh sheep, into Dymchurch, once the center of the area's notorious smuggling trade.

In great-grandfather's day on the sands over the sea wall, bloody battles were fought with cutlass and pistol between smugglers and Excise men. There are well-authenticated stories of smugglers openly discussing business in such inns as the Ship (recently rebuilt) and the City of London, which was constructed from timbers of a wrecked ship.

ON AGAIN another three miles, past rush-bordered dykes and lonely farmhouses, the little train steams into New Romney. Here it loses one of its two tracks and runs by single line to the turnaround at Dungeness.

The town of New Romney is delightful, with ancient houses and shops lining a wide main street. The Ship Inn dates from the 14th Century.

This inland town once had a harbor, and ships tied up to the wall of its magnificent church.

Beyond, to Dungeness, Romney Marsh still retains an indefinable atmosphere of magic which almost makes you believe that, as some say, fairies live in the gorse bushes. When the mists come up at night you see the shape of a ship that sailed here in days when the Marsh was still the sea bed.

During the season, from May to Sept., 10 trains a day run between Hythe and Dungeness.

The Scott Fitzgeralds, By A Zelda Partisan And Friend

By DON KEOWN

EXILES FROM PARADISE by Sara Mayfield; Delacorte, 309 pages, $8.95.

One of the lessons one learns from biographies is that great talent or capability does not necessarily go hand-in-hand with strength of character. And, in fact, frequently does not do so.

Society tends to spoil its especially gifted, tolerating in them a degree of childishness that it otherwise would not permit above the 5-year-old level.

The Fitzgeralds, Zelda and Scott, provide a case in point. And their immaturity was never more painfully exposed than in Sara Mayfield's new "Exiles from Paradise."

Of course, the Fitzgerald capers have been well chronicled before. But this time it is Scott, not Zelda, who stands exposed as the greater perpetrator of the antics and the outrages that brought tragedy and decadence to the one-time darlings of the Jazz Age.

First, one might ask if there is really a need for another book about the Fitzgeralds, particularly after the success of Nancy Milford's "Zelda." In fact, however, we are seeing a whole spate of post-Milford books about the couple. And Sara Mayfield has a better excuse for writing about them than most.

She was a close acquaintance of the Fitzgeralds, having grown up with Zelda in Montgomery, Ala., and having met up and mixed with them periodically throughout their chaotic lives.

This personal knowledge was part of her formula for her earlier and successful "The Constant Circle: H.L. Mencken and His Friends." And as the Fitzgeralds figured largely in the Mencken book, so Mencken is a leading character now in the Fitzgerald biography.

In this book, however, Miss Mayfield does exhibit some uncertainty as to her personal role in the story, hesitating to adopt a straight first person narrative stance, and thus fluttering in and out of the book in a somewhat disconcerting manner.

The advantage "Exiles from Paradise" has over other Fitzgerald books lies, of course, in the personal insight and experience which Miss Mayfield is able to bring to her subject. It is quickly apparent that the author is pro-Zelda, anti-Scott. But her reasons are also made clear. Most who knew, or endured, the two would probably have reached the same preference.

But Scott vs. Zelda, the key comparison in Miss Mayfield's book, is quite another matter.

Young Zelda Sayers was "one of the South's truly fine examples of feminine brains, beauty and charm." And, as Sara Mayfield saw it, marriage with Scott Fitzgerald led to her downfall, rather than vice versa.

She analyzes acutely the resurgence in popularity of the Fitzgeralds nearly a half century after the era for which "their self-revelatory writings constitute one of the most significant contributions to the understanding."

And she agrees with Cyril Connolly that "apart from his increasing stature as a writer, Fitzgerald is now firmly established as a myth, an American version of the Dying God, an Adonis of letters."

But out of fairness to Zelda, Miss Mayfield cannot accept Connolly's decision that Scott Fitzgerald "as the object of a cult that had gone beyond mere admiration for literature" should be left to that exalted state.

"I realized," wrote Connolly, "that it would be quite impossible for such worshippers to form any realistic idea of what Fitzgerald had been like, and that they had better be left with their myth."

But, Sara Mayfield notes, Scott Fitzgerald, during his lifetime, was frequently quite candid about his human shortcomings. He seemed torn between the deeply ingrained Catholic rite of confession and his enjoyment of the legend he had helped to create. Writers, generally, have honored the latter commitment while ignoring the former. Sara Mayfield swings the pendulum the other way, stripping Scott Fitzgerald of much of the false glamor and revealing a tiresome, immature and selfish alcoholic and egomaniac whose wastrel habits still could not quench the fiery brilliance of his creative flame.

ZELDA FITZGERALD is accorded a sympathetic treatment in "Exiles from Paradise" by Sara Mayfield, a writer who knew the novelist's wife from childhood and who maintained an acquaintanceship with the couple throughout their hectic lifetimes.

A SURPRISING book is "Villas in the Sun" by Bernard Wolgensinger, published by Charles E. Tuttle Co. of Rutland, Vt.

It is surprising in that at first glances, the big $17.50 book appears to be another of those cocktail volumes featuring pretty pictures — in this case, photographs of the villas that front the Mediterranean, in Greece, in Italy, in Spain, in Majorca, in France and in Portugal.

Closer inspection shows that, eye-catching as the photos are, "Villas in the Sun" is considerably more than just a picture book. It is a serious and informative study of the architecture of a region that has spawned a particularly interesting building style. The villas are diverse, ranging from a thatch-roofed platform supported by two barges to structures of castle-like magnificence. But all have one theme in common — an affinity for the sunshine and the sea that are the chief attractions of the area.

There are 169 black and white photographs and 14 color plates that disclose the most striking details, exterior and interior, of the well-chosen villas. And there are floor plans as well.

The similarities of Mediterranean and Californian living are immediately apparent, and the greater imagination of the Europeans in capitalizing upon their special assets is clearly demonstrated. Californians, architectural scholars and students especially, but not exclusively, should find "Villas in the Sun" a source of idas as well as viewing pleasure.

FARRAR, STRAUS and Giroux has issued a new edition of John Gregory Dunne's "Delano" in which the author updates his moving report on the United Farm Workers' Central California grape strike and his admiring portrayal of Cesar Chavez.

Dunne revisits Delano after the successful conclusion of the long, bitter struggle with the table grape growers, and adds material from his observations of a union leadership and membership jubilant over the recent triumph and just beginning the lettuce field campaign in a euphoric mood.

He also offers this conclusion: "Because of Chavez and Chavez alone, it is now possible to predict that all farm labor will be organized in the foreseeable future."

Conversely, Dunne admits, farm work is a field of little future, with automation certain to further reduce drastically the need for manpower, be it unionized or non-union. But, he adds, the spirit engendered by Chavez and his movement will have a more lasting effect in the cities than in the vineyards, for it has engendered a new spirit in the barrios, even though youthful Mexican-Americans there are more likely to adopt their action patterns from militant blacks than from Chavez' non-violent strategies. Still the new pride and new courage — the new mood of hope — have been inspired by Chavez and his brave people.

THE COLONIAL Williamsburg Foundation has issued a revised edition of the 1961 book, "Colonial Williamsburg: Its Buildings and Gardens," by the late architectural scholar A. Lawrence Kocher and his colleague Howard Dearstyne.

It is a descriptive tour of the restored Virginia capital, an account of the restoration, and an expert analysis of Williamsburg's significance, past and present. The text is both literate and authoritative, and the many illustrations are excellent, although one yearns for the color presented so splendidly in other Williamsburg books.

The 104-page volume, on high quality paper and beautifully bound, sells for $4.95 and is being distributed by Holt, Rinehart and Winston Inc.

Sleuths & Suspense

DELIVER US TO EVIL by Joe L. Hensley; Doubleday, 183 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

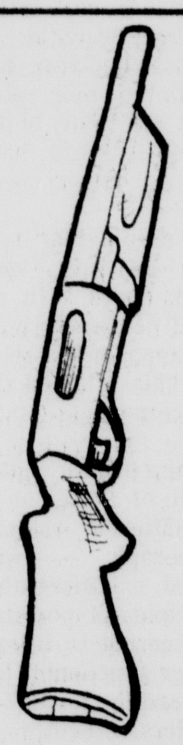
With capital punishment very much a topic of discussion in view of recent Supreme Court decisions, this little mystery by an Indiana attorney seems especially timely.

A young lawyer, Donald Robak, is asked by a condemned man, only seven days before he is due to go to the electric chair in a midwestern state, to come up with new evidence that will free him.

The case of Tague Robbins, convicted of murdering his wife, has been closed for five long years and it seems an impossible task.

Robak's job is made doubly hard because he himself is skeptical of the claim of innocence by the condemned man.

In this hardboiled tale, a trail of corruption in a small town leads from one prominent citizen to another and finally to the statehouse.



Hensley has drawn on his own experience, which includes a term as a prosecuting attorney, in this tightly-drawn thriller. As in all good mysteries, the outcome is a surprise and the good guys win out.

He Was There When Custer Bit The Dust

It is amazing that an Indian who was present in the Valley of the Little Big Horn on the day that the redmen wiped out Custer's Seventh Cavalry is alive today; it is even more amazing that he has made a success in the white man's America without ever losing his devotion to his own people.

Red Fox was a boy of 6 when Col. George Armstrong Custer led his troops into the trap by Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse. He fled with his family into the protecting woods as the trap was sprung.

After that battle and another in which Indians defeated a force under Gen. George Crook, the aggregation massed by Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse broke up. Part of the Indians, including the boy Red Fox, returned to the Standing Rock Reservation. From there, Red Fox was sent to Carlisle Indian School in Pennsylvania to begin his conversion to paleface ways.

His subsequent career included government service, several years with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, a stint with the 101 Ranch Rodeo, appearances in movies — an Indian success story. But. though he adapted with unusual success to the society of his conquerors, Red Fox has remained true to the beliefs of his own people and of his uncle, Crazy Horse.

Some years ago, he began writing a story of his life. Carl Asher has assembled his manuscripts into "The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox," which sees print just in advance of the author's 101st birthday, which will take place tomorrow.

Current interest in the American Indian has produced a plethora of Indian books of widely varying quality. But no other has appeared which gives such a complete picture of the adaptation from "old ways" to "new ways" as the life story of Chief Red Fox.

There is bitterness in his story, but it is not all bitterness. There is veneration for the past, but appreciation for the present. There is a lesson for all Americans today, whatever their race. And all is told in moving prose by a man who has lived a century and experienced the pageant of America in a way few others have done — and no other has recorded.

"The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox" is a remarkable book by a remarkable man.

THIS 1919 PHOTO of "America's sweetheart," Mary Pickford, is included among the illustrations in Edward Wagenknecht's "The Movies in the Age of Innocence," now printed in a $2.95 paperback edition by Ballantine Books. The hardcover edition was published by the University of Oklahoma Press in 1962. Wagenknecht's descriptions and analyses of early films, film-makers and film stars has since come to be regarded as a classic in its field.

Novel Of Politics And Its Pressures

A LIFE IN ORDER by Arthur Hadley; Viking, 378 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

In the tradition of Allen Drury's "Advise and Consent" and out of a remarkably similar background, Arthur Hadley has written a big, ambitious novel of politics and politicians.

Like Drury, Hadley accumulated the fabric for his novel as a journalist, first as a White House correspondent for Newsweek in the 1950s, the period in which his book is set, and later as an editor with the New York Herald Tribune.

Hadley, however, is somewhat less concerned than Drury with the mechanics of American politics and government, and directs a greater amount of attention upon the personalities of his characters. Indeed, by the latter part of the book, his principal has fled the Washington scene altogether.

George Dent is a congressman from New York, a war hero with liberal beliefs and with U.S. Senate aspirations. Political life, he discoveres, forces upon him compromises and an image-making routine that he finds increasingly uncomfortable and ultimately disastrous. So he quits politics to become an artist. Then comes the realization that the artist, too, is subject to pressures to conform and to commercialize.

To derive satisfaction from any activity, George Dent discovers, one must first put his personal life into a sense of balance and harmony.

In telling this story, Hadley offers a fairly good inside picture of the give and take of Washington life — of the trades, the juggling, the retreats and the stands a man must make if he hopes to advance up that difficult ladder. He makes the point that it is this propensity to — perhaps necessity for — compromise that has robbed liberalism of much of its once shining idealism and sense of fulfillment. But that compromise is not restricted to politics.

"A Life in Order," Hadley's third novel, is, one suspects, a less important and meaningful book than the author had hoped to create. But it is by no means unimportant or meaningless. It does speak of today's problems, if not incisively, at least not evasively.

Intrigue On Both Sides Of Curtain

Frank Riley has written a novel of intrigue, adventure and suspense that, despite a number of fresh and promising concepts, never quite catches fire.

Fr. Anton Dymek, a young rebel priest, is in trouble with the Los Angeles Diocese hierarchy, reduced to working in a Sunset Strip gas station. But a dying, humanitarian-minded biochemist recruits him for a mission behind the Iron Curtain, to bring out a formula developed there by a fellow scientist. The formula suspends the sexual drive in both males and females.

Father Dymek's assignment takes him first to Austria, then to Czechoslovakia, and finally back to America with the formula where he finds himself the target of power ploys by the Church, the U.S. government and third parties. All along the way the young priest has had to wrestle with temptations of the flesh as well.

The climax comes in Los Angeles where, with the help of youthful Christian revolutionaries, Father Dymek and associates put the formula to its first real test.

Riley's main difficulty appears to be uncertainty as to the tone of his story. It begins as hard realism, dissipates into farce, and ends a mixture of realism and science fiction. The reader in turn, winds up confused and curiously dissatisfied with the use Riley, a Southern California travel editor, has made of an excellent plot idea and a good geographical background.

Riley's incorporation of real people, including President Richard M. Nixon, into his story is another idea that does not develop as it should.

A Debate On Campus Violence

HOW RELEVANT IS EDUCATION IN AMERICA TODAY? by Alex C. Sherriffs and Kenneth B. Clark; American Enterprise Institute, 97 pages, $5.75. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"How Relevant Is Education in America Today" was the subject of a debate between Alex C. Sherriffs, Gov. Ronald Reagan's special assistant for education, and Kenneth B. Clark, president of the Metropolitan Applied Research Center in New York and only Negro member of the New York State Board of Regents. The volume is a transcript of the debate.

Actually, the two found themselves in agreement on many points. They agreed that American education is undergoing a revolution. But Sherriffs felt the violence of some undergraduates is not part of the real revolution; Clark felt that it is.

The transcript of the lectures and discussions provides plenty of food for thought — and for further — discussion — within a very slim volume.

Exercising Away Those Aches, Pains

One out of every three Americans suffers from a muscular imbalance, says orthopedist Dr. Arthur A. Michele.

This imbalance makes itself felt in a number of painful ways that many of its sufferers, quite needlessly, have come to accept as their normal way of life.

It may be a nagging back pain, flat feet, weak ankles, knock knees, stiff neck, bones that fracture easily, circulatory problems, arthrosis of the hip and knee, slipped disc or simple clumsiness and poor posture.

When these symptoms are the result of muscular imbalance, Dr. Michele claims that orthotherapy — "specially designed exercises that use the principles of posture and body engineering to bring about the proper functioning of the muscles and the joints" — can work wonders.

On the other hand, he warns, it is dangerous for persons with muscular imbalance to attempt many exercises such as push-ups and toe-touching with the legs straight.

Dr. Michele's book discusses the theory of muscular imbalance, sets forth some tests to help the reader determine if he or she is a victim, and outlines his basic recommended exercise program for its correction, citing case histories to support his system.

Dr. Michele is no quack or johnny-come-lately to orthopedics. He is currently professor and chairman of the department or orthopedic surgery at New York Medical College, director of orthopedic surgery at five New York hospitals and the honorary police surgeon of New York City. He has behind him 35 years of medical practice, clinical research and teaching. While he admits that mnay doctors are initially skeptical of the claims made for orthotherapy — "I was even skeptical myself, in the beginning" — he claims that these same physicians become enthusiastic converts once they are exposed to the dramatic results of the simple treatment.

"For adults or children the philosophy that nature will correct their muscle problems or that they have to live with their aches and pains is not only false, but harmful," says Dr. Michele. "It does nothing more than delay the time for treatment so that the condition becomes more and more difficult to correct."

The Junipers — California Compatibles

Conifers Go Well With Ranch Home

When California adopted the lines of ranch-style architecture, a group of plants was suddenly thrust into the spotlight: the Junipers.

This large family of conifers has proven compatible with western building styles. And today there are new and exciting varities that have been introduced by plantsmen because of the perpetual popularity of Junipers.

The traditional green foliage of early-day varieties has been augmented by varying hues of green, plus shades of silver and blue, and golden colored ones as well.

THERE ARE many foliage textures to choose from, which is important in selecting varieties for landscape use. The varied growth characteristics of individual Junipers makes it possible to create pleasing effects in any garden.

It could be said that there is a Juniper variety for almost any landscape situation in the sunny areas of the garden.

There are varities such as San Jose Juniper and Juniper Webberi which excel as groundcovers. The latter forms a carpet of finely textured green with a bluish cast, while San Jose's prostrate is a sage green, and compact.

Nurseries will have many ground-hugging Junipers in shades of green, gray-silver and blue.

LOW-GROWING Junipers are in great demand for use in foreground plantings or accent, filling-in expanses as attractive groundcovers, raised beds — and there are so many newer varieties to enjoy it's unveliev-able.

Shopping will turn-up other low-growing Junipers, some of which will be compact while others will spread arching branches in appealing fashion.

TWO TOP candidates for in-between size shrubs are the Armstrong Juniper and Juniper Mint Julep. Both fit nicely into foundation plantings around the house or other structures, and standout where a modest-grower is needed.

The growth of the Armstrong variety is compact with spreading light green foliage. Mint Julep is a deeper mint green and its spreading branches create a fountain-like form.

It's hard to beat the Pfitzer Junipers — blue and green — , for these well-known medium-to-large growers create arresting beauty at the far reaches of the property or in special planting areas in the garden. Available now is a compact type as well as a Golden Pfitzer, whose showy-green foliage is splashed with golden tips.

The California Association of Nurserymen reports there are dozens of Juniper varieties in the nursery trade — 50 and more — and many of them are recent introductions. Local garden centers and nurseries will have a cross-section of this large plant family, and offer those varieties which have proven to be dependable in your area.

It would be an ambitious undertaking to describe the merits of all Juniper varieties, but the plants lend themselves to carefree gardening, and the payoff is lasting beauty and enjoyment.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

The Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Heat-loving annuals such as Cockscomb, Salvia and Zinnias can be set out now for bloom in a few short weeks.

- Visit the flower shows and county fairs under way now in the Bay Area and Northern California for gardening and landscaping ideas.

- Crape Myrtles will provide a color sensation that will last into the late fall. Shop for these warm weather favorites now while they are in bloom. Both shrub and tree forms are available.

A Course In Pesticides For Specialist And Others

Pennsylvania State University in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Pest Control Association has produced a series of eight correspondence courses designed to provide training in professional pest control for workers employed by pest control companies, custom spray applicators, sanitation organizations and state, county or municipal health departments.

These courses, although prepared by specialists in entomology at the university, are written at the high school level.

Although the courses deal with a technical subject, the manner in which they have been prepared makes them useful to anyone desiring to further his knowledge in this field.

To secure more detailed information concerning the courses, write to Box 5000, University Park, Pa., 16802. Ask for the free catalogue of agricultural and home economics courses available from Penn State.

A Deck Enhances Pool

Wood Adds Cool Touch And Safety

Carefree relaxation is the function of a swimming pool — it's seldom added to a home these dayssolely as a status symbol.

Small, above-ground models, as well as built-in types of all sizes, bring a pool within reach of most homeowners.

Pool-side amenities make a big difference in enjoyment, and they should be chosen with safety and low-maintenance in mind, as well as comfort and good looks.

ANY SIZE pool benefits from a surrounding deck of wood, which stays cooler and is less slippery than paving. The deck also dries quickly, avoiding unsafe puddles.

A deck built around a circular above-ground pool multiplies access over the usual single ladder. A railing for added safety and a wood screen or fence around the perimeter make this type pool a handsome addition to any yard.

The larger built-in pool benefits from similar treatment, and provides a family gathering place for members scattered in all directions most of the day. It's a healthy activity center for teens and an attractive entertainment area for their elders.

OWNERS ADD features to their pools as budgets allow — a patio for barbecues or buffet suppers, adjacent play area to keep active games away from poolside, or a sauna built into the bathhouse.

The pool is halfway between main living level and daylight basement, over a slightly sloping lot.

AN OPEN cross-rail railing of two-by-four inch and four-by-four inch fir stretches across two outer sides of the pool deck. The other open side was enclosed by a five-foot high solid windscreen of one-by-four-inch resawn boards, four-by-four-inch posts and a two-by-four-inch horizontal cap.

PAVING ISN'T THE only material that can be used effectively and attractively around the poolside. Here a wooden deck provides a rim for relaxation that is cool and safe in that slippery puddles of water do not accumulate upon its surface. The deck of two-by-four-inch Douglas fir on edge also solves the sloping site problem. The cross-rail railing is built of two-by-four-inch fir on four-by-four-inch posts.

Hardboard Is The Handyman's Friend

Upstairs, downstairs, indoors and out — that's where you can use hardboard to expedite remodeling jobs.

Unlike natural wood, hardboard has no knots or weak spots. The standard size panels are easy for the do-it-yourselfer to handle and work with.

Indoors, use prefinished hardboard.

It resists dents and scrapes and comes in dozens of patterns, formal and informal, contemporary and traditional. There are solid colors and woodgrains, smooth and textured finishes.

Some hardboards are primed for painting; but most have long-lasting, factory-finishes. Plastic-surfaced hardboards are made for use in high moisture areas such as baths and laundries.

Perforated hardboard, unpainted, pre-primed or pre-finished, adds wall storage space to kitchens, closets, children's rooms, family rooms, workshops, basements and garages.

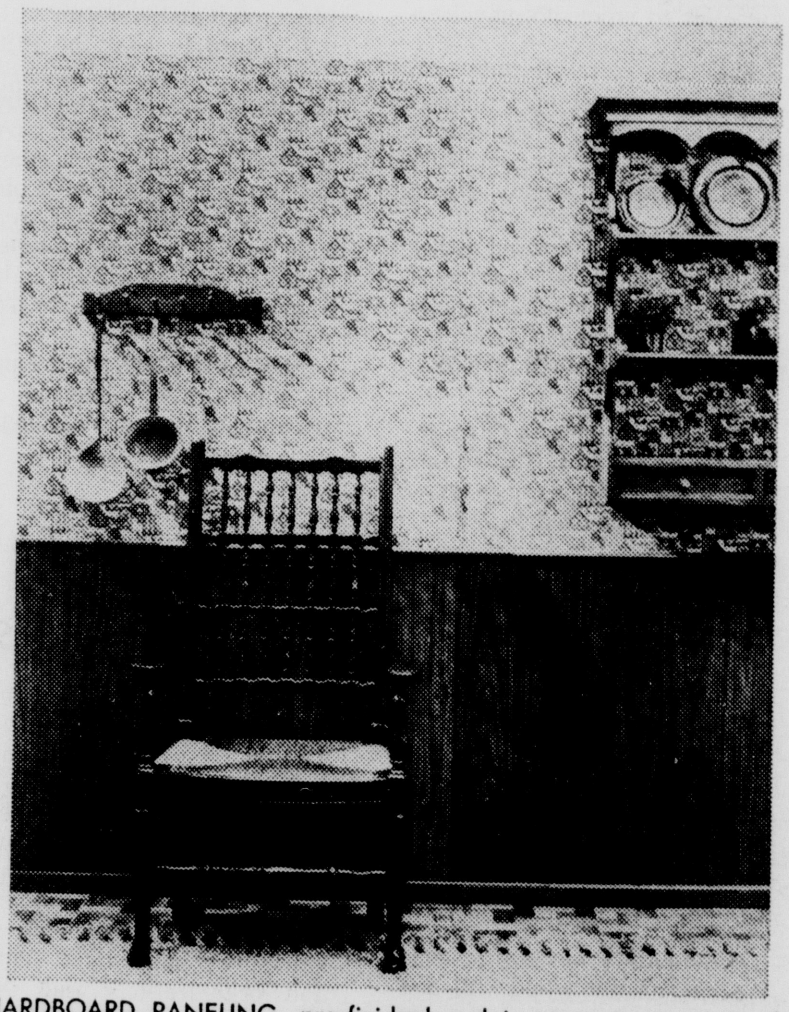
Exterior hardboards for siding are available in styles to suit the architecture of your house. There are board and batten panels, rough-sawn lap panels, vertical panels with deep V-grooves, and horizontal lap siding.

Many decorative ways to use hardboard paneling are illustrated in "New Dimensions in Living," a 24-page booklet available for 25 cents from American Hardboard Association, 20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., 60606.



HARDBOARD PANELING, pre-finished and in two patterns — teak design for the wainscoting and a colorful Colonial pattern above — has been used here to create an attractive wall that a do-it-yourselfer installed without difficulty.

Jungle Gym Pleases Kids, And Mother

CHILDREN ARE unlikely to stray when there is play equipment such as this Jungle Gym in the backyard. And when Dad or Big Brother builds it, it is an inexpensive addition to the home facilities.

These are the days when it falls upon the mothers to keep their broods occupied and mischief-free, while school teachers enjoy a well-earned summer's rest.

Furthermore, it is a big asset in the building of strong, well-coordinated young bodies.

To build your own, send $1 (plus another 25 cents for air mail delivery) to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409, and ask for Jungle Gym Pattern No. 159.

Building the Jungle Gym is easy once you have the pattern. The project can be accomplished by any amateur with a few simple hand tools. It is inexpensive, too, when you build it yourself. And the finished product will withstand the kind of rigorous use it is certain to receive from vigorous youngsters.

8 Pages Of Ideas On Patios

Pockets of privacy from weather or neighbors can be formed with screens. Sweeping decks can transform a grassy plot into a party room complete with benches, gazebos and garden "rooms."

Patios are a flexible home addition, with designs to suit the scale or style of any house, complementing existing landscaping, and providing relief from wind or sun.

Decks and yard structures, such as a gazebo for barbecuing and serving al fresco meals, can relieve the monotony of look-alike adjacent houses.

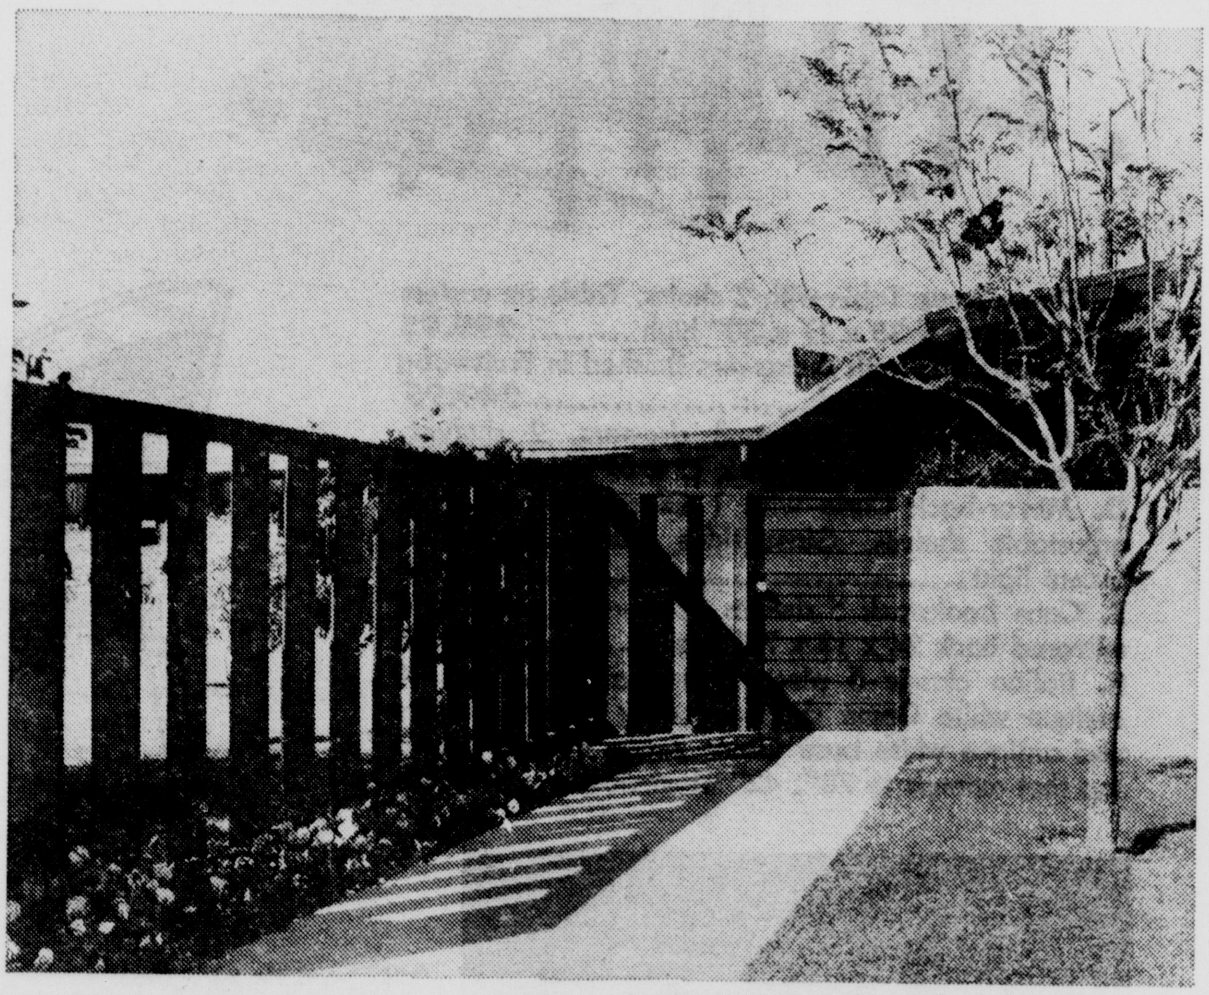
Sloping lots can be landscaped with a patio incorporating decks on several levels, wide stairways of wood, and planter boxes of flowers or terraced planter areas.

For an eight-page, colorfully illustrated booklet on ways to landscape your yard with patios of western wood, send 15 cents in coin to Western Wood Products Association, Department 523-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204.

A TABLE FOR SIX

THIS TRESTLE TABLE, Early American in style, can be used as a desk or for indoor-outdoor dining for six. Built of plywood and connected with removable wooden pegs, the table can be constructed with hand tools, a power drill, saw and router. Long, narrow, easy-to-handle panels make up the 41 inches by 36 inches table top, creating an interesting inlaid wood effect when the table is assembled. It can be disassembled in five minutes. There are vertical supports to insure stability. And stained, antiqued or finished naturally, the table makes a handsome addition to either indoor or outdoor decor. For the Trestle Table pattern, send 50 cents to American Plywood Association, 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401, and ask for Form 71-610.

A FENCE THAT BREATHES



YES, YOU CAN have your privacy, and breezes, too. This high fence of vertical one-by-12-inch western pine boards face-nailed on alternate sides of two-by-four-inch stringers show how. It blocks the view of the swimming pool from the street, yet permits the air to circulate. Forthermore, the fence directs visitors along a walkway to the front entry. The solid gate features horizontal boards in an overlapping pattern. Wood Products Industry Fund, 1240 Bayshore Highway, Burlingame, 94010, offers a free full-color eight-page brochure of fence ideas of this kind.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

NBC will start its new season the week of Sept. 13-19, premiering eight new series in that period as well as introducing the new material of the old-over series.

The Julie Cobb you will see as a dedicated public defender in the new NBC series, "The D.A.," in the fall is the daughter of star Lee J. Cobb and actress Helen Beverly.

The GE Monogram series of actuality specials and documentaries will be aired on the ABC network during the coming season. There will be six new specials scattered from November through next April. Several repeats will follow those. NBC has carried the series the past two seasons.

Finals of the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant in Miami Beach will be telecast at 10 p.m. July 24 by CBS.

A grant from Xerox Corporation will premit the non-profit Public Broadcasting Service network to telecast 26 film classics produced throughout the world in the past 50 years. They will be aired in prime time on consecutive Friday nights beginning Jan. 14 under the program title, "Film Odyssey."

The first four programs of "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour" on CBS this fall have been set to feature, respectively, John Wayne, Bob Hope, Lucille Ball and the 50th annual Photoplay Gold Medal Awards. The Wayne show leads off on Sept. 14 as the series moves from its former Sunday spot to 7:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesdays.

Larry Hovis, who was a regular cast member of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In " on NBC during its first season, will return for the fifth season starting in September.

NBC-TV plans to film a pilot for a new series of "Topper" shows that it would introduce in its 1972-73 season.

A graduate of the University of Connecticut, Kaz was raised in Watertown, Conn. From a rather standard American background, Kaz has chosen to live an off-beat existence in Hollywood.

He has been married to his wife, Nancy, for almost nine years. They are the parents of Alec, 2, and Katy, 10 months.

THEIR HOME is located on a hill deep in Benedict Canyon. It is a converted summer cottage from the early days when Southern Californians escaped to the cool, tranquil foothills during the hot months.

Kaz and Nancy have fixed the two-bedroom abode themselves, decorating it with purples, reds and orange highlights which Kaz describes as "really funky."

In addition to his acting activities, Kaz has a photography studio in West Hollywood which doubles as an office. He has produced three underground movies there with friends.

ONE OF THE films, "Bongo Wolf's Revenge," has been released in Australia and London and appeared on German television. Garas and his associates plan to show it at several film festivals before releasing it in the United States.

"It's a full, happy existence, and we have a lot of colorful friends," the actor says.

All the current segments of the NBC series were filmed in England where Kaz and his family lived in a duplex flat in Knightsbridge. He isn't sure whether more episodes of "Strange Report" will be made.

AWAY FROM acting or producing underground movies, Garas' chief avocation is medicine, which he admits is an unusual hobby.

Instead of tinkering with the internal combustion engine, rigging stereo outfits or surfing, Kaz steeps himself in the world of medicine. He owns an extensive library of medical texts.

Garas has no plans for becoming a doctor. The regimentation of medical school turns him off.

"I don't play on becoming a do-it-yourself brain surgeon," he says. "But the medical field is fascinating to me and I enjoy reading everything about it."

THE YOUTHFUL actor, who plays Halin Gynt in the series, wears what amounts to a uniform most of the time: blue denims, boots and an open shirt.

Kaz would as soon direct and produce motion pictures and television shows as he would act in them. When he isn't involved in any particular project he devotes himself to his wife and youngsters.

"I think I could best be described as a hard-core fun-lover," Kaz concludes. "There's nothing wrong with that."

Publishers Earn TV Appreciation

The National Association of Broadcasters has praised the directors of the American Newspaper Publishers Association for their support of broadcasting's fight to preserve news freedom in the United States.

The ANPA Directors had urged state and local government to uphold "a public policy permitting freedom of expression uninhibited by governmental intrusion."

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

The Melos Ensemble of London has performed internationally for 20 years a varied and expanding repertory of chamber music. One of their latest releases is Angel S-36538, the Nielsen "Woodwind Quintet Opus 43" and Berwald's "Septet for Strings and Winds."

This is the best version of the 1922 Nielsen woodwind work and the only recording of the conservative but rather original 19th Century piece by the Swede Berwald.

The stereophonics are especially fine.

THE LAST recordings of the great British conductor, Sir John Barbirolli, have appeared on Angel S-36756. They present the first stereodiscing of "Appalachia" by Delius, as well as the same composer's "Brigg Fair."

Subtitled "Variations on an Old Slave Song for Chorus and Orchestra," "Appalachia" was started by the English composer 10 years after he left the orange plantation in Florida on which he had spent some years. Its sense of melancholy comes to a head in the baritone solo (sung by Alun Jenkins) in which the black man parts from his lover to go down the river to be sold. The haunting orchestral coda leaves no doubt the pair will never see each other again.

This is a must for all those partial to the impressionistic in music.

AS YOU HAVE probably heard, most of our top U.S. symphony orchestras are now being recorded by European-based record companies.

Angel has among others the Chicago Symphony, and offers this crack ensemble under the baton of Seiji Ozawa on S-36045 in Janacek's "Sinfonietta" and Lutoslawski's "Concerto for Orchestra." While both works are available in other recordings, Ozawa's impassioned treatment of both modern orchestra gems merits first choice over competition.

Janacek's last orchestral work, dating from 1926, alternates extroverted joyousness with tender lyricality. The sound of the Chicago forces is excitingly realistic, yet with a feel of the spaciousness of the hall. And the quiet recording surfaces and stereo balance of the Angel version far outweighs the competing version on Philips, in the atonal Lutoslawski piece.

THE HORN CLUB of Los Angeles has a very unusual album of its own on Angel S-36036.

Of the eight composers represented my personal favorite was Alec Wilder for his "Nonet for Brass," full of that composer's usual direct and tuneful musical communication. Of more avant-garde temper are "Lines and Contrasts" by Gunther Schuller and "Games: Collage No. 1," by William Kraft.

The latter work requires the conductor (in this LP the composer) to lead two separate instrumental choirs, often playing in different meters. He also decides when new players are to be added in various collages. While partaking more of enjoyment for the performers than enjoyment for the listeners, the Kraft piece is not long and is worthwhile.

There are other more approachable short pieces by Lassus, Palestrina, Victoria and Rossini to round out this attractive album.

MUSIC OF British composer Ralph Vaughan Williams has had excellent representation on the Angel label. Three items are of recent interest:

The first recordings of two vocal works by the late master are of prime interest to those who like loud, thrilling and massive choral-orchestral works. Angel S-36751 features "Sancta Civitas," an oratorio for tenor, baritone, chorus, semi-chorus, distant boys' chorus and orchestra, plus "Benedicite" for soprano, chorus and orchestra. The major work, translated "The Holy City," is a very personal summary of the composer's religious beliefs and employs huge forces and three varied strata of sound to create a visionary musical fabric and great spacious and sensuous sound-worlds that are often breath-taking.

MORE VAUGHAN Williams is found on Angel S-36625, the "Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra" with Vronsky and Babin, and "Symphony No. 8" with Sir Adrian Boult conducting the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

The concerto is one of V.W.'s more light-hearted works, with exuberant mood and concentration on the percussive qualities of the pianos. Some of the slow movement will remind listeners of Rachmaninoff. The penultimate V.W. symphony is also exuberant and farily approachable.

The Scherzo, for wind instruments alone, is truly delightful, and the strings-alone slow movement has an air of nostalgia to it.

Performance and sound are exemplary.

THE FINAL Vaughan Williams album is a two-disc set presenting "A Sea Symphony" together with "The Wasps" Suite. Sheila Armstrong, John Carol Case, The London Philharmonic Choir and London Philharmonic Orchestra are conducted by Sir Adrian Boult on Angel SB-3739.

This album has been listed in the stereo magazines as an ideal show-off of the new pseudo-four-channel systems and I can vouch that the records do contain much ambient stereo "information" that is reproduced over the rear channels of such a set-up.

The symphony is a long and noble work based on poetry of Walt Whitman and creating an analogy between the voyager on the sea and the voyage of the human soul through life. The four sections are "A Song for All Seas, All Ships," "On the Beach at Night, Alone," "The Waves," and "The Explorers."

The chorus bears the brunt of the musical effort, in best British choral style. Some passages are thrilling in their richness and nobility and a complete libretto helps understanding.

Excellent sound, too.

Jimmy's Other Wife

Julie Adams Lands TV Plum In Veteran Actor's New Series

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jimmy Stewart's television wife was selected the day before shooting began on the new situation comedy series.

She is Julie Adams.

JULIE IS AN astonishing look-alike, younger version of Stewart's off-screen wife, Gloria, who at one time was a possibility for the role.

They are both tall, slender and fine-featured. Julie and Gloria both laugh easily and often. They wear their hair long. And both have long, shapely legs.

Julie's were on display the other day in hot pants.

"I DIDN'T KNOW until the day before shooting began that I had the role," she said.

"I had gone in to read for the part with Jimmy. Then I did a screen test. But so did a lot of actresses. I was relaxed because I didn't think I had a chance.

"Maybe that's what helped me most."

Another element in Julie's favor was a lack of trepidation at appearing in a test with Stewart.

Julie laughed and recalled, "at the final fadeout of that horse opera we were about to be married. I haven't worked with Jimmy since. Now almost 20 years later, we'll be playing man and wife."

Their family name on the NBC series is Mr. and Mrs. James Howard. As Martha Howard, Julie is the wife of a college professor who plays the accordion in his spare time.

A FACET OF the series that almost eliminated Julie was the inclusion in the cast of a 28-year-old son.

Julie has only teenagers at home.

"But I told the producers I'm a native of Arkansas and sometimes the girls down there marry when they're 13 years old.

"But they aren't attempting to put years on me with makeup. I wear very little makeup to avoid the glamorous, youthful look."

BECAUSE STEWART is closer to 60 than 40 years old, Julie can't be made to look too much younger than her television husband for fear of reducing the verisimilitude of the family relationship.

"I was told Jimmy wanted someone for the role who had some of the same qualities as his wife," Julie said.

"The fact that he chose me is a very great compliment. And working with Jimmy Stewart is just about the greatest thing an actress could hope for. "I'm a very happy and fortunate girl."

HOME

Safely locked in fond embrace,
I see my Maker face to face.
My little bark has drifted home,
All anchored fast — no more to roam.

Long, long before we sighted land,
Tempest tossed o'er angry sea,
I saw afar that outstretched hand —
Welcome Home, I am with thee.

Our garments changed to seamless robes,
Placed gently 'round by timeless hands,
We rest content from labor free
In feathered nest — eternally.

I travel down the road,
And see them
Dead along the way
And the trees
Still with their nuts,
Roads divide
And fox and hawk,
Not the predators,

Ban On Building To State

A group organized to fight Southern Marin's building ban announced yesterday it has appealed the ban to the state Water Resources Control Board.

Attorney Saul M. Weingarten of Seaside, representing the Citizens Assistance League to Marin Sanitary Districts, said he filed the appeal Wednesday and hopes for a hearing within 10 days.

The appeal cites 15 points to back up the league's contention that the state board should reverse a ban on new sewer connections imposed by the regional water quality control board June 24.

Weingarten told a meeting of the citizens league in Mill Valley City Hall that on one hand, the regional board told Mill Valley and the Richardson Bay Sanitary District to upgrade their sewage treatment and on the other hand said it would not approve requests by the agencies for state and federal funds to make improvements.

If the ban is continued, he said, it will cause a drastic reduction in assessed valuations in Southern Marin, and further prevent improvement of treatent facilities by reducing property taxes which could accomplish the job.

Jeffory S. Morshead, owner of Frank Howard Allen and Co., said the ban will not accomplish the cleaning up of Richardso Bay because new construction accounts for only 3 to 4 per cent of the sewage per year.

More to the point, he said would be elimination of cracked sewer lines and downspouts illegally connected to the sewer system. These factors contribute to the tripling of volume to the plant during wet weather, forcing raw sewage to be dumped into the bay.

Morshead appealed to interests other than those in the building and real estate trades to work with the league's long-range goal — elimination of pollution in the bay.

The league has no specific plans to eliminate bay pollution, said chairman Richard Angell, but he did mention several possibilities. Among them:

An education program to make owners of old homes aware that many downspouts illegally connect to the sewer system; a tax against older homes to be used for repair of cracked sewer lines, and the testing of water in creeks flowing into the bay to determine if they add to the pollution problem.

"We'll take your ideas and translate them into action," Angell told the audience of about 20 persons.

Paul Jacobs of the Marin Ecology Center disputed the claim that the building ban is an attempt to solve present pollution. The ban, he said, is aimed solely at preventing further pollution by preventing new construction.

Angell invited Jacobs to join the citizens league, which Angell called an "environmental action group," to change its makeup to one less oriented toward develophrs and builders.

The league set another meeting for July 23 when specific proposals for reducing pollution will be discussed.

King Hussan Assassinated

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Rabat Radio said King Hussan II of Morocco was assassinated today.

The announcement said the king was shot as he was celebrating his 42nd birthday — a national holiday — at his summer seaside palace at Skirat, 12 miles from the capital.

Moroccan soldiers immediately took over control of all public buildings, including the state radio station, and set up roadblocks throughout the city.

The radio twice announced "Long live the republic" and immediately switched to military music.

French Radio announced the King died at 6:15 p.m. (1:15 p.m. EDT)

The palace reception was to celebrate both the King's birthday and the annual youth festival. The gates of the King's palaces at Skirat and in Rabat itself, traditionally opened to the public on the King's birthday, were immediately closed and troops took over key positions in the city.

Marin Workers Win 7.5 Pct. Pay Hike

Three-Year Pact Said Unique At County Level

Members of five bargaining units of the Marin County Employees Association last night overwhelmingly approved a three-year contract calling for a 7.5 per cent pay raise this year and 5 per cent raises in July 1972 and July 1973, plus other increased benefits.

The vote on the contract was 203 in favor and 19 against, according to Frank J. O'Connell, MCEA manager.

He said the three-year pact—proposed by county representatives at the beginning of negotiations this spring — was believed to be unique among California counties.

The contract will be up for approval at the county supervisors' meeting Tuesday, along with separately negotiated contracts for other employee bargaining units, including the sheriff's deputies, nurses and probation workers.

O'Connell said no formal estimate had been made of the total cost of the MCEA contract. During last month's budget sessions, all the expected agreements were provided for in salary accounts approved by the supervisors. They will have no additional impact on the total budget.

Bargaining units approving the contract included the clerical, trades, technical, public services and supervisory workers, representing more than 800 employees in all. O'Connell said today negotiations were continuing for county firemen and midmanagement employees.

In addition to the pay raises, the contract provides that the workers will get time-and-one-half pay for overtime for the first time. In addition, the county's contribution toward employees' health, dental and other insurance programs will increase to $21.19 a month until July 1, 1972, when it will go to $27 a month. It will rise to $30 a month in 1973 and $34 in 1974, O'Connell said.

The contract cannot be reopened during its three-year life except for annual review sessions by the county and MCEA on classifications and salary level comparisons with other government agencies, O'Connell said. Also, at MCEA's request, the county personnel department will review and report in writing on requests for reclassification of specific positions.

Review of the contract and secret balloting lasted two and a half hours last night. Some parliamentary argument erupted after one member moved to cut off discussion and put the contract to an immediate vote, employees reported.

O'Connell said state Department of Industrial Relations experts had told him the proposed contract was inique in the state. O'Connell said the contract should help the supervisors in their annual budgeting by ending uncertainties as to pay demands formerly presented annually by employee groups.

STANLEY H. FRIESE
Move to Alaska

Friese To Top Post In Alaska

Stanley H. Friese, who on Tuesday resigned his post as deputy superintendent of Marin County schools, was appointed yesterday as Alaska's superintendent of state-operated schools.

The appointment, made by Gov. William A. Egan, carries with it a salary of $33,000 per year. Friese, 52, earned $22,523 last year with the county schools office.

As head of state public schools in Alaska, Friese will be managing the largest school district — in land mass — in the country. If stretched over the continental United States, it would reach from California to Florida.

The district is made up of all military and rural schools in the state, with Siberia in sight of one facility. (Large cities such as Juneau and Anchorage have their own organized school districts.)

Under Friese's charge will be 126 schools, 16,000 students, 1,500 teachers and other employees and a budget totaling about $38 million. The district's seven-member governing board includes several Eskimos.

Marinite Nominated For Interior Post

Larson, a 37-year-old Republican, is a partner in the San Francisco law firm of Brobeck, Phleger and Harrison. He has specialized in corporate law.

If his nomination is confirmed by the Senate, Larson will take charge of program policy for the department and advise Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton about major programs, such as the Alaska pipeline and offshore drilling problems.

The job pays $38,000 a year.

Larson, a native of Detroit, Mich., is a 1957 graduate of Stanford University. He served in the Army two years and then returned to earn a law degree at Stanford Law School in 1962.

He has participated in United Bay Area Crusade fund-raising and is a member of the board of directors of the Provident Enterprises Corp., a minority enterprises small business investment company.

He was an unsuccessful candidate in 1970 for a seat on the Ross School District board.

Larson has not been active in politics, he said, and described himself as being named to the post "probably to get the work done."

Trevino Captures British Open Title—A Close Call

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI) —Lee Trevino, squandering a five-stroke lead and taking a disastrous even on the 17th, barely hung on today to win the British Open golf championship with a closing round 70 for 278, one stroke ahead of Liang Huan Lu of Taiwan who had a 70 for a total of 279.

Craig Defoy, also of England although he was born in Pennsylvania, came in with a 69 for a 281 total.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus fired an eagle three on the 18th to post a 69 and a four round total of 283. Also at that level was Masters champion Charles Coody, who shot a 68 today.

Trevino had threatened to blow the course apart, roaring through the first nine in an astonishing 31 to leave Lu five strokes back. But the Chinese 35-year-old Chinese never wavered while Trevino had a pair of bogeys and then took a double bogey seven on the seventeenth to cut his lead to one stroke.

Emergency Aid Rushed To Chile

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Relief workers rushed emergency provisions today to central Chile, where the country's worst earthquake in six years Thursday night killed and injured hundreds of persons and left about 100,000 homeless.

National police said 81 persons died and 396 required hospital care in 11 cities and villages along the northern end of the fertile Central Valley.

President Salvador Allende said many areas were without food, water and medical help and estimated that 25 to 40 per cent of the housing had been destroyed in the three-province disaster zone.

Allende, who visited the affected areas by helicopter Friday, ordered the immediate start of emergency housing construction and appealed for help from other parts of the nation.

The president went on television wearing the same turtleneck sweater he wore on the helicopter and also announced a special program of direct government aid and credits to ownhrs of damaged homes and business places.

"In Hierro Viejo, Petorca and Salmanaca there is no electricity, there is no water, there is no bread, and other foodstuffs are scarce," Allende said.

"But the populace is taking the catastrophe well, and its sense of confidence is impressive."

In Washington, the Agency for International Development (AID) announced Friday the U.S. government would begin an airlift today of $200,000 in supplies to the disaster area that included 1,000 litres of plasma, 12,000 woolen blankets, 1,500 cots and 600 family-size tents.

Peru, on Chile's northern border, promised two plane-loads of emergency supplies. Argentina, on the eastern side, said it was sending medical help and

Stubblebine New Mental Health Boss

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Dr. James M. Stubblebine, former Marin psychiatrist and school district trustee, took over yesterday as Gov. Ronald Reagain's new state director of mental hygiene.

He was appointed by the governor to succeed Dr. James V. Lowry, who retired from the $32,500-a-year post. Dr. Stubblebine said today he has applied for a leave of absence from his duties as San Francisco's mental health chief, a post which he said paid him practically the same salary.

Stubblebine, a Democrat, said he believed Gov. Reagan picked him for the job "because he wanted someone experienced in the day-to-day operations of a large, complex mental health program such as San Francisco's." The state mental health budget totals nearly $300 million.

The post will offer "not more headaches — they'll be the same kind as San Francisco's but in a different scale," Stubblebine told the Independent-Journal.

It was reported last December that Stubblebine had been critical of Reagan's treatment of the mental health program.

Today, the doctor said he merely had been one participant in a press conference called on Medi-Cal cutbacks, particularly in mental health services to children.

"That's all water over the dam because Medi-Cal is back to pre-cut standards," Stubblebine said today.

"I've also said the present administration has supported the Department of Mental Hygiene with money and approval for the past three years. Both the administration and the Legislature have increased the budget — especially for support of local mental health programs," he said.

"The increase was $23 million this year and $24 million last year," Stubblebine said. "That means very strong support."

Stubblebine, a former Mill Valley resident, said he had lived in San Francisco the past four years, since becoming le-

Israeli Says U.S. Blocks Settlement

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said today the United States was blocking the way to a Middle East peace settlement by acceding to Egyptian demands and withholding the additional warplanes Israel requested last month.

Dayan also said the Soviet Union is interested in extending its influence in the area and hinted the West could use Israel as a base against the Russian thrust.

In Cairo, the semiofficial newspaper Akhbar Al-Yom today published what it said was the details of a U.S. diplomat's plan for reopening of the Suez Canal shut down since the June, 1967, Arab-Israeli war. The news siad Egypt rejected the plan because it did not include Israeli withdrawal from the Arab lands it seized in the war.

Flournoy Trying To Avoid Cash Crisis

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —State Controller Houston I. Flournoy says he is working with two other state officials to complete arrangements for the sale of tax anticipation notes in time to meet a cash crisis expected in August.

He said work began Friday shortly after the state Supreme Court upheld the validity of selling revenue anticipation notes in an effort to ease the state's fiscal problems.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Kissinger Delayed

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI)—Henry Kissinger, presidential adviser on national security, has delayed his departure for Paris until Sunday because of what spokesmen called an indisposition, U.S. and foreign office officials said today.

Kissinger, who arrived here Thursday on his round-the-world tour, originally was scheduled to leave today. He now plans to leave Sunday.

Pleads Innocent

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI)—Aubran W. Martin, named by a codefendant as a triggerman in the slayings of labor leader Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski, his wife and daughter, pleaded innocent Friday.

Martin's attorney said he probably would file a motion to have the trial moved out of Washington County.

U.S. - Japan Talks

TOKYO (UPI)—The Defense Ministers of Japan and the United States agreed today to further strengthen cooperation between the two nations.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird called on Japanese Defense Agency Director Gen. Keikichi Masuhara for the first time since he arrived in Japan last Sunday.

Masuhara said following the meeting that he appealed to Laird for "the effective maintenance of U.S.-Japan security arrangements and smooth handling of the Okinawa question after the island's reversion (to Japan)".

Ratifies Site

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Democratic Natinal Committee has formally ratified Miami Beach, Fla., as the site of the party's 1972 nominating convention.

It will be the first Democratic National Convention held in the south since 1928 when Democrats met at Houston to nominate Alfred E. Smith for president.

Agnew In Ethopia

$34 Million Haul Of Heroin, Cocaine Made

NEW YORK (UPI)—Customs officials and city police seized $34.2 million worth of heroin and cocaine in three unrelated cases within 24 hours and arrested 10 persons, including the son of Panama's ambassador to Nationalist China who tried to evade customs through diplomatic immunity.

The 310 pounds of illicit drugs were accumulated in a raid Thursday night at a luxury apartment in Queens, another raid in Manhattan early Friday and the seizure of $20 million worth of heroin at Kennedy Airport.

The Panamanian ambassador's son, Rafael Richard, 23, of Panama City, allegedly tried to smuggle 175 pounds of pure heroin through customs in five pieces of luggage. Arrested with Richard was Nicholas Polanco, 30, also of Panama City, and a third Panamanian, Guillermo Gonzales, was arrested later in connection with the seizure.

$500,000 Bail

All three were arraigned in Brooklyn Federal Court and held in lieu of $500,000 bail each.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Edward Boyd said Richard tried to evade customs inspection by claiming diplomatic immunity. But, Boyd said, his passport did not have the proper immunity specifications.

A Customs officials said Richard's luggage brought in aboard a Braniff jetliner from Panama "contained no clothing but about 150 pounds of heroin in plastic envelopes and covered with brown wrapping paper." He estimated the street value of the drugs at $20 million.

Earlier Friday, police working with information supplied by an unidentified undercover agent seized 34 pounds of cocaine worth $1.7 million at a Manhattan apartment. Narcotics detectives said the raid was carried out shortly after the drugs arrived in the country from Latin America.

Arrested were Luis Disla, 28, a native of the Dominican Republic, who police said was the contact man for the cocaine purchase, and Luis Perez, 36, also a Dominican, and Gerardo Perez Arana, 43, native of Columbia.

Two Suitcases

Police said Perez and Arana were caught in posession of two suitcases contianing the cocaine shortly after they arrested Disla, who also had a pistol.

Late Thursday, in what was described by police as the second largest heroin seizure in New York history, police raided a luxury five-room apartment in Queens where they seized more than 100 pounds of heroin valued at $12.5 million, along with two-carloads of drug manufacturing and refining equipment.

Los Angeles To Dedicate Center

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A 30-year unit and a $41.8 million tab formed the foundation of the new Los Angeles Convention Center, which will be formally dedicated today in a swirl of speeches and festivities.

Mayor Sam Yorty, Bob Hope and a list of public officials and civic leaders gathered at the enormous center in the downtown area for the first of a four-day "Open House."

The city's convention bureau estimates that the center, for which plans began in the early 1940s, will generate $110 million in new southern California business in the first year.

Optimistic Drug Report Is Attacked

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., has disputed government claims there has been "spectacular success" in halting the flow of heroin into the United States, saying "five kids a day are dying" from overdoses of the drug.

The optimistic report on efforts to stop the drug traffic was given a House subcommittee Friday by Assistant Treasury Secretary Eugene T. Rossides.

Rossides, the man in charge of the federal campaign against imports of illicit drugs, said customs agents seized 906 pounds of heroin during the past two years, more than the entire amount confiscated during the previous 10 years. He said it might be some time before the statistics were reflected in street sales because dealers were drawing on their "inventory" supply. He termed the figures "spectacular."

But Rosenthal quoted figures which showed there were 2,935 deaths attributed to heroin in New York City alone from 1965 to 1969. He said one study projected 6,600 deaths between 1970 and 1974.

"How you can square that with 'spectacular success' I don't know," Rosenthal said. "I don't see how you can say enforcement is successful."

Rossides conceded difficulties remain. However, he insisted progress was being made.

Also challenging Rossides' testimony was Rep. J. Herbert Burke, R-Fla., who contended heroin was being smuggled with relative ease into Florida by boats and small planes.

"I don't think it's been spectacular myself," Burke said. "You have had some spectacular headlines."

A less optimistic note than that of Rossides was struck by Marshall Green, Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs.

Green commented on the recent agreement that is supposed to end the production of opium poppies, from which heroin is derived, in Turkey. It has been estimated 80 per cent of the heroin entering the United States originates in Turkey.

Illicit drug dealers could switch their base of operations from Turkey to Asia, Green testified. If this is done, he said, "much of the expected effect of the Turkish ban on production and increased pressure on European trafficking will be lost."

Reagan Sees Confidence In Nixon

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan is confident California Republicans will give overwhelming support to President Nixon and not Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. in the state's 1972 presidential primary.

McCloskey announced Friday he would challenge Nixon in the California primary and his decision bought swift reaction from Reagan and GOP state chairman Putnam Livermore of San Francisco.

The governor plans to head a delegation committed to Nixon's renomination, against McCloskey in the primary.

"Under the laws of California that is his perogative, if he can gain enough signatures," said Paul Beck, Reagan's press secretary.

"However, the governor is confident that the overwhelming majority of California Republicans will support President Nixon," he said.

Livermore said McCloskey "for many months consistently stated that his election campaign was motivated only by his desire for an end to the Vietnam War. But the timing of his presidential candidacy announcement today suggests the motive might have been presidential ambition rather than eagerness for peace."

McCloskey Plans To Challenge President

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Antiwar congressman Paul M. McCloskey, hoping to draw 18-year-old voters to the Republican party, announced Friday that he'll challenge President Nixon in next year's California primary.

McCloskey said his official entry into the presidential race includes entering the New Hampshire primary and as many other primaries as his campaign funds would allow.

"I would like nothing better than to see the President cut the ground out from all antiwar candidates by ending the war himself," the 43-year-old San Mateo county representative told a news conference.

"But," he added, "I don't think the President and vice president can be re-elected regardless of the war."

McCloskey said if the Vietnam situation should change. He would reconsider his own position, but emphasized that he was basing his campaign on more issues than just ending the war.

The former Marine combat officer first made his announcement in Los Angeles and then flew to San Francisco where he told reporters he hoped "in the next several months to serve as a rallying point" for 18-year-olds now registering to vote. He said Republican candidates would not stand a chance next year "unless they get a substantial number of the new, young voters."

"This will not be a single issue campaign," he announced at his Los Angeles stop.

"We seek in addition to ending the war, to restore truth in government, to achieve a return to the historic Republican moral commitment on social issues, rather than the present 'southern strategy' and a restoration of judicial excellence and independence.

"We seek to end CIA involvement in the internal affairs of other nations and to limit that agency's operations to the field of intelligence gathering."

McCloskey said he respected Nixon "as an individual, but I disagree with his policies, especially the "truth in government issue."

His entry into the primaries will give voters "their first chance to end this war," McCloskey said. "The debate ought to take place inside the Republican party."

Fire Hits Ranch

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—A $270,000 fire swept through a chicken ranch Friday, killing 55,000 baby chicks, according to a report by California Division of Forestry.

San Francisco School Integration Is Ordered

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federal judge has ordered San Francisco to integrate 100 elementary schools by one of two acceptable busing plans by Sept. 8, and the remainder within five years.

U.S. District Judge Stanley A. Weigel Friday told the city's Board of Education to choose either a citizens committee Horseshoe Plan or a Freedom Plan, drafted by the NAACP.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who opposes any busing plan, said the decision should be appealed.

"The school board ought not to be compelled to choose the lesser of two acknowledged evils," he said.

The court order means 47,000 elementary school children will attend racially balanced schools this fall. It is estimated that 25,000 of them will have to be bused from their neighborhood schools, the distance depending on which plan the board adopts.

The Horseshoe Plan, considered most likely to be accepted, sets guidelines that would require the racial mixture of a school to be within 12 per cent of the overall district count. The Freedom Plan would lower this to 5 per cent.

Judge Weigel said that busing "is not a desirable end in itself," but said it is necessary because "excessive racial imbalances cannot be eliminated without transporting some school children."

Highway Policy Aimed At Beach Protection

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A new coastal highway planning policy to stop "unwarranted intrusion" of California's beaches has been announced by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor said under the new policy the state Department of Public Works will permit only minimal freeway construction along the California coast.

Visitors To San Simeon: 600,000

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—More than 600,000 persons visited the Hearst San Simeon State Historical Monument for the second year in a row, according to the state Department of Parks and Recreation. Director William Penn Mott, Jr. said Friday 636,529 visitors saw the monument during the year ending June 30. That was an increase of 2.5 per cent over the previous 12-month period.

The castle, located in the Santa Lucia Mountains of San Luis Obispo County, was built by the late William Randolph Hearst. It served as his family home from 1922 until his death in 1951.

Wax Spills In Plant

MOSS BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Vandels opened a valve at a candle factory and released 7,000 gallons of hot wax which clogged 12 sewers and left a two-inch coating of wax on the plant's floor. The plant manager estimated damage at $3,000.

A Beautiful Place to Live

The magnificent hills and trees of Marin surround lovely Lucas Valley and the new American Housing Guild homes nestled there.

These are homes built along cul-de-sac streets . . . richly styled with heavy wood beams, vaulted ceilings, handsome ceramic tiles and other accoutrements of custom quality. Imaginative use of window walls and sliding glass doors lets you enjoy all of the view and makes this beauty a part of your home itself.

With your new AHG Lucas Valley home you receive membership to the Lucas Valley Community Center . . . a delightful recreation facility considered to be one of the finest of its kind. Here you'll find swimming pools, tennis courts, BBQ areas, playgrounds for the youngsters and plenty of grassy areas for relaxing in the sunshine. There's a clubhouse, too, for community activities and parties.

American Housing Guild is currently offering both single and two-story homes in styles from 3 to 6 bedrooms. Prices start at $42,950. Excellent financing is available.

You are invited to tour the smartly decorated, landscaped model homes . . . open every day from 10 AM.

DIRECTIONS: Go north on Hwy 101 to San Rafael a half-mile beyond the Terra Linda Turnoff. Then left on Lucas Valley Road and right on Mt. Shasta Drive. You'll see our signs. Phone: 479-1761.

THE PLAN AND ITS ACHIEVEMENT — The brigantine Moustique sails (left) on paper as sketched by her builder, Jules Jobin of San Rafael, while he (right) readies some finishing touches on the real thing on the ways in Sausalito. Character is what the veteran sailor and shipbuilder wanted in his square rigged vessel and character is what he achieved, as evidenced by the ornate crest decorating his sturdy wheel and pedestal.

A SQUARE RIGGER

A Dream Appears Closer And Closer

By FRANK FARRARA

The shapely hull of a schooner stands blocked up on the Sausalito shore, waiting for the seas to break across her bow and winds to fill her sails.

In this era of mass-produced fiberglass boats, Jobin has designed and built a sturdy wooden vessel, a square-rigged brigantine, reminiscent of the romantic sailing days of the past.

He was delayed but not stopped by a gunman's bullet which ripped through his legs 18 months ago, and now the launching of his dream is near.

Jobin set out three years ago to build a boat with character, one that would be different, and he fashioned it from California lumber, white oak for the frame and fir for the planking.

"It is very close to the Bluenose, "the famed Canadian racing vessel," he said.

The 60-foot schooner has been named Moustique, roughly translated from the French as "black fly," the nickname given Jobin's nine-year-old daughter, Judith, in earlier years when she buzzed about like a fly.

"I want to sail it around the world myself," said Jobin, who has spent about 12 years at sea with the Canadian Navy, Coast Guard and merchant marine.

"This has been a dream of mine for a long time; to build a boat and sail around the world."

Jobin, son of a Canadian boat builder and fisherman, hopes to fashion a career for himself as an independent boat designer.

The trip will give others a chance to see his work, and if they like the Moustique, he will build them a fiberglass model, he said.

"But I won't sell this one," he said. The "Moustique" will be home, for Jobin, his wife, Justine, and their daughter.

He believes there is a market for custom designed boats with "character" and that people will want "one that looks different."

For Jobin, the building of the Moustique has been a long task, slowed to a standstill when he was shot in the right knee and left thigh by a beserk gunman in San Francisco in December 1969 and seriously wounded.

He started building the schooner in his backyard at 53 Clayton Street, San Rafael, in the summer of 1968, but later moved it to Sausalito.

Work, well under way when he was shot, was halted until about two months ago.

He said he rigged it as a brigantine because he "intended to go for a long passage and didn't want to play around with the sails."

Although he worked in a shipyard in Quebec, his native city, he has sailed around the world three times, studied naval architecture, and worked as a naval designer of commercial ships, Jobin will finally own a boat of his design when the Moustique is launched.

"I built a similar one, rigged like this, with my father in 1955, a 40-foot schooner," he recalled. It was sold and later burned, he said.

Jobin and his friends have saved up 30 gallons of lamb fat to grease the ramp for the launching of the Moustique north of Building 5 at the Schoonmaker Company property at 7:30 p.m. next Saturday.

The schooner with 1,700 square feet of English-made sails, a Japanese engine and sleeping room for 14 persons, will be launched by Jobin's daughter. "It will be a proper launching, with champagne," said Jobin.

Novatans Named Captains In Boys' Club Campaign

Ten Novatans have been named captains in a special division of the Novato Boys' Club's $100,000 building fund campaign, according to Fred H. Merrill, campaign general chairman.

Each captain will recruit four teams members and the teams will sell "boy Bonds" in amounts starting at $50.

Named captains were Dr. Robert D. Dougherty, chief of staff of Novato General Hospital; Henry Locke, owner of Locke Plumbing Co.; Irving D. (Chip) Chapman, owner of Chapman's Shoes.

Innocent Plea In Heroin Case

Dennis Lee Hovde, 22, and Nalla Hovde, 27, both of Corte Madera, have pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possessing and selling heroin.

A preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

They were arrested at their residence at the Meadowsweet Motel last Thursday by Marin drug agents who had obtained a warrant accusing Miss Hovde, who is also known as Judith Samuelson, of selling heroin to agents three times, and Hovde with selling it once, during the last month.

Trial Of Bennett On First Charge Postponed

Trial of State Board of Equalization member William O. Bennett on a drunk in public charge was postponed yesterday to allow his attorney to seek a change of venue.

The trial had been set to begin Thursday.

The attorney, William O. Weissich, contends that Bennett, 52, cannot get a fair trial in Marin County because of publicity from his trial last month on a drunken driving charge.

In that case, a Marin Municipal Court jury's guilty verdict was thrown out by Judge Robert A. Smallman, who then dismissed the case.

The drunken driving charge stemmed from Bennett's arrest in Sausalito April 25. The drunk in public charge is in connection with his arrest March 4, also in Sausalito.

Bennett is to return to court Aug. 12.

4 Months In Jail Given For Pot

Richard W. Golden, 22, of San Rafael, was sentenced yesterday to four months in Marin County Jail for possessing marijuana.

Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court also placed him on probation for one year.

Golden was arrested Feb. 9 after a search of his apartment revealed a six-pound cache of marijuana, according to sheriff's deputies.

Black Point Split On Pleasure Faire

Black Point Improvement Association members split last night over the idea of having the 1971 Renaissance Pleasure Faire in their backyard.

Fair director Phyllis Patterson explained to the group that she plans to lease part of the old Sartori Ranch — which now is within Novato city limits — for the cultural and crafts fair which has attracted thousands of visitors each of the last four years in Santa Venetia.

She plans to hold the fair in the Black Point area only this year, Mrs. Patterson said. She reported she is negotiating to purchase up to 1,000 acres in the Lucas Valley area for a permnanent center for Elizabethan era crafts and a theater and museum.

Mrs. Patterson explained that a quirk of the law regarding public access made the owners of the Santa Venetia property reluctant to have the fair there a fifth year in a row. Recent court rulings have held that if the public is given access to recreation areas over private property for five years, the public access right may become permanent, she said.

Black Point residents' views ranged from support of the cultural event as a major Marin County attraction to fears that fairgoers would trespass, use narcotics and clog Highway 37 with traffic.

Mrs. Patterson explained that she stations security guards every 50 feet around the perimeter of the grounds, controls traffic with local police and highway patrolmen and forbids any uses of electricity — including amplified music — from her recreations of the "days of Good Queen Bess."

In a secret ballot, the Black Point group voted 19 to 16 against endorsing the fair, planned for four weekends in September and one in October.

Actual decision on whether the fair will be held on the Sartori Ranch is up to the landowner, John Kenney of Alameda Homes Co., and Novato city officials.

The Black Point homeowners last night also installed new officers and appointed a committee to review the proposed county septic tank ordinance due for hearing by the board of supervisors Aug. 24.

Marathon Fails To End City Strike

Representatives of Mill Valley's striking municipal employees and the city met last night in a marathon bargaining session which continued until dawn, with apparently no agreement reached.

The parties resumed talks at 10:30 a.m. today after meeting from 7:30 p.m. last night until nearly 6 a.m., according to Mrs. Dwight W. McCoy, wife of the president of the Mill Valley Employees Association, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Thirty-nine city employees, excluding police and firemen, walked off their jobs July 1, charging the city with making no serious attempt to bargain with them.

Marin Judges To Conference

Three Marin County judges will attend the fifth annual California College of Trial Judges, starting tomorrow, at Boalt Hall at the University of California in Berkeley.

Those scheduled to attend are Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick and Municipal Court Judges David Menary Jr. and Robert A. Smallman.

The two week course will deal with criminal proceedings, evidence, civil trials, judicial ethics, new developments in the law and for the first time this year, courtroom security, appellate problems and negotiated pleas.

Funeral In Ireland Draws 1,000

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (UPI)—More than 1,000 persons marched in the Roman Catholic Bogside district today at the funeral of Seamus Cusak, 26, shot and killed by British troops in a Londonderry riot.

About 500 persons packed into St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church for services for Cusak. Hundreds of others lined streets outside and marched to the city cemetery where women wept as Cusack's coffin was lowered into the grave.

There were no incidents at the first of the two funerals for Roman Catholics killed in street fighting Thursday, army spokesman said. But afterward a crowd of about 70 youths gathered and began stoning a combined police and army post at Bligh's Lane near the cemetery.

For the sixth consecutive night Londonderry did not sleep. Children roamed the streets hurling stones at soldiers, youths whooped and shouted as they hijacked trucks and the glint of gun barrels could be seen in the alleys.

Shots rang out intermittently after midnight, bringing fearful men and women outdoors in their dressing gowns. Some joined youths in building barricades out of paving stones to seal off the Bogside, a Roman Catholic area of Londonderry.

"The shooting is quite indiscriminate," said an army spokesman. "We don't know how many weapons there are and we don't know where the firing is coming from."

Youths armed with rocks and gasoline bombs surrounded St. Mary's Catholic Church where the body of Seamus Cusack, 26, lay in state. Cusack and George Beatie, 19, shot by British soldiers during rioting Thursday, were to be buried with ceremonial honors today.

CHILE

Premier Fidel Castro ordered a Cuban relief flight.

The quake was the worst since March 28, 1968, when 300 persons were killed by a temblor also centered in the northern end of the Central Valley. It began at 11:05 p.m. in Santiago and shook the city for 75 seconds, causing panic throughout the capital. Police attributed many of the deaths and injuries to panic and the confusion of people trying to find safety when the power lines went down and blacked out the city.

The quake was felt from Arica, on the Peruvian border, to Temuco, 1,400 miles to the south, and was followed by 14 aftershocks into the dawn Friday.

At Illapel, the presumed epicenter, it registered 10 on the 12-point Mercali scale. Seismologists said this was equivalent to 7.7 on the Richter scale, which read 6.5 in Los Angeles on Feb. 9 during the quake that killed 65 Californians.

Three persons were killed in Illapel, and an estimated 80 per cent of the structures were damaged extensively. In Llay-Llay, police said 90 per cent of the buildings were ruined.

In the port of Valparaiso, 25 died and the city of 300,000 was blacked out in parts and without sufficient water. Eight were killed in nearby Vina Del Mar, 11 in Santiago and five in San Felipe.

Missiles Fired At U.S. Jet

SAIGON (UPI)—The North Vietnamese fired three missiles at a U.S. Air Force reconnaissance jet flying over their territory Saturday, but the plane was not hit, an Air Force spokesman said today.

U.S. military sources also said today Viet Cong batteries attacked an American helicopter in the Central Highlands of South Vietnam in what they said was the first Communist-initiated incident involving American forces in Vietnam in nearly five days.

The sources said Communist military activity had dropped during the past few days to its lowest level in the war in nearly two years. They said there normally is a lull in ground action during the summer months, followed by a Communist offensive in late August and early September.

The Air Force spokesman said the reconnaissance jet came under fire over Dong Hoi, on the Gulf of Tonkin coast about 50 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating South and North Vietnam.

He said the plane's fighter-bomber escorts did not retaliate against the North Vietnamese rocket positions, a customary procedure under the U.S. "protective reaction" policy. He said, however, the policy has not been abandoned.

The spokesman declined to speculate whether a follow-up strike would be made, but said the last time missiles were fired at an American plane, on May 16, U.S. jets attacked the missile sites during the next two days.

Carpenter Talks Are Stalemated

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Negotiations in the two-week-old carpenters strike, which now has idled close to 100,000 workers in Northern California, were termed at a "complete stalemate" yesterday by the chief union negotiator.

Al Figone, negotiator for the Carpenters' Union, said picketing will continue Monday at about 200 construction sties where work has been halted since the walkout began.

Although previous statements by the Associated General Contractors, management representative, had indicated negotiations were hung up on pay, both sides yesterday said the disagreement centered on fringe benefits.

No further negotiations are scheduled until Wednesday.

Contracts between carpenters and the AGC and the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association expired June 15. About one week later, carpenters started declining to report for work.

In Marin, Corte Madera Creek flood control work and construction of a major sewage treatment plant in San Rafael have been halted by the dispute.

Stubblebine was a trustee of the Tamalpais High School District from 1961-66, and was director of psychiatric services at Ross General Hospital before becoming mental health chief in San Francisco six years ago. He will be 51 tomorrow.

Stubblebine was born in Minneapolis, and received his bachelor's and M.D. degrees from the University of Oregon. He was a naval pilot during World War II.

OBITUARIES

FRANCIS GRAVELINE

Francis Graveline, 56-year-old former Santa Rosa school custodian, died yesterday of a self-inflicted gunshot wound at a ranch near Chileno Valley where he had been staying, according to Deputy Marin Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Graveline was discovered in a house trailer on the ranch at 12:30 p.m. with a head wound from a .22-caliber rifle, Thomas said.

Graveline reportedly had been despondent since the death of his wife last November, Thomas said.

Graveline, a former Santa Rosan, had been a custodian for the Santa Rosa School District until he became ill, and had been staying with a daughter at the Spaletta ranch at 6701 Road about a month.

EVA E. QUICK

Eva E. Quick, 80, a 29-year resident of Marin, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Quick, of 134 Auburn Street, San Rafael, was the widow of Edward F. Quick, a San Joaquin Valley farmer. She was a native of California and a member of the San Rafael Goldenaires, a senior citizen club.

Surviving are four daughters, Marian L. Miller of Tracy, Maxine L. Fiaccadori of Kentfield and Beverly J. Thompson and Marjorie E. MacNaughton of San Rafael; a son, Louis E. Quick of Castro Valley; five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 11 a.m. Monday at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. The family prefers memorial contributions be to the American Cancer Society.

ALAN GOLDMAN

Alan Gilbert Goldman, 42, of 9 Hazel Court, San Rafael, was discovered dead yesterday on a wooded hill near his home after taking an overdose of barbiturates, according to Deputy Marin Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Goldman, claims manager for the Club Corp. in Oakland, had been dead about 24 hours when his body was discovered by two youths at 4:20 p.m., Thomas said.

MRS. ELLIOTT

Mrs. Elliott, wife of James D. Elliott, was admitted to the hospital at 3:10 p.m. and pronounced dead at 3:30 p.m., reported Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Mrs. Elliott was on a ladder to the above-ground pool when she either fell or collapsed and landed on her face, Thomas said.

Death apparently resulted from a head injury, but an autopsy is pending. Funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Sanity Hearing In Murder Set

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A sanity hearing was set Thursday for July 22 in Alameda County Superior Court for Christopher Cowsar, 21, accused in the April 30 stabbing death of an Air Force Recruiter from Novato.

Two psychiatrists have been appointed to report on Cowsar's mental condition.

Cowsar is charged with attacking S/Sgt. Rogers S. Mobley, 32, at a Berkeley recruiting office. Witnesses said Cowsar shouted that Mobley had to die because he was "sending people to Vietnam."

Water Transit Manager Hired By Span Board

Stanley M. Kowleski of San Rafael, northern California regional manager of Matson Terminals, yesterday was hired as the Golden Gate Bridge District's first water transit manager.

Kowleski, 44, was selected from among almost 50 applicants from throughout the nation for the $26,500-a-year job. His hiring was announced after a half-hour closed meeting by district directors.

He will supervise planning and operations for the district's expanded ferry system, scheduled to grow from the single vessel now operating between Sausalito and San Francisco to a fleet of five serving Larkspur as well by early 1973.

Kowleski has worked for Matson since 1954, and had held his current position since for the past five years. He formerly was a merchant marine officer with Grace Lines in New York.

STANLEY M. KOWLESKI
New ferry manager

In his current position, he runs seven terminals in the Bay Area handling 900 ships a year.

Kowleski will assume his new job by the end of this month.

He received a bachelor's degree from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., in 1947. He later attended the University of California, receiving a bachelor of science degree in 1954.

Married and the father of two children, he has lived in San Rafael for the past 10 years. He resides at 81 Dominican Drive.

15 Riders Don't Equal One Bus

Golden Gate Bridge District directors, launching their own version of a telephone booth stuffing contest, yesterday agreed to allow up to 15 persons in a vehicle before charging it as a bus.

The limit was upped from nine persons after Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring reported an unhappy letter from a patron who objected to being charged the $2 bus fare because he had more than nine persons in his vehicle.

What hurt, was that all were members of his family.

So even the smallest car, if it has no more than 15 persons including the driver, now can get through the toll gate for 50 cents.

Luehring, proposing the change, said the previous limit of nine persons "seems to be in contradiction of our efforts to get more people into vehicles and thus have fewer vehicles on the highway."

Interim $23 Million Budget Is Approved

Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday unanimously adopted an interim $23 million budget without discussion.

The figure was almost twice the district's anticipated income for the new fiscal year, but no mention was made before the full board of any figures whatsoever. District reserves will more than cover the budget, heavily laden with initial expenses of a bus and ferry system.

The budget, reported in detail yesterday by the Independent-Journal, was presented for the first time Thursday afternoon to the finance-auditing committee. The committee, after hearing the staff present the budget, voted to leave it in committee pending salary and wage negotiations.

The committee did not discuss the budget in any detail, but yesterday reversed itself and recommended it be adopted by the full board "subject to readjustment" with new pay scales.

Board President Lowell Edington of Napa County, acknowledging that a budget was not required by law, insisted that failure to have one would damage the district's public relations.

Last fiscal year's $4.2 million budget was drawn before the district got into the transit business in operations.

The new budget included $12.1 million for the bus system, $4.4 million for repairs and improvements to the span, $4.4 million for general operations and maintenance, $1.9 million for the ferry system, and $112,000 for long-range transit planning.

Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also:

BUSES — Asked for a $1.1 million grant to purchase 20 smogless buses from the Flxible Bus Co. of Ohio.

HOVERCRAFT — Voted to test two high-speed ferries between North Sausalito and San Francisco if the Pentagon approves their import from England for the six-month test.

PROMOTION — Contracted with the district's public relations consultants, Arnold and Palmer and Noble of San Francisco, for an $87,500 campaign to promote the bus and ferry system during the new fiscal year.

POWERHOUSE — Contracted with the firm of Mazzetti and Parish to design, supervise and inspect improvements to the powerhouse, their fee for the $190,000 project not to exceed $10,800.

SAUSALITO — Invited the Sausalito firm of Environmental Planning and Design associates to submit a proposal for doing a general plan for the district's ferry terminal in North and downtown Sausalito.

RADIOS — Invited Watson Communications Systems Inc. to submit a proposal for design and installation of a two-way radio system in the bus fleet.

SAN RAFAEL — Contracted with the San Francisco engineering firm of Sverdrup and Parcel and Associates for initial design of the bus maintenance facility at San Rafael for $56,000.

RAMP — Accepted a quotation from the firm of D. W. Nicholson for a six by 50-foot ramp for the San Francisco ferry landing for $4,295.

SPAIN — Referred back to committee a proposal to send four district officials to the annual convention of the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association in Barcelona in October. The proposal failed, 7-2, three short of the 10 votes needed.

LEGISLATION — Received report that legislation leaving the district free to operate charter ferry operations had cleared the Assembly Transportation Committee Thursday. The bill, AB 919, was by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco.

BONDS — Purchased 100 metal frames, at a cost of $950, to display canceled district bonds used as public relations gifts.

FERRY — Received report that the Sausalito ferry had made 3,848 trips since Jan. 1 and missed only one round trip due to a leaking fuel line. Other repairs were made at night.

BUSES — Received report that the district's ferry feeder buses had made 5,526 runs since Jan. 1 with no cancellations.

'PUBLIC RIDICULE'

Magee's Attorney Says Judge 'Impaired' Capacity To Serve

By MARY LEYDECKER

SAN FRANCISCO — The court-appointed attorney for Ruchell Magee said yesterday that remarks made in court by a federal judge about him "greatly impaired my capacity to serve. . ."

Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles, the tall, courtly lawyer who is representing Magee against the convict's wishes, said after court he is considering resigning.

"He held me up to public ridicule," Graves said in reference to statements of Judge Samuel Conti of U.S. District Court.

He was referring to a verbal exchange that came yesterday when the judge wanted Graves to represent Magee in the federal court appearance.

Graves first said that he was not representing Magee in federal court, and the judge remarked that "you must represent Mr. Magee; you sent a bill to the County of Marin for $8,855."

Graves insisted he did not want to become involved in Magee's attempts to get the case transferred to federal court, saying he was an "ignoramus" about that branch of law.

"If you can't explain to Mr. Magee what is going on in court today, you'd better take another look at that bill," the judge said, ordering Graves to take the appointment.

In yesterday's court action, Judge Conti turned down Angela Davis's bid to have the case transferred to federal court and also refused to disqualify himself as prejudiced.

He also said he considered Magee's repeated petitions to federal court a "legal abuse of the process of the courts" and added that Miss Davis seemed to have joined him in attempts "to delay state court proceedings."

Miss Davis's attorneys said after court they will appeal Conti's decisions.

Magee and Miss Davis are charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the shoot-out last August at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others were killed.

Pretrial hearings in their case have been set to resume at 9:15 a.m. July 19 in the Marin Hall of Justice.

Rare Sculptures Stolen From Brundage Gallery

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Three rare sculptures, including a pair of 7th century S. D. Chinese statues, have been stolen from the Avery Brundage collection being exhibited in Golden Gate Park.

The value of the art objects was not disclosed, but center director Yvone D'Argence who lives in Mill Valley, said a $500 reward was offered for the return of each object.

Stolen were two Chinese monster-like figures weighing 40 to 50 pounds each and an 18th-19th century A.D. kneeling attendant female figure from Burma.

ONE VIETNAM MOTHER

In Her 47 Years, She's Only Known Ravages Of War

By STEWART KELLERMAN

SAIGON (UPI)—The sun peeks in through a crack in the wooden shack, waking Tran Thi Lanh from another restless night's sleep. She rubs her eyes and nudges her two daughters sleeping beside her on the hard slat bed.

Lanh dresses in wrinkled black pajama bottoms and soiled white peasant shirt. She lights a pile of wood scraps in the middle of the dirt floor and puts a smoke-black pot filled with water into the flames.

She can see herself reflected in the water, deep zigzagging wrinkles making her sun-browned face look like a badly plowed field. She remembers the farm where she was born, the mangos once grown there, and all the troubles she's seen since.

Lanh isn't a soldier, but she's seen more of war than most fighting men. She can't remember a day without fear since she was born 47 years ago. And she doesn't expect to have one before she dies.

The story of Tran Thi Lanh is the story of millions of Vietnamese uprooted from their ancestral homes by war and forced to fend for themselves in crowded refugee camps and dirty streets. Most don't give a damn about politics. They've been shot at by Communists and shot at by government troops. All they really want is to live in peace.

The U.S.-run War Victims Directorate says 3.5 million refugees have been forced from their homes since 1965, most when caught in the fighting, the rest as a result of Allied relocation programs. Another 3.5 million civilians have had their homes damaged or lost breadwinners in the war.

The Directorate says 925,000 of the refugees have returned home with the help of U.S. money and supplies, 880,000 are in refugee camps, and the rest are just making do as best they can.

At 47 she looks old enough to be her own mother. Her once black hair is grey and her bony body is covered by rough dry skin.

"I don't know why there's always fighting in Vietnam," she said through an interpreter. "I wonder but I don't know why. I'm not very smart and maybe that's why I don't understand."

She was born on her family's small farm outside Sa Dec, a city of pale pink cinder blocks homes 75 miles southwest of Saigon.

"ALL I'VE EVER known is fighting," she said in a soft resigned voice. "There was fighting when I was a child and there was fighting when I grew up. I never saw any peace."

When she was a child, nationalists were fighting the French in her district. Later, as a young woman, the Viet Minh were battling the French rulers. By the time she was a widow with two daughters, the Viet Cong were up in arms against the South Vietnamese government. When her brother was drafted into the Saigon army, the North Vietnamese were fighting alongside the Viet Cong and the Americans alongside the South Vietnamese.

"Whenever I looked up there was fighting," she said, staring into her lap and trying to smooth out the wrinkles in her pajama bottoms. "There were years when there was fighting every day. There was trouble as far back as I can remember."

LANH'S FAMILY just barely scraped out a living on their one-acre farm. "We didn't have much to eat," she said. "We were always hungry."

She married Le Hong Chi, the son of a nearby farmer, in 1951. She was 27 and he was 28. "Life was very hard for us, but we were happy," she recalled. "Things are always a little better when you have someone to share your problems.

"We lived at home with my parents. We had two daughters. There was still a lot of fighting but we tried not to think about it."

Her husband was forced into the French army in 1954. He was killed a few months later, just before the French surrendered at Dien Bien Phu.

Trouble never stopped in the Sa Dec area. It was a hotbed of Viet Cong activity in the 1960s. Lanh said the people were evenly divided, half supporting the Communists and half backing the Saigon government. She said she supported the government.

"THE COMMUNISTS would come in and ask for help," she said. "If we refused they'd burn our homes. But if we helped, the Americans or the government would bomb us. There was no way out. No matter what we did we were in trouble."

Her brother, Thanh, was drafted into the South Vietnamese army in 1966 and he's still a soldier. Several close friends of her family went to fight for the Viet Cong about the same time.

In 1967, Lanh decided she'd had enough. The fighting near her farm had worsened and her family was caught in the middle. She moved with her daughters to the home of relatives just outside Saigon.

"We figured we'd be safe there," she said. "We got settled and things seemed better again. It looked as though everything might turn out okay. then, two months later, we had trouble again, the Tet fighting. Our new home was burned down and we were almost killed."

She couldn't return to Sa Dec because her old home --taken over by the Viet Cong during the 1968 Tet lunar new year offensive—was destroyed by government troops in ensuing fighting.

SO SHE MOVED with her daughters into a refugee camp in Saigon's Cholon District. She's been there ever since, living in a one-room shack without toilet facilities, running water or lights.

Her home is made of unpainted wooden boards. Refugees dump dirty water, garbage and human refuse into a ditch in front.

Stench from the ditch fills every corner of the shack.

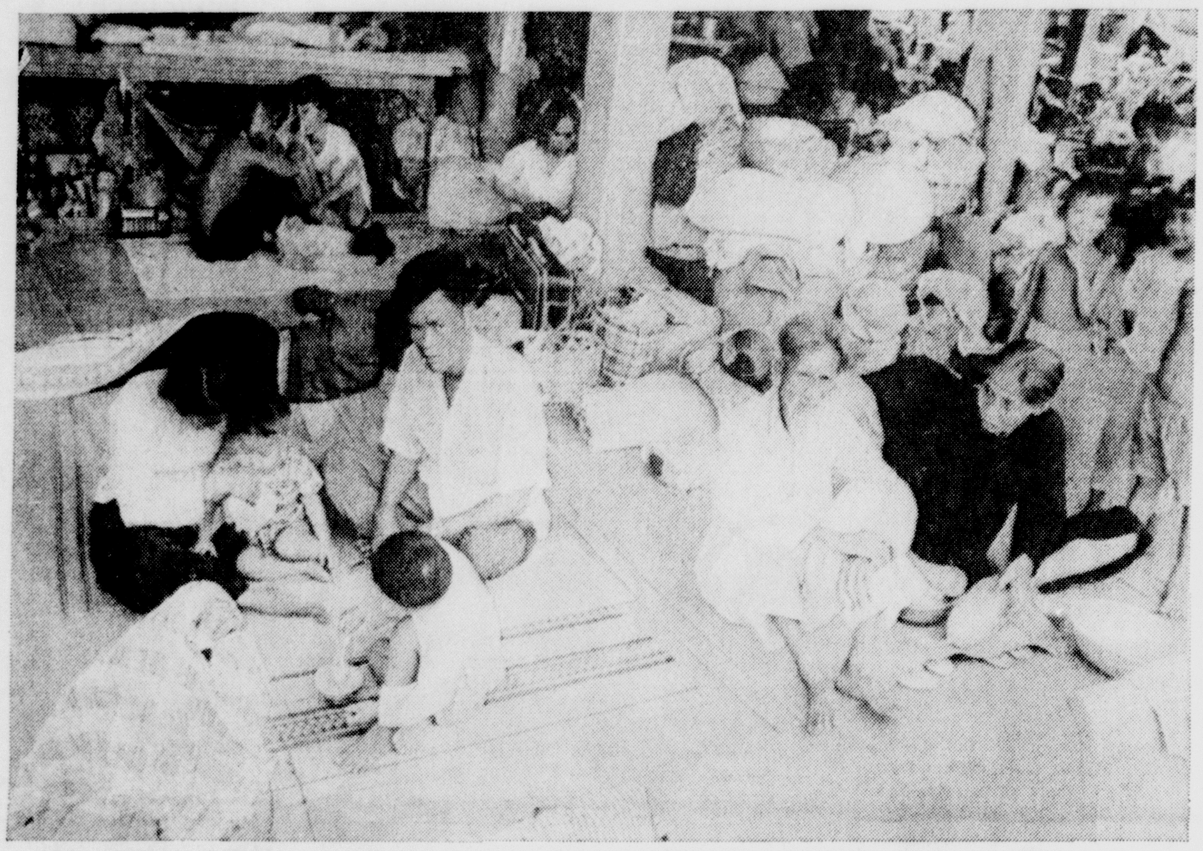
"It's not really so bad here," Lanh said. "Actually, I'm living better than before. But this really isn't my home. It's only where I live."

She sold cigarettes and candy on the streets of Saigon until recently when she quit because of cataracts in her eyes. Her oldest daughter, Ly, 19, now supports the family on 10,000 piasters ($36) in monthly earnings as a seamstress.

"WE'VE GOT enough money for food now," Lanh said. "Things are a little better. But I'm still afraid. I don't think that will ever change."

She sat in a simple wooden chair and clutched her knees with bony hands. She called her daughters near and put her arms around their waists. She leaned her head against Ly.

"I'm very tired," she said. "Very very tired."



MILLIONS OF Vietnamese families have been uprooted from their ancestral homes by the Vietnam war and must fend for themselves in refugee camps and dirty streets. Most don't care about politics, having been shot at by both communist and allied troops, and say they just want to live in peace. Here refugee families sleep on the floor in a Buddhist temple in the Cholon section of Saigon.

MEN'S FASHIONS

White Shirts Now Proper — Few 'Ifs'

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — It is proper to wear a white shirt again these days but only if it is not plain white and if the collar points are not less than three inches long. It is not proper any more to wear a neck scarf with a shirt worn open at the neck, and if you do wear such a shirt the collar points should be worn outside the jacket.

These were a few random observations by Karl Dallas one of London's top fashion editors, a witty and urbane gentlemen who writes in Tailor and Cutter. Dallas has been known to criticize the royal raiment of Prince Charles, and he once added Mao Tse-tung to a list of men who might possibly make a best dressed list.

More recently in the pages of Tailor and Cutter he has been pondering over the lack of male elegance in a society where some people think there are no standards at all. He launched his own fashion movement for People who Realize there Ought to be Points by which Elegance can be Recognized, or Proper, as he has chosen to call it.

Dallas has compiled a long list of what is and what is not proper.

It is not proper to wear pendants around the neck for example, and almost all jewelry except cuff links. Very soon, certain kinds of tie pin will become proper, but not quite yet.

THERE IS something curiously old fashioned about the use of the word "proper" in this day and age, so we rung in Robert L. Green, who as fashion director for Playboy Magazine, has become known as one of the great pooh-bahs of men's fashion, as witty and urbane, of course, as Dallas.

"The sense of strong ritualism in men's apparel has vanished," Green said. "Still, there is something strangely dated about the use of the word 'proper,' and then, too, I think rules are essentially for the insecure.

"People are developing a sense of pleasure towards fashion and living, and there is a revolution in attitude towards the roles people play, the status of women, for example, more liberal views on homosexuality, the changed status of varriage.

"It is strangely dated, reading a piece about what is proper and what isn't. It's behavior, really, that counts, the acceptability as determined by a group, and we are all members of many groups. What would be outre at a board meeting might be delicious at a rock concert.

"I HAVE the feeling that what is proper is determined by one's peer group and not by fashion authorities. If you belong to a suburban country club you quickly find out what will go. There are standards but they are related to one's peer group, and of course, the situation.

"Relaxed Greenwich Village fashion is quite valid, but it is endlessly different from Westhampton WASP, and each has a lively time rejecting the other. What is proper is really the group, the time, the place."

Myopia Poses Threat To Young Children

By FRED J. COOK
(First of a two-part series)

NEW YORK — A father in Bethesda, Md., was desperate. His 9-year-old son had degenerative myopia. The boy's eyesight was failing so fast that blindness threatened. "As I am sure you know," the father wrote, "almost all opthalmologists will tell the anxious parent, 'there is nothing you can do about it."

The case of the Bethesda boy is not unique. There are an estimated one million children in America with similar problems. Myopia, commonly known as near-sightedness, is not a simple ailment. In its degenerative form, eyesight steadily fails, and — despite corrective, milk-bottle-thick lenses — the objects the myope perceives become increasingly blurred and dim.

AN ESTIMATED one-third of the American public — some 68 million persons — suffer from near-sightedness, and about 3 per cent of these have high, or degenerative, myopia. Yet little is known about myopia; no adequate research has been done in the United States, according to Myopia International Research Foundation. Inc.

If your child has myopia, should he be allowed to watch television? If so, how much? There are no scientific guidelines. Some doctors restrict TV watching; others think it makes little difference.

And what about school work? Should a child with myopia read much or little? Most doctors agree reading should be done only under the best lighting conditions, but many hold that the amount of reading doesn't matter much. Foreign researchers are more cautious, believing that excessive close work increases the danger of further damage to the eyes.

Such was the jungle of uncertainty into which the Bethesda father stumbled when his son's eyes began to fail. An intelligent man, having had eye problems of his own in his youth, he went to the National Library of Medicine in Bethesda and read up on myopia.

HIS LAYMAN'S mind was impressed by reports of a treatment used by Dr. Seymour Gostin, of Dallas, Tex. Dr. Gostin treated eyes with drops of a drug, scopolamine, used in conjunction with bifocals. But when the father called the attention of opthalmologists in the Washington area to Dr. Gostin's work, "most of them have proved too busy even to discuss it, and the few with whom I have discussed it have agreed in voting a lack of confidence in this or any other drug therapy."

It was at this point, on Feb. 15, 1969, that the father wrote the Myopia International Research Foundation in New York asking for help. Were research reports available that might be used to convince his skeptical doctor?

There were such reports, and they were available through the work of Mrs. Sylvia N. Rachlin, a social service expert who herself had fought a life-long battle with myopia and who had founded and still heads the Myopia Foundation. In Mrs. Rachlin's files was a report by Dr. Robert H. Bedrossian, of Vancouver, Washington, a pioneer in drug treatment.

Dr. Bedrossian had selected 42 of his young patients whose eyes were failing at an abnormal rate; he had treated them with atropine; and he had contrasted the results with a control group that had started out with slightly better eyesight. And he had found that "there was an actual decrease in myopia in many of the eyes treated with atropine while in almost every control eye there was an increase . . . "

MRS. RACHLIN sent Dr. Bedrossian's research paper and other reports to the specialist designated by the worried Bethesda father. Less than a year later, on Jan. 23, 1970, the father wrote that "the results have been spectacular." Not only had scopolamine halted the galloping deterioration of his

Kathleen L. Herrington of Novato was sworn into the Army Thursday and is leaving tomorrow for eight weeks of basic training at the WAC Training Center at Fort McClellan, Ala.

She is the first woman in the Bay Area to enlist in the Army Reserve who has not had active duty experience.

Kathleen, 23, was graduated from high school in Texas. She is a student at San Francisco State College, where she is a drama major. Her parents are Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Rupert C. Herrington of Novato.

According to Maj. Sue Sylvester, a member of the Reserve Unit at the Presidio of San Francisco, Kathleen enlisted in the reserves because she is interested in gaining knowledge of the military as she is contemplating active duty in the military when she completes college.

"This way she will get to know what the military is like while only making a commitment to complete basic training and serve one weekend a month and 15 days during the summer for three years," explains Major Sylvester.

Abortion Law Repeal Backed

The American Home Economics Association passed a resolution in favor of repealing laws restricting or prohibiting abortions if performed by a licensed physician.

The action on abortion, taken at the annual convention in Denver, stated that "a responsible position concerning abortion should be based on the rights of the individual woman, her family and society."

The home economists also passed resolutions urging more interest in serving the aging, improving public housing, providing equality to minority groups and improving the status of women.

Biafra Mothers Welcome The New Health Centers

ENUGU, Nigeria (UPI) — Today, mothers and children are lining up again in long queues at the health centers, which have reopened in Nigeria's eastern region of Biafra.

Wide-eyed and respectfully silent, they wait patiently in the freshly painted reception rooms for the varied services now available once again.

Expectant mothers wait for a pre-natal check-up. Some have brought their children for vaccination or for the treatment of some ailment. Others are there to pick up medical supplies or waiting to discuss some health problem with the nurse, public health worker or the doctor, if necessary.

IN CONSULTATION with World Health Organization, UNICEF is reequipping training schools for auxiliary health workers as a first step to help revive the rural health centers and effect the normalization of basic health services since the civil war which ended in January, 1970. UNICEF began by providing equipment and supplies for 12 hospitals, 25 rural health centers, 200 dispensaries and maternity units as well as supplying essential bulk drugs: chloroquin, multi-vitamins, trisulphate ointment, etc., without which a health service cannot function. Provisions were also made for more than 80 vehicles, ranging from large trucks to smaller units, such as Landrovers, Volkswagen ambulances and even outboard engines for river boats in the delta areas.

No further UNICEF aid is required for emergency feeding. Provision has been made for the distribution of the weaning food PKFM — a pre-cooked protein-enriched cereal flour, which was developed with UNICEF's aid. It will be made available to undernourished and malnourished children through maternal and child health clinics.

BUT KWASHIORKOR, the protein-deficiency disease that menaced the lives of millions of Nigerian children during the war, appears to have been eliminated as a major problem in the eastern region. Although there is a continuing protein shortage, Nigerians are being urged to eat more fish to improve the protein content of their diet, which is usually based on yams, cassava and other starhy foods.

Some Suggestions For That Summer Job — Rewarding, Too

DEAR HELEN:

Here's a suggestion for teenagers who don't have jobs: Many elderly people or shut-ins need help with shopping and other errands. Also with chores and gardening — possibly even walking the dog.

Put a sign in your nearest grocery store (supermarkets usually have a shoppers' bulletin board) and at the closest church. You could work out a schedule so you could shop for several people at once and you'd be helping them as well as yourselves. — B.W.

DEAR HELEN:

I am 19, in love with a 45-year-old married man. He has five nice children. In fact, I met him first when I was dating his 19-year-old son. Things just happened from there.

He wants to get a divorce and marry me. I know I'd make a good wife and mother, even though young. My parents say he is a good-for-nothing bum and tell me he has several illegitimate children, but I don't believe them. They even produced a young girl he'd had an affair with. What does that prove, except that she wasn't good enough for him?

Whom should I believe, my parents or my heart? — IN LOVE

DEAR IN LOVE:

Believe your parents! Your heart evidently makes you deaf, dumb, blind, gullible and greedy. Which makes you ripe for plucking. — — H.

DEAR HELEN:

It's too late for Father's Day, but then it's too late for my father, except as a memory. he died a year ago when I was 13.

I'd like to tell everybody about him. Maybe this will remind kids that they should tell their parents NOW that they appreciate them. I'm only glad Dad knew how much we loved him.

Most people who knew my father thought of him as an all-busines man. But he was quite different from that.

My Dad was the kind that wrote poems saying, "If you don't get well, I'll sue the hospit-ell!" No matter how busy he was, he always had time for you.

He would ride horses, take you along on business trips and get you ice cream. He'd go swimming late at night if you dared him to.

He was the kind that would take us kids to court so we could know what happens in a courtroom, and he'd explain all about it because he was a lawyer, you see.

He understood everything we talked about — or at least acted like it, and listened. He did his best — and it was really the best.

We miss him! — DAUGHTER OF A REMEMBERED DAD

young son's eyes, but between March and June, 1969, the boy had recovered the loss of the previous three months.

The improvement continued. In a letter in November, 1970, the father reported that, after two years of treatment, his son's eyes were "better than they were before we began this regimen . . . There have been no complications or side-effects . . . My son's eyes remain good enough to read massively, without strain, and to play on his school football team (pretty well)"

The Bethesda case is only one among many that illustrate the seriousness of the myopia problem. Not so long ago Mrs. Rachlin received a frantic phone call from a young woman visiting New York for a day. The caller said her sister was about to receive her Ph. D. in biochemistry at the University of Indiana — and, suddenly, she found she had lost the central vision in one eye. Could anything be done to help her? Mrs. Rachlin agreed to send pertinent research papers to a designated specialist.

Another day a postman walked into the tiny office of the Myopia International Research Foundation at 415 Lexington Avenue, New York.

"MRS. RACHLIN," he said, "I have been delivering your mail for years, and now do you know what's happened? My little niece has a serious case of myopia. I can't believe it."

The postman, his voice rising, explained how the family had gone from one celebrated eye specialist to another — and had become lost in a bewildering sea of conflicting advice.

One doctor urged use of contact lenses — "but our little girl is only five, Mrs. Rachlin. How can she wear contact lenses?" Another said: "I can do nothing but give corrective glasses. Come back in six months." A third suggested use of atropine, but a fourth warned: "Stay away from atropine. All those drugs are very dangerous."

Several Ways To Finish The Matched Collar Outfit

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE:

Since I intend to think about my fall wardrobe now, inspired by all the fashion releases, I intend making some garments with notched collars. I have never known just exactly how the top stitching for decorative purposes, or the edge binding should be finished at the point where the lapel joins the top collar. Please illustrate this difficult construction point and show us several variations?

MRS. T. W.

DEAR MRS. T. W.:

This is a timely question. Please save the answer and file it away for easy reference when you are ready for the final details of adding just the right touch to your completed jacket, coat or dress.

When you are using a fold over braid or making your own binding from satin, knit or whatever (incidentally, any binding you make yourself, instead of using the fold over braid, must be cut on the bias), you do not continue from the collar, and try to go around the place where the collar and lapel meet. End your binding by turning over a small edge, and hand finishing. Then begin again, by turning over an edge of the binding and continue around the rest of your garment. Where the two pieces of binding end, a nice, straight line should appear.

With flannels, camel hair and men's wear fabric reappearing in the ready-to-wear market, there will be a big return to the hand-picked edgings or they perhaps will be top stitched by machine. For the most part, you will follow the same detail outline that you used in bindings. These decorative stitchings also do double duty, they keep the edges nice and smooth in fabrics that have a tendency to puff up and not stay in place.

I have found another illustration, where the seam of the top collar, joining the lapel was completely disregarded. The type of lapel I am referring to is not the rounded type, but the higher, more pointed lapel. This type was stitched to a reverse "V" with the stitching

You may do this decorative stitching by machine provided your top stitching is perfect. You may also do this by hand, using buttonhole twist. I have seen other variations that look more like a small saddle stitching, done in two rows instead of one. Experiment and find which will do the most for your garment.

"I was so pleased with a knit dress I just finished until I discovered it was inclined to catch on anything sharp, such as rings, bracelets, etc. After awhile, I had several pulled threads which spoiled the appearance of my dress.

"In order to pull these threads to the inside of the dress, I threaded a needle and put a knot on the end. Then I put the needle into the pulled thread and pushed the needle to the inside of the dress. The knot at the end held the loose thread until it reached the inside. This made my dress as good as new again and didn't make a small hole that is bound to come if you cut these snags off."

DEAR EUNICE:

Just when I was taking great pride in the appearance of my set-in sleeves, I noticed the new ones seem to be very full at the cap, almost gathered. I'm not sure I like this new effect, but I did try it and had great difficulty keeping the gathers nice and even. Mine turned out to look more like tucks. Can you give us any little tip about the above detail?

MRS. D.E.W.

DEAR MRS. D.E.W.:

The new gathered sleeve is one variation of achieving extra shoulder width. It is still a variation; not all sleeves will be designed this way. It is definitely a very young look.

The length of your machine stitch is the factor to remember when gathering anything successfully. The longer the stitch, the more difficulty you will have. Since the weave of the fabric controls the length of stitch you use, always test a small area before you begin. The closer the weave of the fabric, the longer the stitch you will have to use.

It's a good idea to use 100 per cent polyester thread in the bobbin for extra strength. Place two rows of machine stitching at the area to be gathered, one row exactly on the seamline, the second row one-quarter inch closer to the cut edge, always stitching from the right side of your fabric. Carefully take both of the bobbin threads from the wrong side of the fabric and pull together until you have the desired ease your pattern calls for. You'll find by using the shorter stitch, you will have a smoother gathering and less pleating.

DEAR EUNICE,

I know there are remedies for removing the creases from synthetic fabrics, but they take so much time and they aren't always successful. Can't patterns tell us how to cut our garments to avoid these creases?

MRS. J. W.

DEAR MRS. J. W.:

With most fabrics in the new wider widths, it isn't too difficult to avoid these creases if you plan ahead. Actually, I never recommend using the fold of the fabric for a piece of my garment that is to be cut on the fold. Sometimes the fabric could be slightly soiled, faded, and it is most certainly creased. All you have to do is to re-fold the part of the fabric that will be used for the part of the dress (usually the center front) to be cut on the fold. It can usually be accomplished successfully without any additional purchase of yardage.

KATHLEEN WALKER
Engagement announced

Betrothal Of Couple Announced

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Walker III announced the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen G. Walker, to John Bernard Parker of Sparks, Nev., at a recent family gathering at their home in Belvedere.

The couple will be married on Sept. 11 at St. Stephens Church in Belvedere.

A graduate of Redwood High School, Kathleen is beginning her third year at the University of Nevada in Reno, Nev. She is the sister of Mrs. Robert W. Morrill Jr. of Antioch and David S. and Kim Walker of Belvedere.

Her grandparents are Mrs. H. R. Sanborn of Fairfax and Mr. and Mrs. David H. Walker Jr. of Carmel Valley, formerly of Mill Valley and San Rafael.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jeanne Parker and James Parker and the brother of Jan and Julia Parker, all of Sparks.

He was graduated from high school in Sparks and is also beginning his third year at the University of Nevada. Following their wedding the couple will return to Reno to continue their education at the University.

Boom Lowered On The Male Therapist

A feminist psychologist has lowered the boom on male therapists claiming they perpetuate the newest myth of male supremacy.

Dr. Phyllis Chesler, noted research psychologist, author and assistant professor of psychology at City University of New York, charges that many male psychotherapists tyrannize the women who come to them for help.

Interviewed in the July issue of Harper's Bazaar, Dr. Chesler says, "The therapeutic encounter is just one more instance of an unequal relationship in which they assume a submissive, dependent position in contrast to the masculine role of authority and expert."

Pointing out that women comprise the largest group of psychiatrically hospitalized Americans, Dr. Chesler attibutes it to a damaging double standard in mental health.

A study cited in the Bazaar article —titled "Tyranny of the Male Therapist" — reveals that when psychologists and psychiatrists were asked to define 'normal adult behavior,' 'male behavior' and 'female behavior,' they portrayed women differently — as more emotional, less aggressive — as not having 'normal' or 'adult' traits.

An additional tyranny exists among therapists who practice more by their own ideas than by any actual psychoanalytic theory, she states. As a result, some practitioners wrongly encourage women to become sexually promiscuous which, according to Dr. Chesler, is not the same as liberation.

Dr. Chesler urges that women patients see female therapists who are feminists. A female therapeutic community would be a ghetto, she says, but a necessary interim in the liberation battle.

Suntan Lotions' Labels Tell Use

Advice to protect the family against sun burning through the summer from the manufacturers of suntan lotions:

Read the label carefully before buying a lotion to know exactly what the product will do.

Sunscreens let tanning rays through but minimize the number of burning rays that reach the skin.

Tanning butters and other rich moisturizers have no sunscreen effect and should be used only by persons who already have a good base tan.

Marin Shadespeare Festival To Open With Musical

The Marin Shadespeare Festival will open its 11th season next Friday at Forest Meadows Theater of Dominican College with the musical, "Once Upon a Mattress."

This medieval comedy is one of six attractions included in the Festival's "Season of Classic Comedy." Other productions include: two Shakespearean plays, "Much Ado About Nothing" and "As You Like It;" a children's classic, "Wind in the Willows," and a guest production of "The Sorcerer" by the San Francisco Lamplighters and a modern adaptation of "The Liar."

The annual "Feast to Good Will" will precede the premier performance. This year's feast is a Renaissance picnic to be held on the grounds of Forest Meadow. Guests will dine on a medieveal menu of barbecued fowl, salad, bread, brandied pies, cheese, fruit and wine, shop at a medieval fair, and be entertained by the Festival Singers, strolling minstrels and a dancing bear.

Dan Caldwell, head of the drama department at Tamalpais High School, will direct "Mattress." Terence Cahalan of San Mateo and Dick Leonard of Mountain View, have the leading roles.

The play is scheduled to run next Friday and Saturday; July 22 through 25 and Aug. 4 through 6 and 14 and 15.

Caldwell will also direct the Festival's second attraction, "Much Ado About Nothing," scheduled to begin July 30.

For the first time the Festival will present a play especially for children. "Wind of the Willows" will be directed by John Brebner, a member of the San Francisco Player's Guild. Included in the 10 performances of "Willows," which opens August 7, are six Saturday matinees.

Robert and Marlene Egan, who have performed with the Festival, will direct "As You Like It" the season's last production, opening September 8.

Ticket information may be obtained through the Festival office or Forest Meadows Theater, both in San Rafael.

Archie Womble Named To Gallinas Village CSD

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board has appointed Archie Womble of Santa Venetia to replace Jack Hockinson on the board.

The Thursday night meeting was attended by 16 teens from Teen-agers in Action who received the board's help on three programs, according to Marguerite F. Clark, secretary.

Mrs. Clark said the board is underwriting and paying half the cost of a bowling league 18 teens have signed up for.

The board will help pay the cost of two teen trips, the first on July 16 to Santa Cruz and the second in August to Pacheco Ranch in Novato for a hayride and barbecue, she added.

Becky Preble of Teen-agers in Action said at the meeting 11 teens are participating in the Reach Out program sponsored by Marin Open House. The program starts Monday and will provide Marin teenagers with information and aid about problems of drugs, venereal disease, pregnancy, mental health and family counselling.

Meeting For Civil Defense Cancelled

Wednesday's scheduled civil defense planning session of city and district officials with Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella has been cancelled, his office reported yesterday.

No new date has been set for the meeting, pending completion of the first draft of a new countywide coordinated plan to cope with natural disasters. Louis H. Baar, board of supervisors chairman, had asked Campanella to outline emergency plans for the Wednesday meeting, following a preliminary get-together with city officials June 2.

Lutheran Conclave Opens Before 1,500

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)— The Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod opened its biennial convention Friday night with a public worship and massed choir singing by the 1,500 delegates.

Daily committee meetings and hearings are scheduled for the next week to study a list of resolutions and debate topics relating to the synod's 2.8 million members. Topics to be discussed include abortion, public evangelism, the Vietnam War and social action issues.

ART REVIEW

Sensitivity: Key To A Photographer

By LAURA DEVENDORF

While we see lots of boring painting exhibitions, it's hard to find many deadly photography shows. This is partly because there are few photography shows around to see.

In the competition for gallery space, photographers have traditionally been treated as second class citizens, their work always last in line behind paintings, drawings, prints or anything else which classifies as wall-hung art.

The few photography shows we do get to see, however, suggest that there are many competent, if not exciting photographers waiting in the wings. And chances should be improved for seeing some of them with the advent of the Tintype Photography Center, 23B Main Street in Tiburon.

According to gallery director Donald Tatum, Tintype will have monthly exhibitions of worthy photographic artists plus two shows yearly by the gallery member group.

The exhibit there now through next Thursday is the work of Stephen Joses of Larkspur. Taken together, his photographs have no over-riding theme or technique. Instead, they embrace a group of subjects in color and black and white which are literally oceans apart. Each is treated as a self-contained study concentrating on design, imagery or some special quality the subject possesses.

At one moment Joses captures the composition a cat creates as it emerges from broken wall; another moment, the lens-bent architecture of a Spanish street. At another time he may explore the dim fusion of light and flesh in a nude. While at yet another, he may find an unusual natural happening such as the light-struck skeleton of a leafless fir encircled by dense darks of the living forest. Each photograph, while different in intent and treatment, has solid individual meaning.

If there is one major sensitivity it is to a feeling of remoteness, especially in the people Joses selects. Whether he finds them in the poignant poverty of a Moroccan street or sharing the day with a shaggy colt on the windswept grasslands of Stinson Beach, most of them seem to occupy a place that is private, thoughtful or otherwise set apart.

Dirty Clothes On Span Cleaned Up

Bridge officials and a highway patrol car quickly responded. The bridge officials threw the laundry in the oily rear end of a tow truck, but not before the highway patrol car drove over some of the dirty clothes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

New Studies Show Gallstones Caused By Liver Disorders

New studies show that gallstones develop because of a disorder affecting the liver, not the gallbladder. These reports mainly concern the cholesterol variety, the most common gallstones of North America and Europe. In the past, we blamed the gallbladder, which usually was infected. The new discovery will be of little practical value to our gallstone susceptible population and is similar perhaps to the ancient question of what came first, the chicken or the egg?

DOCTORS D. M. SMALL and S. Rapo tested their theory on American Indians of the southwest who develop (almost exclusively) cholesterol-type stones. They found that Indians with these stones have a liver that secretes bile supersaturated with cholesterol. This abnormal bile exists prior to the formation of gallstones and continues while the rocks are growing. By the same token, the liver must continue to do so after the gallbladder is removed, explaining why stones develop occasionally in the tube that connects the liver to the intestine.

On reaching the gallbladder, the cholesterol-rich bile precipitates into crystals. The agglomeration of many crystals are glued together with an organic cementlike substance.

WE DO NOT know whether the stones form quickly or over a long period. There is a possibility that the supersaturated bile finds conditions in the gallbladder conducive to crystallization and stone formation.

This cholesterol is the same fatty substance implicated in atherosclerosis, heart attacks, and strokes. It is manufactured by the liver cells and some of it enters the bloodstream. The rest goes into the bile (much is reabsorbed by the intestines). Among the Indians in the study most of it is secreted into the bile explaining why the digestant is supersaturated with the substance. This is an assumption — because these Indians harbor many gallstones but they have low blood cholesterol levels and little hardening of the arteries.

AFTERMATH OF PSORIASIS

Mrs. O. D. writes: My husband has had psoriasis for years and now his ankles ache. Is there any relationship between the two?

REPLY

Yes, in that one per cent of all psoriasis victims develop rheumatoid arthritis. The skin affliction usually precedes arthritis. The joints of the hands and feet are involved most frequently. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on psoriasis.

THYROID REMOVAL

L. L. writes: Can a person lead a normal life if the entire thyroid gland is removed?

REPLY

Yes, but supplemental thyroid tablets will be needed to make up for the deficit. Complete removal of the gland is rare; a small amount is left behind because of technical difficulties.

SORE THROATS AND THE APPENDIX

A. V. writes: Would an appendectomy prevent the development of frequent sore throats?

REPLY

There is no relationship between these structures. Removal of diseased tonsils may lessen the frequency of sore throats.

RESERPINE

S. K. writes: Has reserpine ever caused physiologic addition?

REPLY

No.

Former College Trustee Calls For Active Support

A former trustee of the Marin Community College District yesterday criticized local businessmen and professionals for not assuming a more active role in the affairs of their schools.

"How many of you, I wonder, ever attended discussions at the local school district level?" Elizabeth M. Deedy asked an audience attending the annual meeting of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

"How many of you ever attend the series of (school district) meetings when the tentative budget is approved, when a more developed budget is approved for publication and ... when the final budget is adopted?" she asked.

"The public has been generally overwhelming by its absence, its silence at budget time," Mrs. Deedy asserted.

Mrs. Deedy, who stepped down this month from the college board after 13 years, told the audience of about 100 persons that education was its investment and that it must protect it.

"The money for this great system," she said, "has certainly not come from some great genie on a high mountain ... or in Sacramento ... it has come from the tax dollars of you and me."

Mrs. Deedy criticized businessmen for challenging salaries paid to educators without knowledge of teaching duties. Judgments, she continued, should be made after learning of new programs, existing programs, salary requests and the wide range of school district business.

Referring to the Independent-Journal's policy of publishing public employee names and salaries, she said such information (about teachers) "would be effective if used for more than criticism of costs ..."

Mrs. Deedy's speech also contained a few barbs for the state Legislature, which, she said, considers itself a "super board" of education.

"The Legislature mandates programs, often without provision for necessary funds," she said.

Other new officers are Harris C. Jackson, first vice president; J. Galen Foster, second vice president; Edward B. MacGuire, secretary, and Donald W. Chapman Jr., treasurer.

13 Injured In Rioting Near Seoul

SEOUL (UPI)—A U.S. military spokesman said today at least 13 persons were injured, two of them seriously, in a riot Friday night between local residents and Americans Negro soldiers in Pyongtaek, 35 miles south of Seoul.

One newspaper said 50 Koreans were hurt in the fighting.

The American spokesman did not have details of the riot, but local newspapers said it started at 9:30 p.m., when some 100 black soldiers stormed Korean-run clubs open only to white soldiers.

Negro GIs, armed with sticks and broken bottles, smashed tables and other furniture at four clubs in Pyongtaek and assaulted the employes, the reports said.

About 170 U.S. military policemen and 80 Korean national policemen rushed to the scene and fired more than 100 rounds of tear gas cannisters to put down the riot, according to the reports.

The riot came to an end about two hours later, when the negro soldiers dispersed, the reports said.

Then, about 500 Koreans living in Pyongtaek, armed with sticks, tried to stage protest actions against the black soldiers. South Korean police dispersed them at about 2 a.m. today, according to the reports.

Tunney To Tour State Next Month

By BENJAMIN SHORE
(I-J Special Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Sen. John V. Tunney has scheduled a whirlwind nine-day tour of California next month to rekindle some of the public enthusiasm that swept him into office last November and to take the state's political pulse.

The 37-year-old Democrat, traveling with staff and press in private planes, will begin his tour Aug. 7 in San Diego, move north through Orange County, tour the suburban areas around San Francisco, visit the northern counties, return to Los Angeles with stops in coastal cities, and finish with a run through the Sacramento and San Joaquin vallies.

This 22-city tour is almost a carbon copy of one he made in the closing days of his election campaign against Republican Sen. George Murphy. Two former campaign advance men were hired a month ago to plan the tight schedule.

Major addresses will be given at the Town Hall in Los Angeles on Aug. 10 and the Commonwealth Club in San Francsco on Aug. 11.

The tour, estimated to cost around $10,000, is to be paid for by many small-fund-raising events during the tour and by private donations, Tunney aides say.

The tour is being billed as a "report to the people". Tunney is expected to speak on what he has been doing during his first seven months in the Senate, and on some of the major issues before the Congress.

Aides also suggest that Tunney's close contact with the general public and Democratic Party officials and workers will help him evaluate the relative strength of the various Democratic presidential contenders in California. Tunney is expected to play a major role in the state's delegation to the party's nominating convention in Miami Beach.

Tunney also hopes to use the statewide tour to solidify his personal and Senatorial field organization.

Another Set Fire Erupts

Another in a long series of set fires erupted in tinder-dry grassland last night in San Rafael's West End section, city firemen reported.

The blaze, which broke out at 10:50 p.m., burned an area 50 by 80 feet off Indian Trail Road, firemen said.

Firemen said they believe a juvenile is responsible for nearly 30 grass fires which have occurred in the area in the past six months.

Two Days In Jail On Charge

Alexander A. Ziburtovicz, 23, of San Anselmo, was sentenced yesterday to two days in Marin County jail for disturbing the peace.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also placed him on probation for two years.

Ziburtovicz pleaded guilty last moth to misdemeanor charges of indecent exposure and soliciting lewd conduct, but a new complaint — charging only disturbing the peace — was filed by the district attorney's office yesterday when Ziburtovicz appeared for sentencing.

Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony said a pretrial agreement had been reached with Ziburtovicz's attorney stipulating that Ziburtovicz, who originally had pleaded innocent to the exposure and soliciting charges, would plead guilty to a disturbing the peace charge.

Ziburtovicz was arrested May 4 after a 16-year-old girl reported to police that a man wearing nothing but a T-shirt drove his auto alongside her and exposed himself.

GREEK ORTHODOXY

Education Key To Parish

By MARY BORNS

This education is the immediate goal of Rev. James Adams, silver-haired, 40-year-old clergyman now beginning his 16th year in the priesthood and his first in Marin County.

"I would like to see members of my parish from the youngest child to the oldest adult, educated to the distinctives of the Greek Orthodox Church," he says.

Adams came to the infant parish only a few months ago. His congregation of 75 families is trying to expand — to 100 families by the end of the year, to build a church as soon as possible.

According to officials of the church Greeks in this area mainly attended Holy Trinity Church and Annunciation Cathedral, both in San Francisco, until the Marin congregation began two years ago.

The new body brought the number of Bay Area churches to six, serving about 30,000 people, almost half the population of the 10-state Western Diocese.

The group has been meeting in Montgomery Chapel of San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo. Its membership has grown large enough for a building, but one of the original members says the group is moving slowly and carefully, searching out a piece of land that will be accessible to all Marin County Greek Orthodox people.

"A physical structure is very important to the Greek Orthodox," Father Adams explains. "We're a traditional church and part of our tradition is our beautiful buildings which are elaborately decorated. This is done in order to give the faithful a sense of the presence of God in their church."

"I try however to minister to the non-faithful as well as the faithful," the minister quickly added. Adams explains that though his church does not solicit members it is aware of its importance to become involved in its community. Religion, to the Greek Orthodox, is an everyday matter, he says.

Like every other organized religious group, the Greek Orthodox church is losing its young people, Father Adams says.

To circumvent this exodus, the archdiocese has formed a department of youth to focus in on the concern of young people.

"The archdiocese is making an effort to center the church around young people. It is researching and giving more time and efforts to the youth of today."

"Our young people are clamoring for English to be spoken in the church," Adams explains. "The traditional church still uses Greek in its liturgy, but more and more of our members are coming from homes where English is the primary language." Adams' congregation is about half American born Greeks and half immigrants. He has incorporated English into his worship services.

The tall, distinctive looking pastor was almost predestined to become a priest. His ancestry includes a grandfather, a great uncle and an uncle who were all priests.

But he entered the clergy, he says, "because I always enjoyed the church." Marin County is his fifth parish: his other parishes have included Salt Lake City, Anchorage and Las Vegas. He, his wife, Evelyn, and their three children live at 59 San Miguel Way, Novato.

Adams's concept of ministry centers around his "faith in the future, faith that there will be a better world" and his belief that "it is important for a priest to bring more spirituality into the world."

The young priest would like to persocify this concept in his ministry to Marin County.

PROGRESS AT BOSTON CHURCH CENTER

At the recent annual meeting of the Mother Church of the First Church of Christ Scientist in Boston, delegates had a chance to tour the new church complex. The domed building (upper right) is the Mother Church extension. Construction is still under way on the 26-story new Administration Building (left) and the five story Colonnade Building (right) which joins The Christian Science Publishing House. Nearly completed is the new Sunday School Building (top center).

Assembly To Draw 30,000

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — More than 30,000 are expected at Kezar Stadium Wednesday through next Sunday for Jehovah's Witnesses district assembly.

The conference, centering around the Bible and 20th Century living, will begin at 1:40 p.m. Wednesday with music and a preview of the convention program. Speakers will include Lyle E. Reusch, assembly chairman, and District Supervisor Alvyn L. Franck.

Thursday afternoon's program will feature a presentation on the dangers of using drugs. It will present practical suggestions whereby families can protect themselves in this drug-crazed age.

Friday morning will see the Witnesses' characteristic mass-baptism of new ministers.

Dramas in both present-day and Bible settings will be staged on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings dramatizing Bible events and principles and applying them to modern-day living.

Assembly climax will come on Sunday at 3 p.m. when Reusch delivers the address "When All Nations Collide Head-On With God."

In releasing the program highlights, James L. Waddington, circuit supervisor in San Rafael, said that the five-day program is open to the public. The district comprises central and northern sections of California and Western Nevada.

Mission Team To Be Guests

Rev. and Mrs. Donald Taylor, missionaries for the Christian Missionary Alliance Church, will speak at the 11 a.m: service tomorrow at the Neighborhood Church, Petaluma.

The Taylors are on furlough following their second tour of duty in Thailand where they have served since 1961.

The newly organized church choir will make its first appearance at the service.

OF GOD AND MAN

Most Common Of All Human Sins

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

The most common of all human sins is putting other people down.

It's so common that many of us who are guilty of this kind of psychological aggression never stop to think how wrong, how truly evil, it is.

You know what "putting down" means, of course. It's an exceedingly useful phrase that young people have added to the English language. It means substantially the same thing as "belittling" or "denigrating," but it's much more vivid. It manages to suggest both the motivation and the effect of remarks and gestures that are calculated to make another person feel stupid or inferior or gauche.

Some people use put-downs out of deliberate cruelty. But most of us put others down because we're trying to build ourselves up—to gain some edge of moral or intellectual superiority that will give us an advantage in our relations with the target of the put-down.

Put-downs may be directed at strangers or casual acquaintances. But they are most vicious when they take place in the context of an intimate relationship. Husbands use put-downs against their wives, and vice-versa. Some parents consider it almost a holy duty to put down their teen-age children whenever the slightest opportunity arises. Children subjected to this treatment quickly become equally adept at making parents feel foolish.

It is characteristic of the put-down that the person administering it thinks he's being terribly subtle, whereas the victim immediately recognizes the slap for what it was intended to be. To pretend you really didn't mean to hurt or embarrass someone, when in fact that was precisely what you hoped to do, is to compound malice with hypocrisy.

People who think of sin in terms of earthier vices of the flesh may be surprised by the assertion that it's sinful to put another person down.

They should re-read their Bibles—especially the teachings of Jesus. He said the supreme moral law, the one commandment in which all other rules of human conduct are subsumed, is that people should love one another.

When Jesus spoke of loving others, he did not mean being fond of them or feeling affection for them. He meant that we have an overriding duty to deal kindly and charitably with everyone with whom we come into contact—to treat others as we'd like to be treated ourselves.

Putting down is sinful because it is an offense against charity. It is essentially an unloving act, no matter how hard we try to justify it in our minds as a come-uppance which the other person needs.

With his extraordinary insight into human nature, Jesus recognized how easy it would be to rationalize a put-down by saying, "I did it for his own good." He forestalled that alibi by warning that none of us has any business trying to judge, criticize or reform someone else. Perhaps if we could all grasp this truth there would be less alienation and antagonism between generations.

Education Minister To Deliver Sermon

The Covenant Church meets at the Miller Creek Junior High School at 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue in Marinwood.

"Can Parents and Children Relate?" will be the theme of his morning message. He will speak on some positive aspects of this vital relationship in our present society.

Prior to his coming to Redwood City Larson served as pastor of the Lakeview Covenant Church in Duluth, Minn.

Presently he is responsible for all phases of education for the Redwood City church. He has written study materials for Gospel Light Press and edited children's materials for the Evangelical Covenant Church of America.

Gary R. Copland, pastor, is currently on vacation, and will be back in the pulpit next Sunday.

Youth Team Will Help Novato Church

Students as Volunteer Evangelists (SAVE), composed of five young people, will assist Rev. Robert H. Graham, pastor of the Novato Orthodox Church, in a summer evangelistic program.

One of the major projects of SAVE will be assisting at daily vacation Bible school which will begin July 26. The group will also assist in Sunday school and in the formation of a new youth program.

Church Official To Be Guest Preacher

Rev. T. Arnold Thompsen, director of church extension of the American Lutheran Church Board of American Missions, will preach at tomorrow's 10 a.m. service at Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church in Tiburon.

Lutheran Relief Gifts Set Record

Relief contributions in 1970 in the Lutheran Church of Australia totalled over $64,200, the largest amount since the church was formed in 1966.

Relief gifts have increased steadily since the formation of the 112,000-member church in a merger of two former Lutheran bodies, according to Sidney A. Bartsch of the Lutheran World Federation Department of World Service.

Rev. Strom Named Stockholm Bishop

Rev. Ingmar Strom, director of the Central Council of the Church of Sweden for Parish Service, has been named bishop of Stockholm.

The 59-year-old clergyman succeeds the Rt. Rev. Helge Ljungberg, who has been bishop 17 years and also has served as chairman of the steering committee of the Swedish Ecumenical Council.

News Center For West Coast

NEW YORK (LC) — A communications bureau to assist Lutherans in the western states with their information and interpretation tasks will be established this summer in San Francisco by the Lutheran Council in the USA.

The bureau will be housed in the Urban Life Center, associated with St. Mark's Lutheran church, which is located at O'Farrell and Eddy streets in San Francisco. It is scheduled to open in mid-August.

Herb W. David, a former California newspaperman, has been assigned to direct the office. Since February 1967 he has been secretary for publications in the New York headquarters of the LCUSA Division of Public Relations.

Giants' Rally Beats Bums; A's Nip Angels In 20th

Blue Goes 11 Innings; Strikeout Records Set

OAKLAND (UPI) —Jim Hunter was the 36th and last player of a record-breaking game that ended early today and will be the starting pitcher of another game later today as the Oakland A's and California Angels go at it again.

Angel Mangual's two-out single scored Curt Blefary in the bottom of the 20th and last scheduled inning of Friday night's game to give the A's a 1-0 win over the Angels.

Mangual plunked the game-winning hit on a 2-2 count off loser Mel Queen at 1:08 a.m. PDT. If Mangual had been retired the game would have ended because of curfew and resumed some 12 hours later.

Two major league strikeout records were broken, as the two clubs had a combined whiff total of 43—breaking the mark of 36 set in 1964 by the New York Mets and San Francisco Giants in a 23-inning game.

Angel batters struck out 26 times, including 17 strikeouts by A's starter Vida Blue, to break the one team mark of 22 set by the Mets in that same game.

The win went to the fourth Oakland pitcher, Darold Knowles, who came on in the 19th.

The A's 11th hour rally in the five hour, five minute game began when Queen hit Blefary with a pitch leading off. One out later Dick Green singled Blefary to second. Queen struck out pinchhitter Hunter but then Mangual ended the long evening.

Blue set two modern-day A's strikeout records. His current mark of 188 for the season is the best for any A's pitcher in Oakland and Kansas City. The all-time A's season strikeout mark was set in 1904 by Rube Waddell with 349.

Blue was sent to the clubhouse after the 11th inning for reasons of weariness. Rudy May, who struck out 13, was removed for a pinchhitter in the 13th. He held the A's hitless in the last seven innings he worked.

California threatened twice against Blue. In the sixth, the Angels had men on first and third with only one out, but Blue struck out Ken Berry and Tony Conigliaro. Then in the eighth the Angels got back-to-back singles with one out, but again Blue escaped.

UNHAPPY VALENTINE — San Francisco first baseman Willie McCovey kept his foot on the bag and ball in his glove despite a poor throw to put out Dodger Bob Valentine last night in Los Angeles. The Giants, exploding for six runs in the ninth inning, beat the Dodgers 7-4.

Six Run Ninth For S.F.; Dodgers Now Six Back

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A banner crowd of more than 55,000 jammed into Dodger Stadium and it seemd that most of them came there with the express purpose of booing Juan Marichal.

Marichal, the high-kicking pitcher who is graceful as a gazelle, started for the Giants against the Dodgers Friday night. Going back to last season, he had a six-game personal winning streak gainst the Dodgers.

The Los Angeles crowd which seems to cheer only Willie Mays of the visitors booed Marichal when he threw his swift one close to Dodger batters and they angrily ranted at him each time he came to bat.

If this had been the covered Astrodome in Houston, one could have said the crowd raised the roof when Marichal left the game in the seventh inning, trailing 4-1.

As it turned out Marichal was not involved in the decision. His Giants got six runs in the ninth and pulled the game out by a 7-4 score, much to the chagrin of th Dodgers and their numerous fans. There were some happy faces in the stands, at least 260 Bay Area residents who came here to watch the Giants.

Willie McCovey, in only his second game since he came off the disabled list with a bad knee, got two hits, including a bases-loaded doubleer key blow was a single by catcher Dick Dietz who knocked in two of the six runs.

Veteran relief pitcher Don McMahon toiled on the mound for only one inning, the eighth, but he got credit for the win. His record is 6-4.

Jim Brewer, Dodger southpaw who is usually stingy with the batters, came on in relief of Claude Osteen in the ninth and gave up three hits before he was replaced by Pete Mikkelsen who finally got the side out. Brewer took the loss and is now 4-3.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Dodgers who have what seems like a rather weak hold on second place in the National League West. It looks like the Giants are galloping into the sunset with the division championship and they're now six games ahead of the Dodgers.

The rival managers, Walt Alston and Charlie Fox, pointed out as is the age-old custom of managers that the season is not over yet. If they had a chance to speak in unison there is little doubt they would say, "We play one game at a time."

Fox, eyes twinkling behind his glasses, said "I'm not making any predictions. I wouldn't make any predictions even when we were 10 games ahead."

He positively beamed when he spoke of McCovey who played with a truss on his left knee and a heavy bandage down to the ankle because of a torn cartilage which may eventually require surgery.

"It was good to see the big fellow out there," said Fox. "He gives us a big lift. He got two hits and made a couple of fine plays in the field. The doctors tell me he can last the season with a shot of cortisone in his knee every 10 days."

Alston, with Job probably one of history's most patient men, said quietly, "We've lost five in a row and we had a chance to win all five."

The Dodgers got their first run, an unearned one, off Marichal in the third. Bill Buckner, who had a feud going with Marichal, doubled to lead off and was sacrificed to third by Osteen. Maury Wills then hit a grounder to shortstop Chris Speier who threw to the plate trying to get Buckner. Buckner crashed into catcher Joe Ferguson who was blocking the plate. Buckner tagged home as Ferguson got his hands on the ball but dropped it for an error.

Bucs Would Skip All Star Game

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Sparky Anderson created some enemies for his selections for the National League All-Star team, but Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillon, two Pittsburgh Pirates who made the grade, would just as soon sit the game out.

Stargell, whose missed 13 games this season, mainly because of knee injuries, would prefer resting when the National and American Leagues go at it Tuesday night in Detroit.

Ditto for Sanguillen, the durable Pittsburgh catcher who feels he could use three days off to prepare himself for the second half of championship season.

"I'll go to Detroit and take my swings, but with these legs I'd be better off staying home," Stargell said. "With ten outfielders on the National League squad, I'll be lucky to stay in the game long enough to get two strikes."

Neither Stargell or Sanguillen looked tired Friday night. They combined for six hits and eight hits batted in as the Pirates belted the Atlanta Braves, 11-2, to move eight games out in front of the National League East.

Stargell will start in left field field for the Nationals, having been voted in by the fans. Anderson selected Sanguillen as his only other catcher, behind the Cincinnati Reds Johnny Bench.

Stargell's 29th homer, high in the majors, was his ninth against Atlanta pitching this year. The three-run blast came of left-hander Steve Barber, proof once more that the managers who used to bench Stargell against southpaw pitching might have been mistaken.

It was Stargell's seventh homer off a lefty this year. In 1966, when Harry Walker managed the Pirates, Stargell said he got to bat against lefthanders "only a couple of times all season."

"It was so bad," Stargell added, "that even when a lefthander came in to relieve, Harry would take me out in the middle of the game. Then a couple of innings later they'd have a right hander pitching again. I know Herman Franks of the Giants and Leo Durocher of the Cubs did that deliberately because they'd know Harry was going to lift me."

Sanguillen, catching Nelson Briles' first complete game of the season, contributed two singles and a bases loaded triple.

"It is a great honor, being picked to play in the All-Star game," Sanguillen said, "but I know I would be stronger if I rest, and besides, the pennant, that is more important than the All-Star game."

Briles' job was made easier by three double plays and a triple play, first in the National League this season. It was an around-the-horn triple play, Richie Hebner to Dave Cash to Bob Robertson on rookie Leo Foster's sharp grounder to third with runners at first and second.

"I didn't think we had a chance getting Foster, because he's supposed to be a fast runner," Robertson said, "but Hebner must of thrown the hell out of the ball to Cash and Dave made a hell of a pivot to get the ball to me in a hurry. He reminded me of Bill Mazeroski, the way he turned the ball loose."

Suyderhoud Has Second Best Jump

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — Two teenagers — 16-year-old Wayne Grimditch of Hillsboro, Fla., and 18-year-old Christy Lynn Weir of McQueeney, Tex.—held over-all leads of better than 200 points each going into today's second round of the Masters Water Ski tournament.

Grimditch, youngest of the male entries in the 13th annual tournament, won first day honors Friday in trick skiing, tied for the slalom lead with Krist LaPoint of Castro Valley, Calif., and took third in jumping behind world champion Mike Suyderhoud of San Anselmo, Calif., and Ricky McCormick of Independence, Mo.

Miss Weir, a high school honor graduate last month, won the women's slalom and trick events Friday and tied for second in jumping behind airline stewardess Barbara Cooper Clack of Lakeland, Fla., who fell only five feet shy of the women's world jump record with a leap of 105 feet.

The top five in each of the three events, men and women, on the basis of combined scores in Friday and today's rounds will qualify for Sunday's final.

Grimditch, winner of last year's national boys' title, scored 2914 out of a possible 3,000 points Friday. That was 203 points more than runnerup Suyderhoud, who turned in a 159-foot jump that was just six feet shy of his world record, and 225 ahead of McCormick, the defending Masters champion.

Miss Weir scored 2,889 points to lead second place Lisa St. John of Fall River Mills, Calif., by 226 points and the third place Clack by 262.

Barbara Cleveland of Hawthorne, Fla., set a new senior women's jumping record Friday with a leap of 94 feet. Miss Cleveland joined the senior division last year when she turned 30.

Aussie Teen Sets World Record

By RON SUPINSKI

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) —A blonde teen-ager who loves spaghetti and wears braces on her teeth is leading the reemergence of Australia as a world swimming power.

Soft-spoken, 14-year-old Shane Gould, who entered international competition only a few months ago, shattered the women's 400-meter freestyle record Friday at the opening of the three-day Santa Clara Invitational swimming and diving meet.

She splashed to a 4:21.23 victory over Karen Moras, a 17-year-old brunette who, like Shane, is a member of the Ryde Swimming Club of Sydney. Miss Moras, who set the old world mark of 4:22.6 at London in April while beating Miss Gould, finished five seconds behind her in second place Friday.

"I was hoping for something around the record," said Shane. "I hope to do a few good times and make the Australian Olympic team next year.

"Karen was a very good sport and accepted the loss graciously. But the next time I guess it will be her turn to win."

While setting the 22nd world mark in five years at the meet, Shane was timed in 1:03.84 for the first 100 meters, 2:09.64 at the halfway point and 3:16.04 at 300 meters.

Miss Gould ate canned spaghetti on toast for breakfast and followed it with a light lunch of spaghetti, peas and string beans for lunch "because I would be unable to digest steak." Then she went out and opened the fifth annual event with a meet record of 59.27 in the 100 freestyle.

Miss Gould, who tied countrywoman Dawn Fraser's world 100 mark of 58.9 and broke American Debbie Meyer's world standard in the 200 meter freestyle at London in April, became the first girl to crack the one-minute mark in the 100 at Santa Clara. She clipped 34-hundredths of a second off Sue Pederson's meet mark set in 1968.

Miss Meyer, 18, of Sacramento, Calif., winner of three gold medals at the 1968 Olympics, tried unsuccessfully to qualify for the 100 freestyle here, finished 12th and out of the finals. She then scratched from the 400 freestyle, an event in which she held the world standard before Miss Moras natched it 10 weeks ago.

Today Miss Gould will swim in the 200 freestyle and follow it up Sunday with a go in the 800 meter freestyle.

On hand to watch their daughter's record performance were Ron Gould, market manager for East-West Airlines of Sydney, and his wife, Shirley.

"I was slightly overwhelmed to say the least," said Gould after the 400 freestyle. "But this means she will be allowed to stay in the United States until at least Tuesday.

"I promised her if she set a world record, we would allow her to tour the San Francisco area with the other swimmers on Monday instead of flying back to Sydney with us on Sunday."

Gould said he was reluctant to take his daughter out of the third grade of high school (ninth grade) for the meet. Shane began swimming at the age of three and entered local competition at nine.

In addition to the one-two Aussie finish in the women's 400 freestyle, Graham Windeatt and Graham White of Australia took first and second in the men's 400. Windeatt duplicated his feat at London earlier this year by whipping American record holder John Kinsella with a meet record time of 4:05.48. Kinsella, of Indiana and Hinsdale, Ill., held the old meet mark of 4:08.095.

White's runnerup time was 4:06.39. Hans Fassnacht of West Germany and Phillipps 66 Long Beach was third in 4:07.15 and Kinsella fourth in 4:09.80.

Two breaststrokers from the Soviet Union—Nicolay Pankin and Galina Stepanova, 22, mother of a year-old daughter—won their specialties.

Pankin established a meet record by coming on strong in the final 50 meters to upset world record holder Brian Job in the 200 breaststroke with a meet record 3:25.72. Job, whose old meet mark was 2:25.8, finished 27-hundredths of a second behind the Russian. Job's world record is 2:23.5.

"I just had enough to make it," said the 22-year-old Russian who was wearing a U.S. Olympic swim suit. Asked about the suit, Pankin replied: "When I want to win, I wear it."

Job was a bit philosophical about his loss but was optimistic he would make the U.S. team for the 1972 Olympics.

"He (Pankin) was in better shape," said Job. "Also, he shaved before the meet... I didn't. At Munich (site of the 1972 Olympics) I'll go out faster."

Marin Girls Set Team Record

I-J Special Report

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — A career-best medley relay performance by a foursome of Marin Aquatic Club women highlighted local swimmers' showings at the prestigious Santa Clara International Invitational swim meet yesterday.

Kim Hughes, Sue Secondo, Denise Ham, and Jo Hislop placed tenth in an impressive field that included United States team record holder Lakewood Aquatic Club, and a quartet of vsiting swimmers from the Soviet Union. The Marin girls broke their team record for the 400 Meter Medley Relay event in the time of 4:46.6.

Miss Hislop, a petit high school junior, placed 18th in the 100 Meter Freestyle in 1:03.32, while Miss Ham, a senior, placed 18th in the 200 Meter Breaststroke in 2:53.87 to lead local individual performances.

According to Marin coach Don Swartz, other good showings were made by Paul Cane and Keith Strange in the Mens' 200 Meter Sbreast, and by Miss Secondo in the Womens' 200 Breast.

Nine Marin C. C. swimmers qualified for the meet, making this delegation the largest from the county ever to attend the world-class meet at the International Swim Center.

Five Share Lead In Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)— That tight little course known as the Tripoli Country Club is enjoying a tight little tournament this week—one of the tightest, in fact, in professional golf history.

"Man, oh man," said Ken Still, one of the five co-leaders after the second round of the $125,000 Greater Milwaukee Open, "it looks like a nice little tournament."

Still, who won the meet two years ago; Deane Beman, who won last year; Dean Refram, Dan Sikes and first round leader Dave Eichelberger all entered today's round with scores of 134—eight under par— and five more pros were tied one stroke back.

In the second plac deadlock at 135 were Rod Funseth, Jim King, Ralph Johnston, Lou Graham and Bruce Crampton. One stroke further back were Roy Pace, Bob Shaw, Jerry Barrier and Lionel Hebert.

A total of 71 players made the cut and the last ones were just seven strokes off the lead. The GMO was just no place for a par golfer because it took a 141, one under, just to make the field for the last two days. It was the most closely bunched group of cut survivors on the PGA tour this year.

"Anybody making the cut can win," Refram said. "Someone will break through for a 62 to 63. I just hope it's me."

"It all depends on the putting," Eichelberger said. "Anyone who putts well will shoot a good score."

Beman, who had the best round of the day Friday—and one of the best ever at Tripoli—with a 63, showed how true Eichelberger's words were.

He needed just 24 putts and had 12 one-putt greens and he rated this round even better than one he had in 1968 when he tied a PGA record with just 19 putts.

"I chipped some shots with a putter in that one—and they didn't count as putts," Beman said. "This had to be the best. If I'd had putted like this yesterday, I would have had a 60." As it was, he finished with a first round 71, matching par on the 6,548-yard course. So he needed everything he got in Friday's round.

"I'm playing better than I ever did—even better than last year," Beman said. He won the 1970 GMO with a 72-hole score of 276 and it looks like the score this year will be considerably lower.

Still, after his 68, seemed more interested in the British Open and Lee Trevino's showing than he did in what was going on out on the course after he had finished.

While Beman—and many of the others—had hot putting rounds, Sikes had his troubles.

"The longest putt I made was four feet," he lamented afterwards. "If I had made some of them I missed, I'd be three or four strokes ahead.

Players Pick Their All Stars

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Sporting News said Friday that a midseason All-Star poll of major-league baseball players produced a different team than that chosen by the Rams for the All-Star game.

The national sports weekly, polling the players for the second year since the All-Star vote was returned to the fans, said the two teams were the same for five positions in the National League and four positions in the American League.

However, the players picked Manny Sanguillen instead of Johnny Bench at catch in the National League, Lee May instead of Willie McCovey at first and Willie Davis instead of Willie Mays in the outfield.

The fans and players agreed in the National on Glenn Beckert at second, Joe Torre at third, Bud Harrelson at short and Willie Stargell and Henry Aaron in the outfield.

San Diego Firm Wooing Warriors

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A private organization is trying to lure the San Francisco Warriors to play it least 20 of their home games here, but any decisions as to whether the Warriors can move must wait for the outcome of a Monday meeting to determine who will operate the San Diego Arena.

Joe Holmes, president of the Sportscasters-Sportswriters Association, says he has met twice with Warriors' President Franklin Mieuli about the possible move.

The sports group is attempting to raise $300,000 to underwrite the Warriors.

The matter of who will run the sports arena has been taken to court by the arena bondholders. Several private groups were believed to be competing for the management permit, and there was a strong possibility of a city takeover of the privately owned facility.

49ers Send Scouts To Anderson

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—Tony Razzano, the agent for San Francisco 49ers top draft choice Tim Anderson, says the 49ers took the first step towards breaking Anderson's contract stalemate and sent two scouts to begin talks with him.

"It was basically a groundbreaker," Razzano said Friday in an interview with the Oakland Tribune.

Razzano, who has charged that the 49ers would not negotiate with him but preferred to talk directly with Anderson, said 49er scouts John Michelosen and Chuck Cherundolo flew into Dayton Thursday. He said another meeting was scheduled Friday.

Meanwhile, Anderson, a Ohio State star, has been working out every day at his home in Columbus, Ohio, with the program prescribed in the 49ers rookie training book.

Renko's Monthly 1-Hitter

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Steve Renko of the Montreal Expos celebrated the first monthly anniversary of his first major league one-hitter in gradiose style Friday night by pitching another one.

Renko, who one-hitted the San Francisco Giants on June 9, tossed a one-hitter against the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night as he hurled the Expos to a 3-0 victory. The only hit Renko allowed was a first inning single by Willie Montanez.

"I feel I am learning to pitch now," said Renko, who was a first baseman in the minors before being converted into a pitcher. "I enjoyed playing first in the minors but it probably cost me some education in pitching. At times I thought I had better stuff but after the fourth inning, I had good control of all three of my pitches."

Renko retired the last 18 batters in order in fashioning his one-hitter. He also set up one run with a single and scored another.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh routed Atlanta 11-2, Cincinnati beat New York 6-4, San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 7-4, St. Louis took a doubleheader from Houston 5-2 and 9-5, and San Diego beat Chicago twice 1-0 and 7-2.

Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillen drove in four runs apiece as the Pirates boosted their Eastern Division lead to eight games over the Mets. Stargell connected for his 29th homer of the season and drove in four runs while Sanguillen also drove in four runs with three hits, including a three-run triple.

The Pirates pulled off the first triple play in the NL this season and also turned in three double plays.

George Foster and pitcher Wayne Granger hit homers to pace the Reds' victory as Cincinnati tagged Tome Seaver with his fifth loss of the season. Joe Gibbon retired two batters in the ninth inning to choke off a Met rally and preserve Ross Grimsley's fifth victory in nine decisions.

Steve Carlton's five-hit pitching enabled the Cardinals to win the first game and Julian Javier's hitting paced the Cards to a victory in the second game of their doubleheader with Houston. Javier drove in four runs with a pair of triples in the second game. Doug Rader and Jim Wynn homered for Houston in the nightcap.

Dave Roberts and Bob Miller stopped the Cubs on five hits in the first game and Nate Colbert drove in four runs in the second game as the Padres swept a doubleheader. A triple by Ivan Murrell and a sacrifice fly by Ed Spiezio gave the Astros their only run in the fifth inning of the first game.

Angel Beats The Angels

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

It took an Angel to stop the Angels.

Angel Mangual stroked a twoout single in the bottom of the 20th inning early Saturday morning to lift the Oakland Athletics to a 1-0 victory over the California Angels in a record-shattering five hour, five minute marathon.

Mangual's hit ended the game in the last inning possible because of the American League's curfew rule and came at 1:08 a.m. PDT. The game would have been resumed later today if Mangual had been retired.

The clubs broke two major league strikeout records, thanks in large to a 17-strikeout performance by Oakland's Vida Blue, who went the first 11 innings. The two teams set a combined strikeout mark of 43, breaking the record of 36 set in 1964 by the New York Mets and the San Francisco Giants, the Angels' 26 strikeouts also broke the record of 22 set by the Mets in that game.

Billy Cowan of the Angels earned the dubious distinction of tying a major league mark by striking out six times.

Elsewhere in the American League Friday night, Baltimore beat Cleveland 4-1, Detroit edged Washington 1-0, Chicago beat Milwaukee 4-1, New York downed Boston 5-2 and Kansas City trimmed Minnesota 6-3.

Jim Palmer pitched a five-hitter and Baltimore scored three runs in the first inning with the help of a pair of passed balls by Chuck Hinton to beat the Indians. Don Buford led off the first with a double, took third on a passed ball and scored on an infield out. Elrod Hendricks singled, took third on Merv Rettenmund's hit and scored on Hinton's second passed ball. A pair of walks and a hit batsman force in the third run.

Ed Brinkman's one-out suicide squeeze in the 11th inning gave Detroit its victory over the Senators. Jim Northrup opened the 11th with a single and advanced to third o a wild pitch and a fly ball before Brinkman's bunt.

Joe Horlen pitched a seven-hitter and Carlos May drove in two runs in a four-run second inning as the White Sox beat Milwaukee. May had a two-run single in the inning.

Mel Stottlemyre pitched a four-hitter and snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning with a home run in the Yankees' victory over Boston.

Back-to-back homers by Fred Patek and Paul Schaal with two out in the ninth inning boosted Kansas City past the Twins. Both homers came off Twins' starter Jim Perry and broke a 3-3 tie.

PRO FOOTBALL NOTES

Nolan Says Rookies Better Be In Shape

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco 49er coach Dick Nolan has given the rookies who will report to the 49er training camp this weekend fair warning —they had better be in top shape.

The first rookie workout is scheduled Sunday at the Goleta, Calif., camp and Wednesday the 49er rookies will scrimmage their counterparts from the Dallas Cowboys.

"I'll know early who came to play," Nolan said Friday.

Because of the players strike last year, the rookies had practically three weeks to round into condition. This year they will have less than a week before the veterans arrive.

Four veterans — linebacker Carter Campbell, former Atlanta wide receiver Jerry Simmons, running back Jim Strong and wide receiver Jimmy Thomas —will report along with the rookies.

Rams

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI)— There's a lot of speculation about a possible sale of the Los Angeles Rams and if there is a new owner in the near future he'll have a nucleus of eight veterans signed to multi-year contracts.

Since the death of principal owner Dan Reeves in the spring, there has been much talk that his 51 per cent share, left to his widow and children, will be purchased since they don't appear to have an active interest in the team.

Lions

DETROIT (UPI) —Greg Landry, the young quarterback on whom rest much of the Detroit Lions' hopes for a run at the Super Bowl this season, has scheduled a news conference to duscuss his contract situation, it was announced Friday.

Gerald Whelton, Landry's attorney, said the news conference would be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Detroit Press Club.

Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Charges of assault with intent to commit murder have been dropped against a man arrested in the serious wounding last Dec. 14 of Philadelphia Eagles defensive co-captain Nate Ramsey.

Saints

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI) —Sixty New Orleans Saints rookies begin twice-a-day workouts Monday on the campus of the University of Southern Mississippi without their top draft pick quarterback Archie Manning.

Manning, the Ole Miss grad who was second only to Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett in last year's draft, has not come to contract terms with the Saints.

Chi Cheng Is Out For Year

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Nationalist China's Chi Cheng, rated as the No. 1 woman sprinter in the world, said Friday she probably will not be able to compete again this year.

Here to attend the National AAU women's track and field meet with her coach-husband, Vince Reel, she disclosed she had a fatigue fracture of the femur bone.

Auto Races On Tap On Petaluma Oval

Auto racing will highlight the annual Sonoma-Marin Fair in Petaluma Sunday night as the cars and drivers of two NASCAR divisions bring down the curtain on the North Bay celebration.

The exciting NASCAR sportsman and early model stock car racing will take to the Petaluma Speedway quarter-mile dirt oval at the fairgrounds site on the final night of the fair.

The double-barreled program is set to begin with qualifying at 7 p.m. The first race is scheduled for 8:15.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

TransPac Rivalry Is Hot

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (UPI) — Mark Johnson's 73-foot Ketch Windward passage is halfway there but Blackfin isn't letting her get too far ahead.

On the sixth day of the Trans-Pacific Yacht Race Friday, Windward Passage was reported 1,101 miles from Diamond Head in the Los Angeles-to-Hawaii event.

Blackfin, a 73-foot ketch skippered by Kenneth DeMeuse, was 37 miles back in the 2,225-mile race. Winds were from 8 to 14 knots.

Third overall and 77 miles behind the leader was Graybeard, from the Royal Vancouver (B. C.) Yacht Club.

Buccaneer, from New Zealand, and Ondine, from New York, were deadlocked for fourth in elapsed time.

Windward Passage held the Class A lead and Encore, a Col 43 sloop, was in first place in Class B, 1,379 miles from Hawaii. Alice, which was 1,348 miles from Diamond Head, was ahead in Class C and Dakar led in Class D.

Whitworth, Blalock Share Lead

HORSHAM, Pa. (UPI) — Kathy Whitworth, the top money-winner on the women's circuit, and Jane Blalock were tied at 68 two strokes in front of the pack today going into the second round of the $25,000 George Washington Ladies Golf Classic.

Tied at 70 were Judy Kimball, Betsy Cullen and Jo Ann Prentice.

Miss Whitworth, who has won $30,349 so far on the tour this year and is seeking her fifth victory, had a 34-34 over the 6,150-yard Hidden Springs Country Club course Friday. She sank six birdies and a lone bogey, salvaging a par-5 on the 16th while taking two shots to clear a sand trap.

Miss Blalock, who is the fourth top money winner this year with $21,350, had nines of 33-35.

As the field of 73 battled for the $3,750 first prize, the temperatures nudged the 100 degree mark but were not predicted to be as high today.

Defending champion Sandra Haynie, who won the first tournament last year, had a 40 on the front nine and was buried back in the pack with eight other girls.

GREEK POLE VAULTER

Papanicolaou Returns With The World Record

By DAVID EINSTEIN

It is a singular comment on the way history has gone that Greece, the country that started it all, has done very badly in the modern Olympics. In 17 summer games dating back to 1896, the Isles of Hellas have won only two gold medals. By contrast, the United States has dominated the international competition with 348 gold medals.

It stands to reason, therefore, that any Greek who performs will in the arena of international sports will be a hero to his countrymen. Pole vaulter Chris Papanicolaou is such a hero.

It was while enrolled as a graduate student at San Jose State College that Papanicalaou, a native born Greek, took fourth in the 1968 Olympics. But his greatest glory came late last year at Athens, when in a meet against Yugoslavia he broke the world record with a leap of 18 feet, ¼ inch. That was the first and only time the 18-foot barrier has been broken.

Papanicolaou returned to the U.S. and the Bay Area last week for the first time since earning his teaching credential from San Jose State two years ago. He came as a member of the World team that competed in Berkeley in a three-way meet against Russia and the U.S. Unfortunately, his poles were broken on the plane enroute from Los Angeles to San Angles to San Francisco, and he did not do as well as he might have. Still, he finished fourth using a borrowed pole.

CHRIS PAPANICOLAOU
Pole Vault Star

Part of their tour carried them to San Rafael, where Papanicolaou agreed to an interview.

The thing that seems most remarkable about this greatest of all Greek athletes is that he is 29 years old, which is ancient by American sports standards. Most track and field stars in this country reach their greatest level of achievement in their late teens or early twenties. By 30, they're in front of the television like the rest of us.

Not so in Europe, where, says Papanicolaou, "We start old. And when you start when you're 18, you need 10 years just to be ready."

Right now Papanicolaou, who started when he was 18, is getting ready for the 1972 Olympics in Munich. And at the rate he's going, he'll be a real threat to bring home Greece's first gold medal since Constantin Tsicilitras won the now defunct standing broad jump in 1912.

Papanicolaou may have gotten a late start in track, but it didn't hinder his development. Before coming to San Jose State, he reached the height of 16-8 at the National Academy of Physical Education in Athens. At San Jose, he set a school record that still stands at 17-7. And his fourth place jump in the Olympics in Mexico City was also 17-7.

Since returning to Greece in 1969 to teach physiology and physical education at the University of Athens, Papanicolaou has participated in track meets in several Euopean countries, including Italy and Spain. Because of this, he has been able to compare playing conditions and facilities between Europe and the U.S. On the whole, he notes, the level of performance is higher in the U.S. "It is better because you have good competition every week."

At his age, however, the slower European pace is an advantage. Nor is he affected by the long distances he must travel to compete. "We don't compete every week, so it doesn't bother me," he says.

In one respect, the U.S. is clearly the leader in track and field. According to Papanicolaou, this country, and specifically the city of Los Angeles, is the center of the world for the manufacture of the fiber glass poles used in pole vaulting. Even the Russians buy their poles in L.A.

Papanicolaou winds up his current stay in the U.S. next Monday, and then it's back to Greece. But first he'll have to stop off in Los Angeles for some new poles.

Stargell Is Player Of Month For Second Time This Season

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell has become the second player in the history of the 14-year National League Player of the Month balloting to win two awards in the same season.

The National League office announced Friday that Stargell, who was honored in April when he set a major league record for most home runs in that month with 11, had been selected again as player of the month for June.

The only other player to win two of the awards in one season was St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Bob Gibson, who was chosen in June and July of 1968.

Stargell receive 31 of the 60 votes by a panel of baseball writers and broadcasters who participate in the poll. He easily outdistanced teammate and pitcher Dock Ellis, who received 12.

Auto Racing

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (UPI)— Qualifying for the third event in the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series gets under way today at Road Atlanta, with reigning champion Team McLaren and former world champion Jackie Stewart the top contenders.

Stewart in the Lola T260, McLaren drivers Denny Hulme and Peter Revson and Jackie Oliver in the Shadow turned laps in the neighborhood of 114 miles per hour in a leisurely practice session Friday at the 2.6 mile course.

BRISTON, Tenn. (UPI)—With the top ten positions claimed for Sunday's annual Volunteer 500 at the Bristol International Speedway, 35 drivers will compete today in qualifying runs for the remaining 20 starting slots.

Hockey

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—The Minnesota North Stars Friday signed defenseman Ted Harris and wingers Lou Nanne and J.P. Parise to one-year National Hockey League contracts for the 1971-72 season. Parise's 72 points in a season are the club scoring record.

SPORT SHORTS

Basketball

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)— Washington State appointed Bob Greenwood head basketball coach Friday. Greenwood was head coach at Washington University and an assistant at Iowa prior to his selection.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)— Jim Cleamons, captain of the Ohio State team that won the Big 10 championship last season, will be playing next season with the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association.

Tennis

BASTAAD, Sweden (UPI)— Wimbledon finalist Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., was eliminated from the $33,000 Swedish Open tennis championships Friday, bowing to Manuel Santana of Spain, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 61.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

Don't be afraid of being unlady like as you bowl. For instance, at the release be certain that your left knee is well flexed and that you have bent considerably from the waist. A position that is too straight-up at the release will lead to ball-dropping.

Tennis Lesson Signups Set

San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department will start taking registrations Monday for the second session of tennis lessons, classes running for four weeks starting July 26.

Lessons will be taught at San Rafael and Terra Linda High School courts and at Albert Park. Registration will be held in the parks and recreation department between 9 a.m. and noon. Classes will be on a first come, first served basis, said Andrew J. Snyder, director.

Boucher Has 702 Series, 279 Game

Mike Boucher rolled a 279 game and went on to a 702 three-game series at Greenbrae Lanes to highlight the Marin County league bowling scores for the week.

In the Match Game Eliminations going on at Castle Lanes in San Francisco, Marilyn Epidendio of San Rafael is among the leaders, her 184 average putting her in eighth place after 24 games. Penny Tauscher, also of San Rafael, has dropped to 23rd place.

Marin County's bowling honor roll for the week:

Today is Saturday, July 10, the 191st day of 1971.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Cancer.

American painter James Whistler was born July 10, 1834.

On this day in history:

In 1953 Lavrenti Beria, Russian chief of internal security forces, was purged on charges of criminal anti-state activities.

In 1962 the Telster satellite relayed television pictures from the United States to Europe while Americans received clear pictures back from France and Britain.

A thought for today: Physician Sir William Osler said, "Tact is the saving virtue without which no woman can be a success."

Crinella Named To Hospital Unit

Dr. Francis M. Crinella of Petaluma has been appointed to the Petaluma Hospital District board.

Crinella, a psychologist, was appointed at an adjourned meeting of the board Wednesday. He will replace William A. Perry, who resigned to serve on the Petaluma City Council.

WISE DECISION

South considered allowing the opening lead to ride around to his queen. Since West didn't customarily lead from a king against a slam, declarer wisely decided to take the first heart with dummy's ace.

South ruffed a heart with the jack of spades, led a trump to dummy's seven, ruffed another heart high, led a trump to the ten, and ruffed the last heart. Declarer then led a diamond and tried a finesse with dummy's nine.

East won with the jack of diamonds and returned the eight of clubs, giving South the chance to play low from his hand. If there had been no other play, declarer would have led the club ride to dummy's queen, but by this time South had made up his mind on a line of play that would bring the slam in.

CHOICE OF PLAYS

After taking the ace of clubs, South could cash the ace of spades, lead a diamond to the ace and then take dummy's last trump to discard the ten of clubs from his hand. This would bring the slam in if the diamonds broke 3-3 or if the player with length in diamonds had the king of clubs.

Actually, South had a better plan. East was a confirmed false-carder. If East held both the queen and jack of diamonds he would have taken the first diamond trick with the queen rather than with the jack.

EAST FAILS

East's failure to play the queen convinced South that West had the queen of diamonds.

South therefore led another low diamond and won a finesse with dummy's ten. The rest was easy. Psychology was more important than technique.

What do you say?

Answer: Pass.

You have only four points in high cards and count nothing for the singleton in partner's bid suit. You would raise if partner opened with one of any of the other suits since then you would count 3 additional points for the singleton.

Registration Set For Camp

Registrations are now being accepted for a week-long mountain camp, for boys and girls, at the YMCA Camp at La Honda.

The camp, sponsored by Marin YMCA, is opened to 9 through 14 year olds, and extends from July 31 through August 7.

Activities will include swimming, hiking, nature lore, sports and games, back-packing and overnight trips.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THE EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

War On Poverty Is Dismal Failure

L.B.J.'S WAR on Poverty was a noble undertaking, but it has to be written off as a cruel and extravagant failure.

Its original goals were magnificent. The level of attainment must be rated F for failure.

Instead of helping the captive poor to throw off the chains of poverty, the main thrust of the War on Poverty has been to create a whole army of new agencies which absorb great quantities of taxpayers' money while providing little help of consequence to very few poor people.

Were it not overshadowed by the tragic Vietnam war, the War on Poverty most certainly would go down in history as one of our government's greatest blunders.

When the last Poverty War agency has been liquidated (if it ever is) the poor will still be with us. We still will face the problem of how to motivate and train epople to become self-supporting.

A FOUR-COUNTY organization of volunteers — Bay Area Vocation Literacy Program, Inc. — has demonstrated successful techniques for providing significant help to one segment of the economically deprived.

The Vocational Literacy Program helps those among the poor whose lack of earnng power stems from language limitations.

FLP has observed many such in Chinatown and has demonstrated a technique which volunteers can utilize to teach very quickly the English words required for a specific job.

The technique is based on that developed by the late Frank Laubach, a pioneer in the field.

Spark plug of VLP in the Bay Area has been Mrs. Constant Van Vlierden of Sausalito, who holds the title of president and founder. Mrs. Van Vlierden has a knack for enlisting the help and support of others. To serve on the VLP Board of Directors she recruited these Marin-ites:

Mrs. Sylvester McAtee, prominent southern Marin club woman.

Mrs. Eugene Nelson of Sausalito, a founder of the Sausalito Youth Center.

Mrs. Burt Seyour of Sausalito, fashion design artist.

Until his recent untimely death, she also had the support of Edward W. Bullard, Jr. of Ross as a member of the VLP board.

THE VLP STAFF is headed by Sam L. Wong, a Cantonese graduate of Stanford who in his youth had first hand experience with language difficulties in America. His office is at 36 Waverly Place, San Francisco.

The first 97 "students" helped by VLP last year demonstrated the effectiveness of the Laubach technique. Eighty were placed in regular employment. Before training and placement, their total annual income had been only $90,762 — obviously less than bare minimum subsistence.

Their total annual income after training and placement rose to $432,827 — a comfortable level, providing all necessities and some luxuries.

BECAUSE VLP DEPENDS largely on volunteers, it does not need vast sums (like government agencies). It does need volunteers and some financial support.

The San Francisco Table Tennis Assn. is preparing to help in the fiscal area with a benefit Bay Area Table Tennis Championship tournament. Qualifying matches in each county are now being arranged. The championship matches will be played next fall.

In the longer view, VLP does not plan to limit its activities to Chinatown but hopes to offer its help wherever needed and to whoever needs it in Marin and the other three counties.

VLP appears to be a private, volunteer agency which can succeed on a limited budget where costly government agencies have failed.

Its success could provide a pattern for private, volunteer accomplishments of the noble goals of L.B.J.'s ill-starred War on Poverty.

THE MENTION ABOVE of Ed Bullard's passing brings to mind again the seriousness of his loss to Marin and the Bay Area.

As his obituary related, he was active in a host of volunteer agencies. His participation was more than nominal. He was an effective worker for each effort which he supported.

At the same time, he was always most modest and self-effacing. He did not seek credit or recognition for his work; he sought only to help those who needed his help.

In his final illness, he shunned sympathy and seemingly preferred to avoid placing any of the weight of his health problems on others.

His loss leaves us all poorer.

Bouquets and Brickbats

BRICKBATS to youngsters who endanger others by continuing to throw firecrackers indiscriminately, and bigger BRICKBATS to parents who condone such practices.

A BOUQUET to the San Rafael City Council for its decision to underground utility wires and poles in the downtown area by January of next year.

BRICKBATS to California drivers for racking up another first — the largest number of highway fatalities over the July 4 weekend.

BOUQUETS to the Golden Gate Bridge District, and to the patrons who pay the tolls, for paying off the last of the $35 million in bonds which financed the construction of the bridge.

BOUQUETS to the U.S. Public Health Service and the Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council for sponsoring the Roving Clinic in West Marin.

BOUQUETS to Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Conservation Associates for getting funds set aside in the state budget to purchase the Waldo Giacomini marshland in Southern Tomales Bay.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Raccoons Are The Brightest People

Dear Editor in Charge of Raccoons:

Where are the Raccoons gone?

Seven years of raccoon feeding lead us to believe this is the regular pattern at this time of year, when the babies are beginning to move around.

This morning at 4 a.m. I saw the "sticking plaster" leading two babies up the pathway, talking continually to them with a little rolling call that I can describe as sounding like night bird.

Until she disppeared this spring, unflappable, battle scarred, rheumy eyed "Ma" was our favorite for seven years. Her last baby was the "Sticking Plaster" who stayed with her for two years.

We feed a loaf of bread and a pan of kibbles every night, always accompanied with a pan of water, plus meat scraps and chicken bones. Some prefer kibbles, other bread. Some "dunk" every mouthfull, others never dunk. Neighbor cats are ignored when they join in.

"Ma" could take the cap off a raw egg and clean it out without spilling a drop.

A "pipe line" to a candy factory keeps us supplied with rejected marshmallows, which we have used to train the young to come into the house and for hand feeding. The latter can be hazardous when several gluttonous youngsters are competing for the handout.

For several weeks last year "skinny" and three babies lived in a culvert that empties into the creek in our front yard. She had a hard time keeping them from straying off until she felt it was dusk enough for safety.

The creek is their highway to travel up and down the valley and we have learned never to plant garden where they choose a route for their regular pathway.

We agree that "Raccoons are The Brightest People".

Veterinarian Fees Are 'Outrageous'

I thought you might be interested in what happened to me when in need of a Marin County veterinarian this past 4th of July weekend.

Sunday, I found my two year old cat unable to swallow. Having tried liver, ground beef and canned milk with an egg in it and failed, I tried my own veterinarian's answering service. The girl told me there was only one vet on call in Marin County and that unless it was a matter of life and death, she could not get him. Not being sure how long this would go on with the cat unable to eat, I told her it could be just that. I left my name and waited for the vet to call. Shortly after, the vet returned my call and asked a few questions regarding the cats symptoms; I explained what I had tried to do in the way of enticing him to eat and his symptoms of being unable to swallow; or shortly after swallowing a small amount of food, vomiting it up. He said he'd see the cat but that it would be a fee of $20 just to see the cat on an emergency basis plus whatever he did to the animal. I replied that it was cheaper to let the cat die, to which he did not reply.

My past experience with even my own vet has been cash before you get out the door. Not having twenty dollars cash on hand and knowing the stores were closed where I could have cashed a check, I told him that I'd just have to wait and see if he improved.

Fortunately, by late Monday he began to eat small amounts. Thanks to patience and coaxing. How can it be that we who love animals in Marin County must sit still for the way the Marin County Veterinarians dictate that one vet is on call for all of Marin and how in the world do they get away with charging such outrageous fees? Surely there must be some way to alleviate this deplorable situation.

Marin General Hospital would see a vet in an emergency for only $10 plus materials . . . $10 less than their fee for a cat, and Marin General will even bill the patient!!

Facts Needed On Town Meeting Fund

We are indeed pleased to read in yesterday's I-J that Dr. Martin Blinder is deeply concerned with full public disclosure — he calls it "contempt for our right to know."

Along those lines, several of us who worked all last year toward the May 1971 Town Meeting in San Anselmo have asked for a public financial accounting of funds collected and spent to direct this effort. Although an accurate dollar for dollar audit was never available, we were told that approximately $1,000 had been available since the second Town Meeting. This sum (plus interest presumably) was passed on to each succeeding chairman for at least the last three Town Meetings. In short, following the 1969 meeting, Dr. Blinder received $1,000 from Mr. Farey, the preceding chairman, after which two years of interest presumably at 5 per cent accrued. Dr. Blinder was then successful in raising slightly more than $300 from the local business community, expenses were around $300 including voluntary assistance, leaving, one would surmise, $1,100 to be handed on to the 1972 chairman who is to be selected in September.

Several of us felt that the public should be aware of this for several reasons. It might be that this sum of money could assist to fund some of the projects that are usually under discussion at the Town Meeting — assisting to landscape the Hub? assist to fund a teen center? a day care center? Or on the other hand, with enough funds to put on three Town Meetings, perhaps the new chairman should not solicit funds at all unless the balance on hand is disclosed.

We were interested to know that the original "kitty" stems from Dr. Singh of the San Anselmo Theological Seminary who, it was said, hoped to have enough funds to have the Town Meeting self-funded out of income from interest. We felt that this too should be known to the citizens at large and we are happy to have Dr. Blinder's reminder that there should be no secrets in public affairs.

Suspect Unrelated To Christian Church

In a recent I-J newspaper article details were given of a narcotics case, accompanied by a large photograph of loot found at the Irwin Street residence of the suspect, Mark Hampton. The article stated that Mr. Hampton is an ordained minister in the Christian Church.

Since that article appeared, our congregation, and I in particular, have had many inquiries concerning this man. We wish to advise the public that the San Rafael Christian Church does not know this man, nor to our knowledge do any of the surrounding Christian Churches. He is not now, nor has he ever been connected with San Rafael Christian Church in any way whatsoever.

We will appreciate it if you will clarify this matter for us. Thank you.

Can English Keep Abreast Of Sophia Loren Or Gina?

LONDON — "To be or not to be," that is the question bugging every Englishman these days in regard to the Common Market. After finally getting the six members of the Common Market to admit her, Britain does not seem to be very sure that she wants to be a member of the club. In fact, the more Britishers you talk to, the more reasons you hear as to why England should stay out.

There are, of course, the usual fears about joining anything that has to do with the Continent, such as: "If Britain becomes a member of the Common Market, her children will have to put wine on their cornflakes as they do in France" and "Everyone will be forced to wear pointed wooden shoes as they do in Holland" and "We'll have to give up our tea break to compete with the Germans."

BUT THERE ARE deeper and more significant reasons why the British, now that they've been admitted, want no part of the market.

There is a definite fear here that if England joins the Big Six, she will be forced to drive her cars on the other side of the street. It isn't just a question of changing the steering wheels to the other side — though this is no small problem — but also that the population could be severely decimated by automobile accidents during the changeover period.

THE FEELING HERE is that if Britain becomes part of the market her six partners should be the ones to change the side of the road they drive on rather than England.

"Since we gave in on cheese quotas, they should give in on driving," a hotel doorman told me.

If this wasn't enough to worry about, there are also fears here that if England is forced into full partnership with the Continent, she will pick up many of the filthy habits of the French, such as having love in the afternoon with someone who is not your wife.

"WHAT HAS MADE us great," a British friend told me, "is that while Frenchmen spend their lunches and afternoons in bed with their mistresses, we work in our factories and on our farms and in our offices, for God and country. We'd be fools to become part of a system that puts sex before the gross national product."

An English lady friend said she wasn't as afraid of the French as she was of the Italians. "If we join the Common Market, we shall have to develop bosoms to compete with Sophia Loren and Gina Lollobrigida. No British female can hope to match an Italian woman's bust once the tariffs are abolished."

THE CONSENSUS HERE is that becoming a member of the Common Market can only mean trouble for Britain. The cafe will replace the pub, beer will be served cold and the Pope is sure to come over and throw out the first ball at Wimbledon.

As long as the Big Six rejected Britain's application, the English were clamoring to get in and furious at being blackballed. But now that England can join, everyone assures everyone they never wanted anything to do with the Common Market in the first place.

And with reason: As an Englishman put it to me at lunch the other day, "You know, of course, if you don't take a French child away as soon as it's born, the mother will kill it."

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Freedom In Jeopardy As Turkey Clamps Down

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When the Turkish army forced the resignation of Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel last March 12, it demanded a law and order government which would crush leftwing terrorism finding increasing expression in anti-Americanism.

As the largest and most prominent foreign presence in Turkey it was natural that the United States should become a target in what has been called Turkey's unfinished revolution.

IT WAS THE kidnapping of four American airmen by leftwing extremists and the demand for $400,000 ransom for their release that led senior Turkish officers to topple the Demirel regime by ultimatum and to order that its successor halt Turkey's drift into "anarchy, fratricide and social and economic unrest."

Under Demirel's five-year rule, the country's economic growth rate had been moving ahead at a real rate of 7 per cent a year.

But his commitment to industrialization had led to abandonment of more than half of Turkey's pasture land, even though agriculture continued to be the backbone of Turkey's economy.

AND TO COMPLETE a picture of ironic contrast, half a million peasants were landless and impoverished.

Army officers under Chief of Staff Gen. Memduh Tagmac were said to have warned President Cevdet Sunay that civilian politicians would have one year to form a strong government or face a complete takeover by the armed forces.

Within a year they wanted land and educational reforms and a new election law.

SO INDUSTRIOUS has the emergency coalition under Prime Minister Nihat Erim been that now there is apprehension that Turkey's fragile democracy may disappear under an avalanche of so-called reforms.

Couples now may walk safely on the streets of most Turkish cities but it is at the expense of martial law sharply curtailing civil liberties.

Awaiting parliamentary approval are 42 constitutional amendments to the liberal constitution enacted in 1961 after overthrow of the dictatorial Menderes regime. Included is a proposal permitting government seizure of printing plants deemed to be putting out subversive material.

Others would restrict the autonomy of the Turkish radio and state universities.

CREATING SPECIAL concern is the fact that while some newsmen have been arrested on charges of subversion, members of the rightwing press continue free-swinging attacks upon ministers who have been told their jobs are to be carried out "above politics."

Under special attack has been Atilla Karaosmanoglu, Harvard-trained and until recently an expert with the World Bank in New York. He is minister of state for economic planning and coordination.

As the Turkish pendulum swings away from what perhaps had been an excess of freedoms to what could be their disappearance, Turkish liberals are looking toward an elder statesman as they have many times in the past: He is 87-year-old Ismet Inonu, a former prime minister and contemporary of Kemal Ataturk, founder of modern Turkey.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Our poor innocent mixed-up students are not our intellectual equals; we must no longer listen to them as if they were, and we must try to strengthen the spines of our colleagues who do. — J. Mitchell Morse, Temple University professor.

A generation ago man dreamed of fighting the war to end all wars. Today this is no longer a dream to be hoped for but a nightmare to be feared. — John H. Hayes.

Just because technological developments can displace 100 men with a machine does not mean that the machine must be put to use without first calculating the social as well as the economic consequences likely to follow. — William Stringfellow.

THE PLACE IS JUMPING — More and more high rise buildings encircle Alexander Platz, the pre-war Times Square of Berlin, now in East Berlin, the capital of the German Democratic Repubic. Vehicular traffic now runs beneath the square. The structure at center is the Building of Teachers with adjoining Congress Hall. The economic miracle has converted the once lowly Soviet Zone into the world's ninth industrial power.

Sometimes The Teen Runaway Runs Into Far Greater Woes

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Hi! You probably know I'm in another hospital. I feel like they're just shoving me from one hosp. to another. I really wish I could go home. I don't blame them for not trusting me but I wish I could have one more chance to prove myself . . .".

That was the beginning of a letter from a 15-year-old girl to Rev. Richard J. Harvey, assistant pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church in New York City's Greenwich Village. She had run away from her suburban home twice and the second time Pastor Harvey had tracked her down and helped return her to her parents.

The letter was written from a psychiatric hospital.

"SHE KNOWS she'd run away again," Pastor Harvey said andhe told the girl's story — of running away, of becoming involved with a pimp, and prostitution, and drugs.

The girl in some ways is typical of today's runaway teenager — that is, she is female, 15 years old, and from a middle class family. That is the way Capt. Joseph Lynch, head of the New York City Police Department's Missing Persons Unit, describes the typical runaway. Some case histories have happier endings, he said. Some end in death.

UPI interviewed experts on the problem of runaways — policemen, private investigators and clergymen — in an effort to learn who runs away, why, and what happens to them.

The law defines runaways as persons under 18 years old and says they may be returned to their parents, even if they are unwilling. Once a young person reaches 18, he may leave home and cannot be forced to return.

ONE THING no one can provide is an accurate figure on the number of runaway teen-agers in this country each year. The estimates run as high as one million. But police in the two cities that have been most attractive to runaways in recent years — San Francisco with its Haight-Ashbury section, and New York with its East Village — agree that in these areas runaways are declining.

"The number of runaways reported to us had been going up at about 4 per cent a year," Capt. Lynch said. "Three or four years ago it jumped to 7 per cent. Now it's back to 4 per cent, and that rise could just reflect the increase in population. We don't get as many requests from out-of-town police jurisdictions as we used to, either."

An indication that the number of runaways has not decreased nationally only that the runaways now choose different destinations — came from Edward H. Goldfader, executive vice president of Tracers Company of America, a firm of private investigators very active in locating runaways.

"WE OPERATE all over the country," he said, "and lately it seems there are more runaways to less populated areas. These things go in cycles and there's a snowballing effect. One goes and others follow. "Colorado is one of the new places to go, and so is the area around Magnolia, Mass. It relates to their aspirations, and now they want the areas that are unspoiled."

He said many youngsters, after brief and disillusioning stopovers in major cities, head for communes established from Vermont to Hawaii. "One colony on the island of Maui (in the Hawaiian chain) is primarily comprised of kids from western Pennsylvania. The word gets back. How does the grapevine work? I can't even imagine. By osmosis, it seems."

While communes and back-to-nature movements may be diverting some of the runaways, the bulk of them come to big cities.

"SURPRISINGLY, the average runaway is only gone 72 hours," Capt. Lynch said. "Many go back before then, particularly the younger ones. The older they are and the more money they have, the longer they stay away."

He said the peak months for runaways are May and September—partly because of the weather and partly because May is final exam month, September back-to-school month.

Not all the reasons for running away are so trivial. Police Det. Thomas Rynne, who dressed hippie-style as part of the "mod squad" the New York police operated during the hippie hey-day in the East Village, told a story in tones of shock seldom heard from experienced officers.

"We picked up this girl about 2 a.m. — a runaway. She gave us one name and another — they do that, they like to give us a hard time, having us calling people in different cities. It can go on for two or three hours, as if you were questioning a homicide suspect.

"FINALLY WE found out who she was — we did have an alarm on her — and called her home. A lady answered, apparently a maid, and told us the family was out at a social affair. By now it was 4 a.m.

"I called and it sounded like a party. The father, an attorney, said he would call back in 15 minutes. When he did, he said he was tied up and could we hold her until three o'clock the following afternoon?

"She had been gone like five weeks, she was filthy dirty, and he wanted us to hold her until the next afternoon. She was 12 years old!"

The first thing that the runaway in a place such as the East Village finds is squalor — often horribly neglected tenement apartments overrun with cockroaches, rats and vermin.

"The thing that baffles us," Capt. Lynch said, "is that young girls who leave home and clean surroundings can stand more than 15 or 20 minutes in the surroundings they fall into — the dirt, the filth."

THOSE WHO stay away often try to support themselves by panhandling. Some wyo become involved with drugs begin peddling them. Some of the boys steal; some of the girls become prostitutes.

It was the thought of the people ready to prey on young runaways for profit, among other things, that inspired Dr. Fred Eckhardt, Pastor of St. John's, Rev. Harvey's Church, to inaugurate his "rescue" operation. Teen-age volunteers from St. John's consult a church bulletin board with descriptions and photos of runaways, then spread out in the evenings to comb the streets for the missing youngsters in the hope they can be reached before they are hurt.

Dr. Eckhardt said that from the moment young runaways reach new York, often at the Port Authority terminal, the city's main bus depot, there are people waiting to use them. He was backed up by Bronx District Attorney Burton Roberts who said:

"THE INDICATION is that runaway girls are fair game for people who would make a racket from it. If this is part of the youth culture, it is time we start exposing it for what it is and start eradicating it."

One case he specifically referred tc involved charges against five men and eight women accused of subjecting four runaway girls to rape and torture to force them into joining a prostitution ring.

The DA's warning was achoed by Jeremiah P. McAward, head of McAward Associates, a private investigation agency which has been called in by anxious parents to locate their children. He said:

"The runaway children often are naive, idealistic — they have very little knowledge of what life is about. They think the love generation is still here, pot is fine, if you're nice to people they'll be nice to you. It's just not true. People prey on the kids, wait for them to show up."

HE SAID usually the runaways — even the ones who don't voluntarily return home — become disillusioned, even frightened by their surroundings.

He told of one girl, 14, whose family moved to New York and who made new — and unfortunate — friends here. She ran away after a series of disputes with her family about her dates with a 19-year-old boy she had picked up in Central Park near the Bethesda Fountain, a meeting place for hippies, "street people" and more conventionally rebellious youth.

Both 'Sides' Are Impressed With The Transformation Of East Berlin

By JOSEPH FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI) — It was past midnight but good looking girls in minis, midis, maxis and hot pants still were dancing to "Melancholy Baby" in the restaurant of the Hotel Stadt Berlin (Hotel City of Berlin), Berlin's newest and biggest hotel.

From the Panorama Bar on the 37th floor you could see the 1,197-foot high Television Tower, Europe's tallest structure next to Moscow's television tower.

All around Alexander Platz, the pre-war Times Square of Berlin, there were gleaming, bright, light modern buildings of glass, steel and concrete— the 11-story House of the Electrical Industry, the eight-story Centrum department store, the 12-story House of Teachers with a meeting hall seating 1,000, apartment houses, office buildings, shops, restaurants.

THIS IS East Berlin, the capital of the German Democratic Republic.

Visitors from Moscow, Warsaw, Budapest and other Soviet bloc cities stare in awe at the shop windows that reflect the economic miracle that has converted the once lowly Soviet Zone into the world's ninth industrial power with a standard of living higher than any other Warsaw Pact nation.

Visitors from the west are impressed, too. In the 10 years since the wall was built on the East-West Berlin border East Berlin has been transformed.

Gone are the rubble heaps of war that were everywhere, the look of poverty and despair on the faces of the people, the feeling that the nation and its Communist leaders existed in a precarious state of balance and soon might be swept away.

Now the leaders exude confidence. And the people show pride in the efficiency and application that has made their country the second strongest industrial state in the Soviet bloc.

East Germans might not love their country or its leaders. Werner Obst, 41-year-old East German government management expert who escaped to the West two years ago, estimates East Germans would flee to the West by the hundreds of thousands again if the wall were removed.

But the wall, like the German Democratic Republic, appears here to stay. Behind it 17 million people in an area slightly larger than Ohio are making the best of the bargain.

For all its prosperity East Germany is a Communist dictatorship still run on the tight police state lines established by old Stalinist Walter Ulbricht.

The replacement, for example, of the 77-year-old ailing Ulbricht as Communist Party first secretary by Erich Honecker set an example for peaceful change.

Ulbricht stepped down without pressure, ill will or recrimination and made way for the man always considered his protege and crown prince.

Although a Stalinist, Ulbricht allowed his managers and specialists to carry out economic reforms and freed them from the bureaucratic central planning that has stifled the economies of other Communist nations.

EVEN THE collective farms in East Germany are models of efficiency and profitable enterprises by Soviet bloc standards.

East Germany's prosperity, of course, is relative. Not only does East Germany lag far behind West Germany economically but the gap is growing.

In the last 10 years the real income of the average West German worker has increased 58 per cent compared to 34 per cent in East Germany.

Talk to an East German and you get the feeling that no matter how much things improve in East Germany the average East German always will consider West Germany the "Golden West."

"I CANNOT complain," a well-dressed housewife said as she ate a piece of chocolate layer cake with whipped cream in the fashionable Linden Corso cafe on Unter den Linden.

"But I know things are much better in the West. I can see that on West German television. A nylon shirt for my husband costs 60 marks ($15), a pair of nylon stockings for myself 12 marks ($3)."

Soviet Citizens Can Complain

By DAVID NAGY

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet newspapers, including the government newspaper Pravda, have their own version of the "action line" and "hot line" columns in American newspapers in which citizens may seek redress of injustices, or plain nuisances.

As is the case in American newspapers with such columns, the Soviet gripe columns provide a channel through which the average citizen can seek help on grievances. There are some unspoken ground rules, of course, that limit the area of complaints --no attacks on the Kremlin leadership, no politics, and so on.

For example letters written by Zionist Jews to Pravda and other major newspapers, in which scores of signatories might rebut the official line on xionism and beg to go to Israel, never get published.

But so long as the letters complain of economic or social villainy and the like, they can and often do get action, even if the axe falls on some fairly well-connected necks.

One hopping mad retired army officer, who signed himself Col. D. Doverov, wrote to Pravda that a man could hardly ride a train any more without being surrounded by and pestered by drunks. Pravda printed the letter and also told what action had been taken:

"Col. Doverov's letter has been discussed by the entire personnel of the Ukrainian transport police and the Ukrainian Deputy Interior Minister, I. Bondarenko, has informed us of the results.

"Railway militia (police) will furnish flying squads to accompany passenger trains.

"In addition to the regular militia, these groups will include railway inspectors, volunteer police and, on local lines, teams of railway workers and industrial laborers who commute to and from work on those lines."

Pravda concluded: "All railway passenger service units held meetings where attention was drawn to the need for conducting a relentless fight against drunkenness."

State's Competitive Spirit In Tourism Lacking — Sole Possession Of Last Place

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The resignation of the state's director of tourism raises the question whether California has any real desire to compete with 49 other states for a share of the tourist dollar in this age of travel.

If California is interested, it hasn't demonstrated that interest by keeping up with the other states in financial support. Perhaps the legislative and administrative budget makers don't hold with the theory that it takes money to make money.

SINCE THE start of the Division of Tourism five-and-one half years ago, California has shared with Nebraska the distinction of providing the skimpiest tourism budgets of all the 50 states.

They were the only two states to provide less than $100,000 for the purpose, but California took over sole possession of last place in July, 1970, when the conference committee on the state budget made cuts that reduced the Division's share to $41,000.

By contrast, Hawaii, the newest state, budgets more than $2 million. Texas, New York, the two Carolinas and Virginia hover right around the million mark, and the average state support is $600,000.

THE DIVISION and the Tourism and Visitor Services Commission consider that $250,000 a year would be a bare minimum appropriation to do the job they have been assigned, and that only because the problem is easier in California.

With the 1971-72 state budget now before another conference committee and with the same $40,000 appropriation in prospect, Director Hans Engh finally threw in the sponge.

Supplies of materials accumulated or scrounged during the years when the Division's budget ranged from $80,000 to $100,000 a year are running out and the cupboard is bare, Engh says.

"When you get through paying salaries and office rent and buying paper clips," he adds, "you just don't have much left to answer those 35,000 inquiries we get every year."

WHICH IS really about all the Division has been able to do up to now. Such items as promotional programs, travel shows, a news bureau operation, photo files — a favorite object of unfulfilled requests — packaged tours and the like have been out of the question.

So has any real research on the nature of the tourist industry in California and its effect on the economy.

Engh and members of the commission are now pinning their hopes on a bill which, among other things, would abolish the Commission itself.

The bill, SB 1407, by Sen. Robert Lagomarsino R-Ventura, would also abolish the Industry and World Trade Commission and replace them both with a Commission for Economic Development.

THIS IS another area in which California is among the also rans, there being no single state agency from which a business or industry wanting to ocate here can get all the information it needs.

Previous attempts to match other states in this respect have foundered on the rocks of sectionalism or political partisanship or lack of legislative interest.

Lagomarsino has attempted in SB 1407 to compensate for the partisanship and lack of legislative interest in the makeup of the 17-man commission proposed in the bill.

The chairman would be the lieutenant governor because the commission would be in the Department of Commerce, which is under his tent.

SIX MEMBERS would be appointed by the Legislature from among its own members. These would include two assemblymen and two senators from the majority party and an assemblyman and senator from the minority party.

Of the remaining 10 members, to be appointed by the governor, no more than six could be registered in the same political party. The expiration dates of the four-year terms of the first appointees would be staggered.

The bill says that these members will be appointed after consultation with business, industry and labor organizations, "from the economic development fields of manufacturing, tourism, world trade and such other fields as may be appropriate."

It is this provision on which the present commissioners are hanging their hats. The thought is that if a good sound Commission for Economic Development can get off the ground with proper funding it could turn out to be a going operation.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong died this week, two days after celebrating his 71st birthday on the Fourth of July.

The trumpeter and singer grew up in New Orleans along with jazz.

Armstrong was released from a hospital in June after 10 weeks of being treated for heart, liver and kidney diseases. But he seemed in good health and had planned to perform again. He died in his sleep of a heart attack at his New York home.

Another jazzman, Charlie Shavers, also died. He was 53. Shavers was a trumpeter and composer.

Jim Morrison, 27, the lead singer of "The Doors" rock group, died and was buried in Paris. The announcement was made in Los Angeles five days after he apparently died of natural causes due to a heart attack.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese delegations in Paris turned down a United States suggestion for an off the record meeting to discuss the Communists' latest peace plan. North Vietnam asked Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's special adviser who was expected in Paris Saturday, to discuss the plan.

Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., told a House committee that a high-ranking South Vietnamese general is one of South Vietnamese general is one of Southeast Asia's chief heroin traffickers. He identified him as Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzu, commander of the II Corps, Dzu denied the charge. Japan's Premier Eisaku Sato installed a new cabinet after a near crisis in economic relations with the United States brought on by Japan's high exports and American's high unemployment.

The New York Times finished its series on the Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Indochina war. The final installment said the United States during the 1950's had acted against North Vietnam and that North Vietnam was not alone in responsibility for the breakdown of the Geneva agreement.

The Times series, which began June 13, was interrupted while the government sought an injunction against its publication. The Supreme Court struck down the injunction.

President Nixon, in a White House ceremony, presided over formal certification of the 26th Amendment giving 18-year-old the right to vote.

Unification Amendments Given Nod

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state Board of Education has approved two amendments to the state-approved — but voter-rejected — master plan for unification of the Dixie and San Rafael school districts.

Accoring to Robert E. Spain, secretary to the county committee on school district organization, the amendments propose a unified school district with a five-member board and a consolidated general purpose tax rate not to exceed $4.822 per $100 assessed valuation.

The original master plan submitted years ago called for a seven-member board. The tax rate adjustment is needed primarily to equalize salaries between Dixie and San Rafael teachers if the plan is accepted by voters during a mandatory election in June 1972.

Under the proposal, taxpayers in the Dixie district would see a 78-cent reduction in their general purpose tax rate, while San Rafael taxpayers would see an 82-cent increase.

The last unification election between the two districts in 1966 failed on a vote of 6,789 for and 7,139 against.

Another Round On Cove Apartments

The controversial Strawberry Cove apartment project plans of developer Paul J. Broman will be back before the Marin County Planning Commission Monday.

Broman has asked approval of revised plans for 72 apartments instead of the 96 for which he received county approval late last year. Complicating the issue is a letter from the Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission, again suggesting the county find some way to link Broman's project with the so-far unformulated plans of his neighboring Richardson Bay landowner, Clipper Yacht Harbor.

Broman's 96-unit is on the BCDC agenda for hearing on Aug. 5 only to obtain the bay commission's ruling on adequacy of public access to Richardson Bay. The plans do not call for any fill.

The 72-unit plans have not officially come before the BCDC, but the Marin Planning Commission and Broman asked the BCDC for informal review of the revisions last month.

Joseph E. Bodovits, BCDC executive director, wrote Thursday that the commission's board of design review now would like to see building restricted to the southermost portion of Broman's area, as well as integrated with any future Clipper lands development.

Approval of Broman's new design will be recommended by the county planning staff Monday, with a number of conditions.

The county planning commission also will hold the first of the week's two reviews of the proposed countywide general plan. It also will be discussed at the city-county planning council Thursday.

Other items on the planning commission agenda for the meeting beginning at 9 a.m. Monday in the commission chambers in the Marin County Civic Center will include:

AGRICULTURAL — A hearing on proposed text amendments to provide a variety of lot size minimums and land uses in the county's agricultural zone.

SANTA VENETIA — A hearing on the master plan proposed by Hector Rubini and Guido Farina for a resort and commercial recreation areaon the small island in Gallinas Creek off Meadow Drive.

RICHARDSON BAY — A hearing on the City of Mill Valley appeal against County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell's approval of a use permit for the Universal Land Co. to build a 100-unit motel and complete the partly-built Howard Johnson restaurant opposite the Fireside Motel, west of the Richardson Bay Bridge on Shoreline Highway.

Cotati Youth Gets 12 Days For Rifle

Floyd Johnny Broadwell, 18, of Cotati, was sentenced to 12 days in Marin County Jail yesterday for possessing a sawed-off rifle in a car in Corte Madera March 22.

Judge Samuel V. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court also placed him on probation for three years.

Planning Costs

Costs and revenues of the current countywide planning program, and cost of secondary road maintenance will be considered by the Marin City-County Services Committee when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in Room 332 at the Marin County Civic Center.

Status Report On Commission Due On Monday

The Petaluma City Council will hear a status report on the formation of the North Coast Planning and Development Commission at an adjourned meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Sonoma Supervisor Henry Spomer is scheduled to make the report. The council will also consider appointments to various commissions and boards.

The council will also meet Tuesday in joint session with the planning commission to hear a progress report from planning consultants Williams and Mocine on the plan for Petaluma development. Both groups will also review a proposed dog kennel ordinance.

Merchant Fleet Gets $507 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has signed a $507.6 million appropriation bill to subsidize operating costs of private ship owners and build 20 to 22 new merchant ships.

The appropriation is for the second year of a 10-year program to update the U.S. merchant fleet. About 300 new ships are to be constructed during the decade. Nineteen new vessels were started the first year, and 20 to 22 will be started during the second year.

Bales Named To Regional Crime Panel

Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales has been named to serve on an expanded four-county regional criminal justice planning board.

The board was organized this year to develop a comprehensive criminal justice improvement plan for Marin, Napa, Sonoma and Solano counies and will set priorities and process applications for federal grants by police agencies.

The district attorneys of the four counties had been represented on the board by James Boitano of Napa County, but at a meeting Thursday the board voted to expand itself to include an additional district attorney and an additional sheriff.

Bales was selected to serve with Boitano by agreement of the four district attorneys.

Other Marin representatives on the board include San Rafael attorney Bella Aaron as Marin's public representative, Fairfax Councilman Lee Nelder, Corte Madera Police Chief David L. McIntosh. Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste and Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

John F. Barrows, assistant county administrator, is serving as acting chairman of the board.

Bus Plunges

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI)—A bus plunged off a bridge into a river Friday near Stanger, 45 miles from Durban. Police said 19 persons were killed and 15 injured.

Appeals Board To Eye Building Code

The Marin County Board of Appeals will meet at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Room 332 of the Marin County Civic Center, to consider revisions to the county's uniform building code.

County Building Inspector Herbert F. Wimmer, secretary to the panel, said the board of appeals' scheduled meeting June 30 was cancelled for lack of a quorum.

Forecast For End Of World Wrong

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Madalena Rosa Cavalcente had predicted she would die and the world would end Friday. Police had to rescue her from angry neighbors when neither came true.

Madalena said God had told her she would die and go to heaven in a flaming chariot as the world ended. She bought her own coffin and a white gown and waited, a crowd gathered at her home in the town of Vila Rosali.

Police said she would undergo a psychiatric examination.

Postal Waste

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The General Accounting Office has charged the Postal Department in 1966 spent more than $60 million on an automatic system of collecting payroll and mail volume information that proved largely ineffective.

Cain's Tire
IS NOT On Strike
AGAIN

But we are being picketed again. They say this is an information picket. The sign says Cain's is unfair. What it doesn't say is to whom!! Surely not to our employees, 'cause they're all at work. No Cain's employees are on strike — these pickets are guys the union picked off the unemployment lines, and they have plenty of those to choose from.

The thing is, Cain's Tire employees are working as usual — the union couldn't get our employees to vote union last year when we went through this — so they are trying again, which is their right. Your right is to buy tires from Cain's as usual — and I'll be dealing lower prices than ever — and when you pull in — please be nice to the picket — he's only there to inform you about something? . . . And to pick up a few bucks. If he could change tires, I could probably put him to work — but then carrying a sign is easier.

PAYS YOU CASH... when both insured husband and wife are hospitalized at the same time because of accidental injury. Collect DOUBLE CASH BENEFITS every month—$2,400.00 A MONTH (when under age 65)—for as long as both remain in the hospital — even for life, if necessary.

ONE out of two families will have someone in the hospital this year! It could be you—or some beloved member of your family—tomorrow . . . next week . . . next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have more than doubled in just a few short years.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have the answer in this National Home plan.

Pays you $600.00-a-month tax-free cash when you are hospitalized.

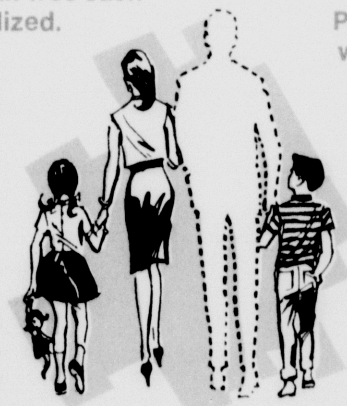
What a blessing it is when you know you have $600.00 cash coming in every month — beginning the very first day you enter the hospital due to an accident, and the sixth day for confinements due to sickness.

Now, you can protect yourself and your entire family for the low first month Introductory Premium shown on the front cover. Then you may continue at the regular low rates shown on page 4.

All benefits of this $600.00-a-month plan are paid directly to you in tax-free cash, in addition to whatever you may receive from your insurance with any other companies. Use the money as you see fit—for hospital or doctors' bills, to replace savings, mortgage or rent payments—or any necessary, but costly, extras not fully covered by other hospital policies.

For older folks—greater protection than you ever would have thought possible!

This National Home Hospital Plan (NH10-669 Cal.) welcomes folks of all ages. Yes, even if you're 65 or over, even if you're OVER 100—each time you go to the hospital you collect cash benefits. To get complete information on our special plan for folks 65 and over, just fill out the coupon on the back page, and we will send full details as soon as we receive your inquiry.

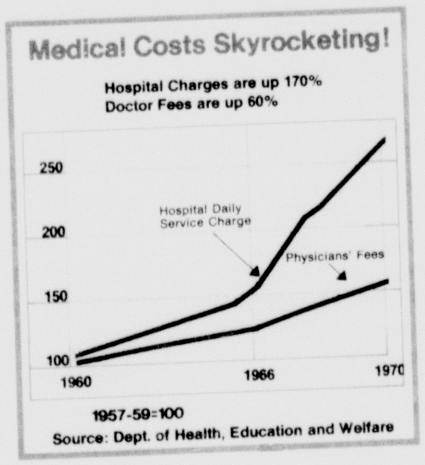


Pays you $360.00-a-month cash whenever any dependent child is hospitalized.

When you choose Coverage for Children, all your unmarried dependent children from age one month through 18 years are covered, too! What's more, any newborn children you have in the future are covered automatically at the age of one month—at no additional cost to you. And when any of your children go to the hospital, this National Home plan pays you at the rate of $360.00-a-month cash, for as long as necessary. Children are covered for accidents from the first day and for sickness from the sixth day.

Pays you at the rate of $600.00 a month for Maternity Benefits!

Other hospital insurance may take care of part of your expenses when you go to the hospital to have a baby. But now, this plan can give you additional help when the new baby arrives. If Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits are added to the basic plan, you get tax-free cash to use any way you want. If a pregnancy, childbirth or even miscarriage puts you in the hospital for one day, five days, ten days—as long as necessary—you get cash benefits for every day of your confinement.



Pays you $400.00-a-month cash for a Registered Nurse at Home.

Yes, in addition to the $600.00-a-month cash we send you for your hospital stay, we pay you an additional $400.00 a month if the doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse to take care of you at home.

How comforting it is to know that—after your stay in the hospital, if you've been there five days or more for which benefits were payable—you can return home to recuperate and yet not be a burden to your loved ones. Yes, if your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse within 5 days after you come home, we'll pay you benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month. And your benefits continue up to 12 full months.

Double Cash Accident Benefit.

When you and your insured spouse are hospitalized at the same time for an accidental injury, this National Home plan pays you an EXTRAORDINARY DOUBLE CASH BENEFIT. You receive not $600.00 but $1,200.00 a month. Your spouse receives not $600.00 but $1,200.00 a month. That's $2,400.00 in cash payments to you every month (when under age 65) starting the day you enter the hospital for as long as you both remain there.

Pays you up to $2,000.00 cash for these accidental losses...

The accidental loss of limbs or eyesight can be terrible. But if such loss occurs within 90 days of the accident, you collect $1,000.00 for the complete loss of a hand or a foot or the sight of an eye — and $2,000.00 for loss of two limbs or the sight of both eyes.

Waiver of premium benefit.

Should you or your spouse be hospitalized for eight consecutive weeks or more, this National Home plan will PAY ALL PREMIUMS that come due for you and all Covered Members of your family while you are confined to the hospital beyond this initial eight-week period. And your protection continues just the same as if you were paying the premiums yourself. Then, if you leave the hospital and must return for the same condition before you have resumed full normal activities for 90 days, we will again pay any premiums coming due while you are in the hospital. This means you pay no premiums, yet your full protection remains in force for as long as you are in the hospital.

These are the only exclusions!

Your National Home policy covers every kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or functional nervous disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and expenses resulting from any sickness or injury originating before the Effective Date of your policy . . . during the first 2 years only.

This last provision is a real help if you already have a health problem. If you are sick before you take out this policy, you will even be covered for that condition after the policy has been in effect for only 2 years. Meanwhile, of course, every new condition is covered.

Pays in addition to any other coverage you have—tax-free—to use as you see fit.

Nationally known and respected.

This is the kind of outstanding protection you may have seen in Reader's Digest, Parents', National Geographic and other leading publications. The special plans offered by the National Liberty Corporation group of companies are today helping policyowners in all 50 states — and many foreign countries — paying benefits at the rate of more than $1,500,000.00 a month. In addition, our Company has a RECOMMENDED rating from Best's Insurance Reports, one of the foremost insurance authorities in the nation.

Why you must act before the date shown on your Enrollment Form—just a few days from today.

Why do we give you so little time to enroll in this plan? Because this is a guaranteed enrollment offer, we can open the enrollment only during a limited time period—with a firm deadline date for everyone. To provide you with this broad coverage at these rates, we must receive your Enrollment Form during the same period as all the others.

Here are your low renewal rates.

The following rate chart shows how little it costs, after the first month, to cover yourself, your spouse or any adult dependent. Naturally, at these low rates, we can issue you only one policy of this type. Each adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown for his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium per Adult
16-44	only $3.45
45-49	only $4.00
50-54	only $4.40
55-64	only $5.10

Only $1.80 more per month covers all your unmarried dependent children . . . from the age of 1 month through 18 years. Newborn children are covered automatically at the age of one month — at no additional cost. For Maternity

65 or OVER?

Write for complete information on our health plan for folks 65 or over. Just print your name and address on the coupon on the back page of this booklet; then cut it out and mail in the post paid reply envelope. We will promptly send you full details.

Benefits just add $1.35 monthly if both husband and wife are covered — or $2.10 monthly if the wife only is insured.

NOTE: The regular monthly premium shown (for age at time of enrollment) will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled in this National Home plan, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age—but only if there is a general rate adjustment up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state.

Act now—"later" may be too late!

TIME IS PRECIOUS! Act quickly. (No salesman will call.) Get your Enrollment Form and Introductory Premium into the mail today—because once you suffer an accident or sickness, it's TOO LATE to buy protection at any cost. That's why we urge you to act today—before anything unexpected happens.

Money-Back Guarantee

We will send your National Home policy by mail. Examine it carefully. If you decide, for any reason, that you don't want to continue as a member of this plan, return the policy within 15 days of the date you receive it, and we will promptly refund your money.

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED

1. How much will I be paid when I go to the hospital?

You will receive cash benefits at the rate of $600.00 a month ($20.00 a day), whenever you are hospitalized. Your coverage begins as soon as we receive your Introductory Premium—this is the day you are covered for any accident. Sickness coverage begins 30 days after the policy is issued. Once you have reached 65 years of age, you collect in addition to any Medicare benefits—$300.00 a month for the first three months, and $600.00 monthly while you remain continuously hospitalized afterwards.

2. Do you pay me cash when my children go to the hospital?

You collect cash benefits at the rate of $360.00 a month any time your child goes to the hospital, when Coverage for Children is added to the basic plan . . . each time any unmarried dependent child (age 1 month through 18 years) is in the hospital for sickness or injury.

3. When do I start to collect hospital benefits?

This new plan (NH10-669 Cal.) covers you from the very first day for accidents and from the sixth day for sickness—even for life, if necessary. Most everyone has some insurance or savings to take care of a one to five-day hospital stay. Since we provide lifetime benefits, this "deductible" feature enables us to give you broad coverage at a lower cost than would otherwise be possible.

4. Will you pay me cash benefits for pregnancy?

Yes. While some health plans don't cover pregnancy, we do. When you have Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits, you collect benefits at the rate of $600.00 a month for each pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage that results in a hospital stay. (The wife only must be enrolled in this plan for the entire pregnancy.)

5. Will my protection be cancelled because I have too many claims? Or because of advanced age?

No! Only you can cancel. The company cannot—no matter how many claims you have or how old you become . . . or for any other reason whatsoever. A Guaranteed-Renewable-for-Life clause has been written into your policy, and we're bound by it.

6. Now tell me what's the "catch" — what doesn't my policy cover?

Get ready for a welcome surprise. Your policy covers everything except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or functional nervous disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and any sickness or injury originating before the Effective Date of your policy—but even this last "exclusion" is done away with after you've been a policyowner for two years. Everything else is definitely covered. You will be covered in any hospital of your choice, except, of course, a U.S. Government hospital or a nursing or convalescent facility.

7. What are the requirements to enroll in this National Home plan?

You must not have been refused or had cancelled any health, hospital or life insurance due to reasons of health; and, to qualify during this Enrollment Period you must enroll before midnight of the date shown on the Enrollment Form.

8. Besides saving money — are there any other advantages to joining this plan now?

Yes. A very important one is that you don't need to complete a lengthy, detailed application—just the brief Enrollment Form on the back of this booklet. Also during this Enrollment Period there are no requirements for eligibility and no "waivers" or restrictive endorsements can be put on your policy.

9. How do I enroll?

Fill out the brief Enrollment Form and mail it with your Introductory Premium for the first month's protection for your entire family—before midnight of the date shown. Mail to: National Home, Valley Forge, Pennsylvania 19481.

Fast, Reliable Claim Service

You never really know how good a policy is until you have to make a claim. That's why we think you'll be interested in what some of our National Home policyowners have to say.

"I took out the policy and had only paid two monthly premiums when I was unexpectedly put in the hospital. Was there 11 days and the National Home Life Assurance Company paid exactly what they had said they would. How happy we were we had taken the policy out."
DEWEY M. FAILOR, Upper Sandusky, Ohio

"Thank you for the check in payment of my recent claim. I am well satisfied with the service. I will certainly recommend your company at every opportunity."
ALGIE M. DAVIS, Waterville, Maine

"I was more than satisfied with the way my claim was handled. One couldn't ask for better service and the 'get well soon' message was one of the nicest thoughts on your part. I thank you sincerely."
MARGUERITE LINDAU, Duluth, Minnesota

National Liberty commended in the Congressional Record of the United States Congress

National Liberty Corporation, parent of National Home Life Assurance Company, has been commended in the United States Congressional Record for bringing low-cost insurance to the general public: "National Liberty deserves recognition for providing service beyond the expected, service willingly offered to those who are not being cared for in other ways. This is the secret of success for its low-cost insurance plans. With the highest public interest at heart, the National Liberty Corporation group of companies combines reliability and quality of service with noteworthy price advantages. It is to be commended on its leadership and vision in this field of human welfare."

Decorated accents make a room vibrant

Now, at low sale prices, bring a gay splash of color home and enjoy a timeless folk art. Ethan Allen's famous American Traditional skill in hand-decorating authentic designs on furniture is so much in tune with today's hand-crafted look. This art is so painstaking, it often takes from 5-6 stencils to recapture the detail of the original motif. Pick your favorites—give them as gifts for weddings or housewarmings.

Where hand-stencil motifs came from.

Patterns used in Colonial times were taken from American Indian designs — eagles, animals, bolts of lightning. The Swiss and Germans brought over the Tree of Life, Tulip and Daisy designs. More sophisticated classical subjects were based on the Acanthus leaf, honeysuckle, urns and fruit painted on furniture from England and France. All of these were adapted by our early craftsmen.

What a pampering chair to come home to! And what inviting reductions! Each style delivers superb comfort as a rocker, club chair and recliner. For the large man, the high back style offers excellent support. In all three, the slightest pressure of body weight adjusts the entire chair to any one of three positions. The extra-thrust footrest adds extra length to the full reclining position to permit stretch-out leg room for even the tallest person. Pick your favorite now.

Is this an English cottage or an Early American home? No, but now you can recreate their romantic atmosphere at low sale tags. Our recipe—a dramatic fireplace, stucco walls, two very compatible woods: solid Antiqued Pine with richly distressed Old Tavern finish and imported English Oak, both with selected veneers. Each wood is bold and rugged-looking. The Pine buffet and hutch have charming panelled and scalloped details, "worn" edges. There's a choice of two Pine table and chair styles, too. And the Oak designs are exclusive Ethan Allen imports, prominently grained, beautifully hand-carved with 17th century Gothic arches, spirals, fascinating grapevine patterns—even the Sussex coat of arms.

By GEORGE NEVIN

Tiburon and its new city manager, Bert A. Balmer, appear to be made for each other.

A dedicated conservationist who just completed a book on the preservation of the wilderness, Balmer sees a challenge and an opportunity in Tiburon's remaining areas of open space.

"This is a city just getting ready to grow," the 54-year-old Balmer said the other day, predicting that Tiburon's population will increase from its present 6,000 to 30,000 eventually. "It's exciting to have such a large area of land that isn't developed yet.

"I'd like to see the finished Tiburon a beautiful place with open space along the ridges and shoreline."

HE IS AN articulate man — not surprising, considering his Mater's Degree in creative writing — who punctuates his remarks with quick, incisive hand movements.

Balmer sees great differences between Tiburon and Mill Valley, where he served for six years as city manager before resigning in 1969 to write his book.

"Mill Valley was a well established city when I was there; its patterns and physical features were already developed," he said. "Tiburon on the other hand is a young city, with more than half of its area undeveloped."

GIVEN HIS upbringing in the Cascade Range of Washington and his love of nature, the city manager would seem to be an ideal choice as the man who will oversee that development.

"Most cities are too far gone to ever become beautiful, but Tiburon is an exception," he said. "It's a vital city; Mill Valley is a static city."

Perhaps it is this attraction that led Balmer to give up a $20,123 salary in Mill Valley to write hs book and then to accept the Tiburon position at $18,600 per year.

BALMER SAID he had no qualms about assuming the direction of Tiburon, the city which was his chief opponent and obstacle to his annexation proposals as Mill Valley city manager.

"There haven't been any problems adjusting to working in Tiburon," he said with a smile.

During Balmer's stay in Mill Valley, he engineered the annexation of 597 acres to that city, mostly in the North Ridge, Alto Bowl and tidelands areas.

HIS PLAN TO annex all unincorporated land from Tiburon to the Pacific Ocean did not materialize, however, and efforts to bring the tax-rich Strawberry Town and Country Village Shopping Center into the Mill Valley municipal fold were fought fiercely by Tiburon and thwarted.

With his reputation as an annexation specialist, Balmer will find that skill much in demand in Tiburon. With the blessing of the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission, Tiburon has embarked on a program to absorb the Bel-Aire-Eagle Rock area and the entire Strawberry Peninsula.

Balmer is confident the annexation movement will succeed. Tiburon offers improved police protection to Strawberry, he said, but most of all it offers a chance for local determination of its planning affairs, a power now vested with the county.

IN CHOOSING him as city manager, Balmer feels, the Tiburon City Council opted for "an experienced, more mature person who could build the city and save the environment at the same time." The alternative, he said, was a young administrator who would stay only a few years.

The silver-haired Balmer sees himself as "a strong manager. Once an ordinance is passed, I don't expect to go back to the council unless, a special problem comes up.

"Local government is best when the council is the legislative body and puts its trust in the staff. If the staff is weak, the government begins to fall apart."

CHANGES IN Tiburon's appearance already are apparent under Balmer. One surface difference that is perhaps indicative of more significant shifts is the rearrangement of the front offices at city hall. No longer cramped and close, they now give a more open, inviting look.

Another difference: Lawrence D. Rose, who preceded Balmer as city manager, believed in the committee system. Under this system two city councilmen would study a problem, arrive at a proposed solution and make a recommendation to the city council.

A committee report, coming as it did from two councilmen, was deemed to have been moved and seconded by them,

BERT A. BALMER became city manager of Tiburon on Feb. 22, 1971, intrigued by the opportunities presented by a young municipality within whose confines there are still large, undeveloped spaces. His previous experience includes six years as Mill Valley city manager, the authorship of a book on conservation, service as a combat historian in World War II and work as a consultant to state government and various cities in his native Washington.

and only one more vote was needed to approve the action.

BALMER HOPES to phase out the committee system.

"I don't like it," he said. "It's not necessary with a strong staff. It's burdensome and slows things down. Committees take away some of the responsibility of the city manager."

Curiously, despite their basic differences, Balmer and Rose do share one similarity: both were writers before becoming involved in city government.

ROSE WAS publisher of the Monterey Pine Cone prior to moving to Tiburon, and Balmer majored in English and creative writing and worked as an official historical writer for the Army during World War II.

Bert A. Balmer was born in Cle Elum, Wash., a small town (population 2,206) in the Cascade Mountains. He lived there until he finished the fifth grade, then moved to Seattle to complete his schooling.

World War II invervened during his college years at the University of Washington, and Balmer was assigned first to the Army and later to the War Department as an official combat historian.

"IT WAS MY job to interview the top generals after battles, They had to talk to me; they couldn't refuse," he said. "If I didn't understand the operation as they explained it, I was entitled to go out into the field and talk to the troops directly."

As a result of his experiences as a combat historian, Balmer said "I knew more about the battles than anyone else, including the generals themselves. I really saw what war was, and why things went wrong."

Balmer was assigned to battles in the Pacific Theater, including Guadalcanal and Okinawa, where he was wounded. He still draws a 20 per cent disability pension.

HIS WAR writings were combined with those of other battle historians and made a part of the official record of World War II. They are now on file at the Pentagon, he said.

After the war, Balmer returned to college and received his Master's Degree in creative writing in 1948. He then served as a municipal consultant to the state government and several cities in Washington, helping them solve local problems.

In 1959 Balmer, having chosen government rather than writing as a career, became assistant city manager of Redwood City. He took a similar post in Fresno in 1962, and come to Mill Valley as city manager in 1964.

ALTHOUGH HIS primary interest during these years was government, he did not forego writing completely. He combined the two interest by working as correspondent for Western City Magazine.

But the choice between administration and communication was not easy, and in 1969 Balmer resigned as Mill Valley's city manager and took his wife, Mary, and three children, John, Kelly and James, to the remote tip of Vancouver Island on the Juan de Fuca Strait in Canada.

Balmer described his book, which is now in the hands of publishers in New York, as a "labor of love."

"I wanted to write it for a number of years," he said. "I tried to finish it in Mill Valley but my job there was too demanding. Finally I decided to quit the job and concentrate on the book."

LIVING ON the water's edge in Canada was precisely the tonic he needed. "It was a joy waking up in the morning," he said.

From the shore he could see killer whales and sea lions swim by, sharing the busy channel with freighters, tugs and fishing boats.

The book, which took more than a year to complete, concerns the nature and character of the wilderness and the ecology of the outdoors, Balmer said. It draws on his experiences as a child growing up in the Cascades and his extensive hikes through the mountains.

FOR HIS future work in Tiburon, Balmer foresees even closer cooperation between Tiburon and Belvedere in several areas — law enforcement, flood control, planning and other municipal services.

"In these days of high cost of government, one of the answers is more agreements between cities," he said. "It's logical for Belvedere to contract with Tiburon for police and fire protection and such services as street maintenance."

JAMES MILLER and his wife, the former Mary Murphy, both born in County Wexford, Ireland, in the early 19th Century, were married at Frampton, Canada, in 1834. They were members of a historic wagon train party that pioneered the overland crossing of the Plains, the Rockies and the Sierra to California. And they settled in Marin County, to raise a large family and to become among Marin's most prominent early-day residents. The photographs are the property of William J. Miller of Corte Madera, great-grandson of James Miller.

The Story Of The Millers Of Marin

Pioneer Family Helped Lead The Way When The Wagon Trains Rolled West

(Editor's Note: This is another of the manuscripts on early-day Marin County completed by the late historian, Florence Donnelly, for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine prior to her death.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

The story of the Millers of Marin is one of a family who pioneered the westward wagon train movement over plains and mountains to the Pacific Coast.

It is a story that begins in County Wexford on Ireland's east coast with the birth of Martin Murphy on Nov. 12, 1785. Murphy grew up in Wexford and married Mary Foley. They had a number of children including Mary Murphy who was to become the wife of James Miller, patriarch of the Marin clan.

MARTIN MURPHY was filled with the spirit of Irish nationalism and embittered by British rule in Ireland. It was in search of political freedom and greater economic opportunity that he brought his family to North America, sailing for Canada in 1820 and settling on a farm at Frampton near Quebec.

Both the soil and climate proved unfriendly, and the family's stay there was relatively short.

But it was at Frampton that Mary Murphy was married to James Miller. He, too, had been born in County Wexford, on May 1, 1814, and he had been brought by his parents at age 14 to Canada.

MILLER WAS 20 when he was married, and he and Mary began to rear a family. When Martin Murphy decided to move his clan further south, into the United States, the Millers accompanied them. Most of the trip was made by river and lake, with the Murphys and the Millers eventually settling in Holt County, Mo., in a community known as Irish Grove.

There the soil was rich and the crops good. But malaria plagued the settlers, and Martin Murphy's wife and three of their daughters were among those who succumbed to the disease. Furthermore there were no religious or educational facilities available.

The colonists were still dazed from the onslaughts of malaria when they were visited in 1843 by a missionary priest who told them glowing tales of the west coast where the Franciscans had established missions, and where the climate was mild and the valleys fertile.

THE PRIEST could offer only vague information he had gleaned from hunters and trappers of the route to be followed, but the Murphys, the Millers and some of their neighbors vowed that in the spring they would head west for California and Oregon.

Circumstances in the early spring of 1844 brought them into contact with a remarkable man by tha name of Elisha Stevens who was also bent on heading west to Oregon.

Irving Stone, in his best-selling "Men to Match My Mountains" described Stevens as "probably the ugliest man to cross the plains," but gave high marks to his character and ability.

STEVENS, HE wrote, was about 40, South Carolina-born of a French Huguenot family. He had been raised in Georgia and had become a blacksmith, but had spent most of his years as a hunter and trapper in the Northwest.

He was described as a lean, turkey-necked man with a strong, narrow, misshapen head and a huge beaked nose that made him look like an eagle. He was taciturn, but courteous.

And although he was a stranger to the 20-member Murphy clan and to their neighbors, the Townsends and Montgomerys, in only a matter of days they decided upon him as the leader for their overland crossing to the West.

ALL IN ALL, it was an unusually well-prepared party that gathered at Council Bluffs in May. There were 13 wagons in the train, all 13 in good condition, some of them built especially for the trip. Good oxen were available to haul the wagons, and horses and a large herd of cattle were also to accompany the party.

An authentic medical man, Dr. John Townsend, was included in the party, as were a blacksmith and a gunsmith.

Caleb Greenwood, an experienced mountain and plains man, was hired as a guide. And with him were his two half-breed sons, as well as three French Canadians with backwoods experience.

ONLY FOUR OF the 26 men in the party could be considered old. The others ranged from

MILLER HALL was the large and luxurious dwelling that pioneer James Miller built for his family upon the Las Gallinas Rancho land deeded to Miller by his fellow Irishman, Don Timoteo Murphy. The place was famous for its hospitality, and remained the quarters of the Miller family through the years that saw James Miller expand his holdings extensively. The location today is the site of the Marinwood development.

three 17-year-old youths to Stevens' 40 years. Of the eight grown women, five were wives under 36, one a widow and two unmarried girls.

The participating families had all put in supplies to last them eight months.

All in the party buried any personal differences, and all put their complete trust in Stevens. This proved wise, for he provided a caliber of leadership that was sadly missing in the later ill-fated Donner Party.

The wagons crossed the Missouri River and continued west without difficulty until they reached the banks of the Elkhorn. Here a crude ferryboat was improvised by making one of the wagon boxes water-tight with a covering of rawhides. The other wagons were then dismantled, and these and their contents ferried laboriously across the river.

The oxen, cattle and horses were then forced to ford and swim the river where, on the other bank, the train was reassembled.

AGAIN THE party moved on across the plains, sighting young buffalo along their way that provided them with fresh meat.

A stopover of several days allowed both people and animals to rest, and also permitted the travelers to trade some of their horses for Indian ponies, which they believed to be hardier, and to purchase mocassins from the Indians to replace worn-out shoes.

Although the relationship with the Indians was friendly, sentinels were posted at night and a vigilance maintained.

THE NEXT stop occurred at Independence Rock near the Sweetwater River, to permit the killing of buffalo and the drying of the meat. While the hunting party was out, Mrs. James Miller gave birth to a daughter who was named Ellen Independence.

There was an anxious day when the pioneers were completely out of water, until they reached the Green River. And a tense moment when a scouting party encountered two mounted Indians, and a short time later the entire wagon train was surrounded by shouting, whooping redskins.

The party stood its ground, rifles in hand, as the Indians came nearer. The the Indians' hands came out in a gesture of friendship. And the mountain men in the party recognized the newcomers as friendly Shoshones.

AT FORT HALL another rest stop was made. There flour, for a d o l l a r a pound, and other provisions could be bought. And here, too, according to most sources, the California-bound parted with those destined for Oregon. From then on, Martin Murphy and James Miller were in charge of the wagons headed for California, and the Stevens Party became the Murphy-Miller Party. (Although Stone's account d i s a g r e e s and has Stevens continuing with the California group.)

The wagon train t u r n e d southwest and followed the Humboldt River until they reached its sink and were confronted with only alkali water for drinking. There was uncertainty now as to the best direction. But by good fortune, a kindly Piute Indian appeared and by making drawings in the sandy soil, indicated there was a river ahead where the water and grass were good.

Scouts rode ahead with the Indian, now called Truckee because he resembled a French-Indian of that name some of the white men had known in Canada, to explore. They returned to report that Truckee had told the truth.

BUT EVEN as the t e a m s were being harnessed to resume the journey, an incident that nearly spelled disaster occurred.

Moses Schellenberger, brother-in-law of Dr. Townsend, d i s c o v e r e d that a halter was missing from his wagon. Hot-tempered and incensed, he seized his rifle and pointed it at a nearby Indian he suspected of the theft.

Moving quickly, Martin Murphy took the weapon away from the youth. But now the Indians were angered. And it took some time — and some presents — before they were mollified.

The party now was moving across the desert under a broiling sun. For 36 h o u r s they marched without a stop. Then after a two-hour halt at Boiling Springs, they continued on another 12 hours, which brought them to the promised river which they named the Truckee in honor of their Indian benefactor.

AGAIN THERE was a pause before the travelers began to struggle up the east side of the Sierra. Much of the time they moved along the Truckee's bed. Even then progress was slow, and they were soon confronted by snow that buried the grass.

The oxen were footsore and hungry, and their piteous bawling made the emigrants forget their own misery in their sympathy for their animals. At one point the crooked stream had to be crossed 10 times in a single day. But after weeks of winding up and down the canyons the party eventually reached a river fork where a lush meadow invited them to set up camp. Ahead were forbidding domes of granit.

Once more scouts rode out, and it was Daniel Murphy who made it all the way to Lake Tahoe, gazed up those waters enraptured, then continued to St. Clair's Rancho.

THE MAIN party followed along the bed of the L i t t l e Truckee to what became known as Donner Lake. There another stop was called. And there Dr. Townsend and Moses Schellenberger decided to leave behind some luxury items such as silks and satins that hey had brought along to sell in California. Their wagons, they decided, had to be lightened for the mountains that lay ahead.

Young Schellenberger agreed to remain at Donner Lake with the goods until his brother-in-law could return with help. Two other young men, Joseph Foster and Allen Montgomery, were willing to remain with him. They built the cabin that was later to be occupied by Patrick Breen of the Donner Party.

The food supply of the trio dwindled rapidly and they were faced with starvation. Foster and Montgomery left, following after the wagons. But Schellenberger was left in the cabin with what remained of the food, too frail to travel farther.

TWO F E E T OF snow had f a l l e n onto the face of the mountain that the Murphy-Miller party had to c o n q u e r to reach the Pacific. Wagons were unloaded and their contents carried on the backs of men. The teams were then doubled and tripled to haul the empty wagons up the mountain.

Wrote Stone: "Halfway up the mountain the party met a vertical cliff, solidly blocking the trail. Inch-by-inch searching revealed a narrow crevice by means of which a man could painstakingly lead the oxen one at a time up through the face of the rock.

"Then, at the bottom, chains were fastened to the tongue of a wagon and c a t t l e at the top hitched to the chains, the men at the bottom p u s h i n g and straining and shoving the wagons, the animals hauling from above.

"EVERY LAST wagon was successfully brought up the face of the formidable rock. Again men had matched the mountains."

A 25-mile push westward brought them to the Yuba River's headwaters. By then, full winter had overtaken them, so they made c a m p , well prepared, except for their worries about young Schellenberger, to wait out the snows.

Finally, in February, concern had grown until Dennis Martin, carrying a heavy pack of food and medical supplies, rode back over the Sierra through heavily drifted gulches to the cabin where Schellenberger had been left. He found the young man in a state of collapse, but nursed him back to health, and then took him on to the camp on the Yuba.

WHILE MOST of the party spent the winter on the Yuba, some of its able-bodied men had pressed on down the moun-

"What Happened To The Design On My Housedress?"

Designs are applied to fabrics in various ways. One, which was used on your dress, is a "pigment print." This method is often difficult to distinguish from a regularly printed fabric, though a "pigment print" usually appears heavy and intense in color. Such a print is not a dye, but a finely ground insoluable pigment mixed with a binder and printed on the fabric. It does not enter the fabric.

The trouble you encountered is that the pigment binder selected was not intended for a fabric that would be drycleaned. The same pigment removal will result from the use of a poor pigment binder or improper curing at the required temperature.

Many pigment prints will withstand repeated drycleaning. However, it is best to test a pigment print on an unexposed seam with a sample of drycleaning solvent. Discoloration of the solvent or any change in color in the f a b r i c will warn against drycleaning. In your situation, Mrs. T.T.R., the pigment print was lost and cannot be restored.

tain side and had reached Sutter's Fort in mid-December of 1844.

When they returned it was with word that there was trouble between the Mexican authorities in California and the oncoming wave of American immigrants. While James Miller and a few of the men remained with the women and children, Martin Murphy took the rest of the male members of his party to Sutter's Fort where they volunteered for a military foray being planned by the Americans.

The affair proved a farce. The rifle-armed Americans marched toward Southern California, but the result was a rout, and John M. Murphy, 19, was one of a scouting party of 15 taken prisoners and held five days before being released on parole.

THE MURPHYS then rode back north, stopping at Monterey for provisions. Upon their return to the Yuba River camp they were greeted with the news that their numbers had been increased during their absence. Mrs. Martin Murphy Jr. had given birth to a daughter — named Elizabeth Yuba.

Finally, the Murphy-Miller party broke up the Yuba camp and the wagons rolled on to Sutter's Fort, arriving in March of 1845 to complete the long journey.

Wrote historian Hubert Howe Bancroft: "The Murphy Party was thus the first to open a wagon trail across the plains to California . . . They were also the first to cross the Sierra by way of Truckee and Bear rivers, and their train contained the first emigrant wagons that ever made tracks on California soil."

HITTELL'S "History of California" agrees that:

"The Murphy Party are said to have been the first, or at least the most successful, in getting through with ease and bringing their wagons safely over the mountains. It was their good fortune, owing chiefly to their good management, to conciliate the Indians all along the route.

That same source says the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Murphy Jr. was the first child of American overland immigrants to be born in California.

THE SENIOR Murphy and his large family settled in the Santa Clara Valley. There Murphy bought Rancho de Agua de la Coche, which had been granted to Juan Maria Hernandez on Aug. 5, 1835, and built an adobe hacienda not far from the town of Morgan Hill.

Martin Murphy Sr. lived well into his 80s. His grandson, Martin J.C. Murphy, received the U.S. patent to the rancho of 8,927 fertile Santa Clara Valley acres in 1860.

But James Miller, his wife and their children came to Marin County in 1845, and were greeted by colorful Don Timoteo Murphy who was delighted to learn that the newcomers hailed from near Wexford where he was born.

DON TIMOTEO offered to deed Miller 680 acres on the Las Gallinas Rancho where the Millers had camped on their first night in Marin. The agreement was made in 1846 and the Miller family moved upon the land, although it was not officially recorded until 1850.

It was thus the first deed to be recorded in Marin after the admission of California to the Union.

Bancroft reports that the eldest son, William J. Miller, was already 12 when the family arrived in Marin, and that there were also three daughters at that time. Here the family increased to eventually number 10 children — William J., Kate, Mary, Martin, Ellen, Julia, Frances, Therese, Bernard and Josephine.

MILLER PROVED a hard-working and shrewd man. He built up a large herd of cows and acquired horses and mules. And he built a shake house for his family that was replaced first by an adobe dwelling and then by a much larger and more pretentious residence that came to be known as Miller Hall.

The Marin County History described it as "a square building, massive in appearance and commodiously apportioned into convenient apartments. From the broad verandahs, which surround the edifice, a grand view of varied scenery is obtained, while the house stands the central figure of tastefully laid out grounds and well wooded groves.

"Contiguous to the mansion are the well-appointed farm offices, where a large dairying business is conducted.

"BESIDES OWNING a considerable quantity of real estate in the thriving town of San Rafael, he (James Miller) is the proprietor of no less than 8,000 acres of land in different parts of Marin County."

Thus Miller had added extensively to the "home" ranch by the time the history was published — in 1880.

He was content to remain upon his Marin land except for one money-making adventure in 1849. Then he, his son and their vaqueros drove 150 head of steers to the placer mines in the Gold Rush country where they slaughtered the beeves and sold the meat for a dollar a pound for a good profit.

By 1864 Miller was prosperously engaged in dairying on a large scale, selling milk and butter to the San Francisco market.

WHEN THE railroad came through Las Gallinas Rancho, Miller's Station was established.

The Millers saw to it that their children received good educations. The older ones were taught at home by tutors and governesses. Later the boys were sent to the college at Santa Clara that is now the University of Santa Clara, while the girls went to Catholic convents to study.

When youngest son Bernard was 6, Miller contributed land for a school site, and the Dixie School was erected there.

ALTHOUGH transportation was difficult, the Millers and their relatives, the Murphys, exchanged frequent and long visits, no doubt often talking over their difficult crossing to the West.

The James Millers' oldest son, William J., worked for his father on the ranch, then began his own business career early, buying land and cattle and carrying on extensive building operations. He owned a large ranch at Nicasio where he built a three-story hotel fronting on the village square.

William J., who had been born in Canada, often recalled the days when he came west with his family.

"My father," he said, "was captain of the party, and everything was done with military precision.

"EVERY MAN and woman had certain duties to perform, and these were done without a murmur. We had scouts go ahead and pick out our camping places for the night. Other men had to harness and unharness the horses and oxen and take them to pasture.

"The men, working in shifts, guarded the wagon train from attack by the Indians. The women attended to the cooking and other duties, and the boys of the party gathered the firewood.

"The crossing of the plains through the intense heat and the tortures we suffered at times from the alkali and scarcity of water were indes-

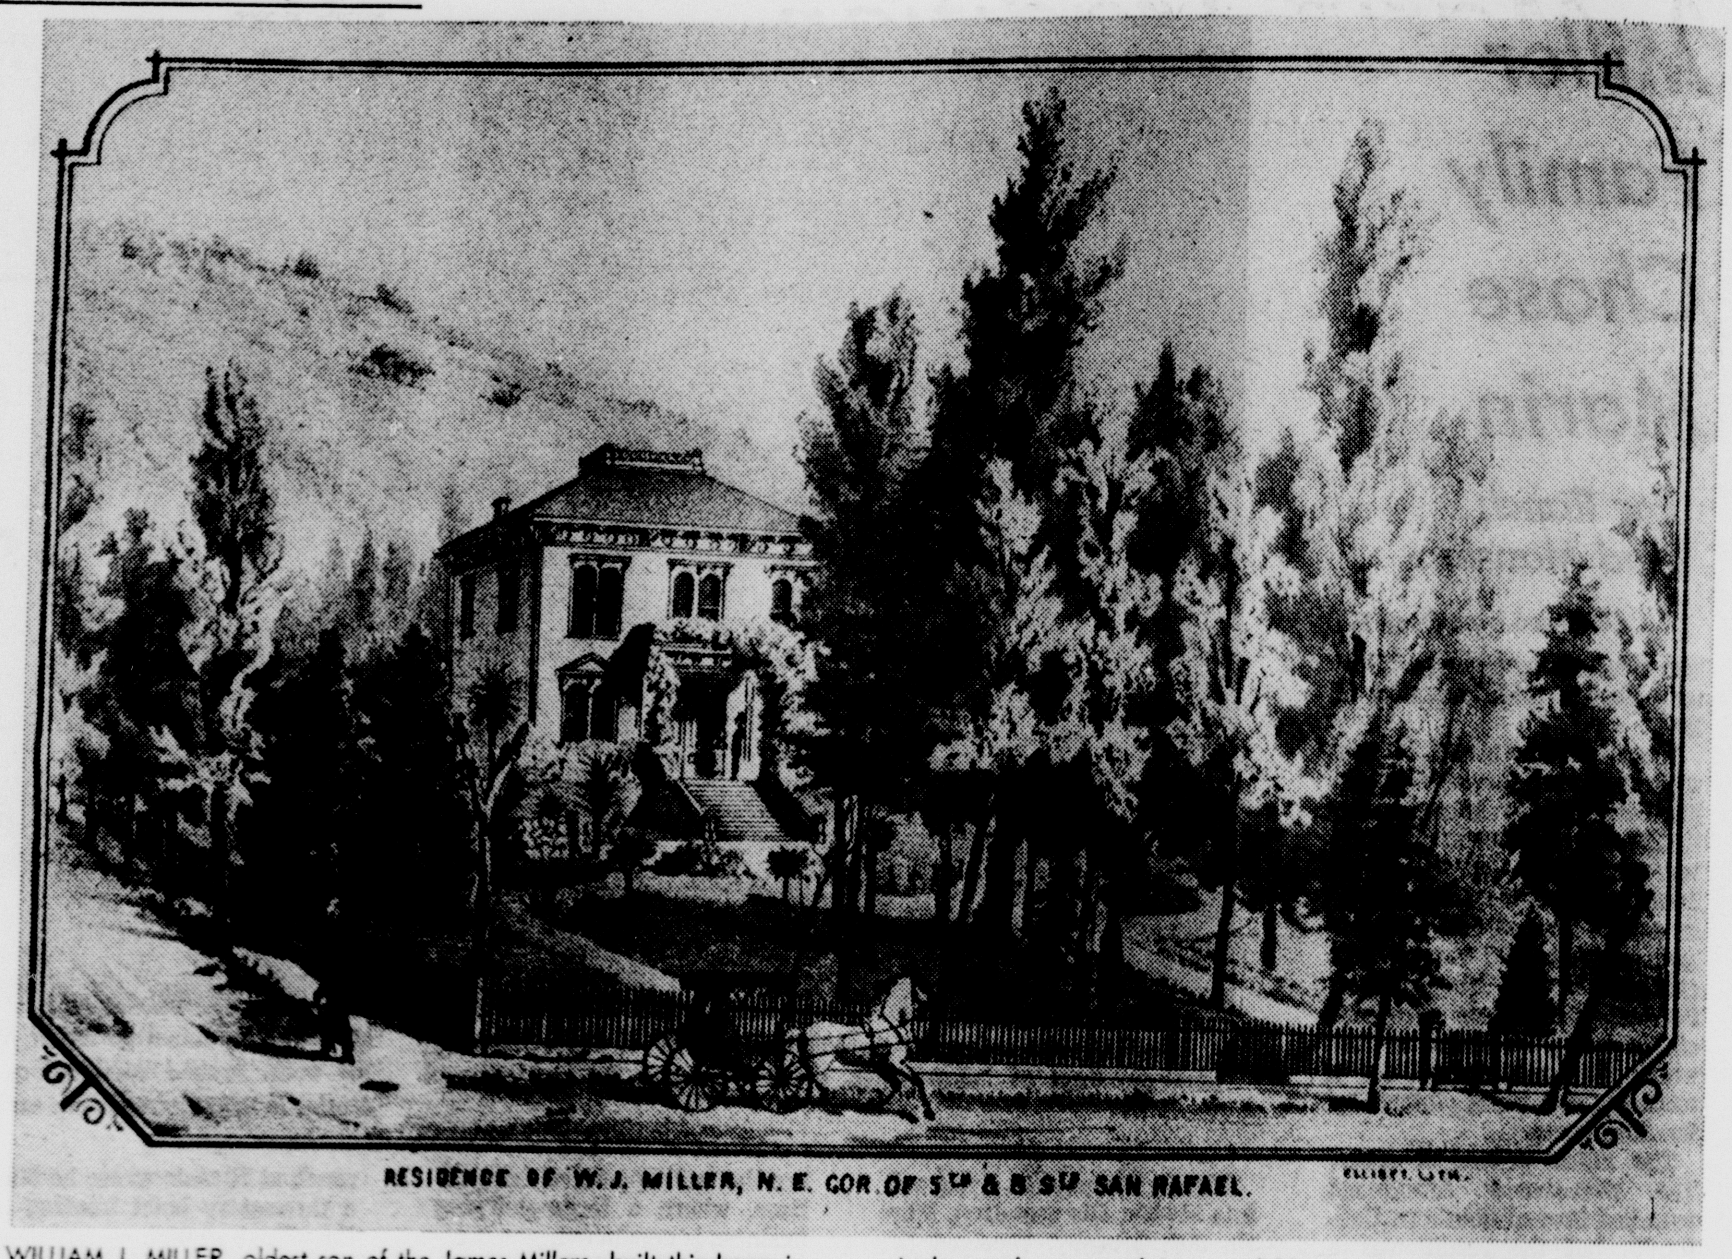
History Of The Miller Family



WILLIAM J. MILLER, oldest son of the James Millers, built this home in San Rafael at the corner of Fifth and B in 1887. It was later the home of the Fred Gibsons, and then was acquired by the San Rafael Elks Lodge and converted into a clubhouse. It was sold in 1963 to the Bank of Marin, which razed it to make room for its present modern bank building on the site.

cribable. We had to go miles in search of the chips of the dried manure of the buffalo for fuel.

"ONE DAY would be lovely and the following would be coupled with misery and sorrow, and the undertaking was really heroic — sufficient to immortalize those who succeeded in its accomplishment.

"After weeks of drudgery and suffering, not to mention the fear of attack and possible annihilation by Indians, the monotony wore off as the snow-capped Rocky Mountains, in their solemn grandeur, arose in front of us. For a few days the change kindled within the human breast a hope that from the summit of the highest pass through those rugged mountains we would soon procure a glimpse of the land of sunshine, fruit and flowers, which we were soon to possess."

But still a long journey lay ahead of the travelers with the ordeal in the Sierra described by Stone, Bancroft and others.

"And there were times," related William J. Miller, "when the hide of the buffalo or the riata was used to make soup for our hungry and fatigued wanderers."

WILLIAM J. Miller was also the source of information about happier days, after the Irish Millers had settled in Marin County, learned the Spanish language and quickly adapted themselves to the Spanish-flavored customs of gracious and hospitable living of the area.

Of Miller Hall, he said: "It was the mecca of the young aristocrats of the county and many delightful functions were held there. In the large fireplace in the spacious parlor the coffee pot always swung on the crane and delicious refreshments were served by the young folk."

Other early-day Marinites have left their recollections of Miller Hall hospitality and spoke of the beauty of its gardens, and of the fountain that "sprayed and played" in the circular pool at the entrance driveway.

IN A DIFFERENT light, two of the Miller girls had stood up as godmothers to two Indian babies. When their mother died, the father brought the Indian children in baskets to Miller Hall and presented them to their godmothers. The Millers raised the Indian youngsters as part of their household.

Sorrow invaded Miller Hall when the James Millers' daughter Julia died May 30, 1880. Mrs. Miller, weakened by grief, followed her on Dec. 26, 1882, and in October of 1888, a son, Martin, was killed in a railroad accident.

Finally, on Nov. 25, 1890, the long trail came to an end for intrepid pioneer James Miller after a prolonged illness.

THE FUNERAL services were held across the road from his beloved Miller Hall at St. Vincent's orphanage, an institution in which James Miller had always taken a keen interest and to which he had contributed lavishly, so that he was sometimes called "the foster father of St. Vincent's."

Unmarried daughters of the James Millers remained at Miller Hall for a time, continuing the hospitable traditions of their parents. Kate Miller married John Keys while another daughter became Mrs. Joseph Kirk.

The afore-mentioned William J. Miller married Isabella (Belle) Green. They had two sons, George J. and William A. Miller.

THE WILLIAM J. Millers moved into San Rafael in 1865, and the father constructed the Marin Hotel building and the Miller Block of business buildings on Fourth Street between A and B.

He was a member of the San Rafael Board of Trustees, the town postmaster, a member of the state legislature, one of the petitioners for the purchase of the Heuston property where the Marin County Courthouse was built in downtown San Rafael in 1872-73, and a real estate dealer whose transactions included the sale of the Patrick King Ranch, now Larkspur, to the American Land and Trust Co. for $26,000.

William J. Miller bought the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and B Street in 1887 and built a two-story house there. In later years he sold that property and moved a short distance east to a two-story Victorian residence. The earlier Miller home was bought by the socially prominent Fred Gibsons. Gibson, in turn, later sold the showplace to San Rafael Elks Lodge No. 1108 which converted the dwelling into a clubhouse and used it for years before selling the property in 1963 to the Bank of Marin which razed the clubhouse and constructed a modern new bank building.

WILLIAM J. Miller died in March of 1916. His obituary in the San Rafael Independent listed as his survivors his widow Isabella, sons George and William A., his brother Bernard T. Miller, and his sisters Therese Miller and Mrs. Joseph Kirk.

The funeral was held at St. Raphael's Church with interment at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

One son, George Miller, married Edith Scott, and the other, William A., married Martha Curtis Forsyth. The William A. Millers in turn, had two sons, Don Alfonso Miller and Milton Miller.

Bernard Miller, son of the James Millers, married Emma Senter. He, too, was prominent in Marin affairs of the time. And they reared four daughters and a son, first living at Nicasio where he had bought land from his brother Martin, and then moving to San Rafael.

A story is told of how Bernard Miller signed as a parole witness for a San Quentin Prison convict serving time for murder, and pledged him a job on the Nicasio ranch.

WHEN BERNARD Miller brought the man home from San Quentin, neighbors were horrified.

"Aren't you worried at having a murderer on your ranch?" he was asked.

"Why should I be?" queried Miller. "He isn't mad at us."

Bernard Miller died in March of 1927 at the age of 72, according to his daughter, Mrs. Adolph Lietz (Frances Miller), now of St. Helena.

WITH THE immediate members of the James Miller family gone from the ranch where Miller Hall still stood, the place was leased. Then on July 11, 1929, the Marin Journal carried this notice: "The Miller Ranch is reported sold for $100,000 or more." The acreage was given as 1,084.

Mary Silveira, widow of Anthony F. Silveira, told of how she had gone to the Miller Ranch to live as a bride and remained there until 1936 when she and her family moved to a new home across the highway.

But the strong stamp of the Miller family, from James Miller down to present generations, remains indelibly affixed upon Marin County history, geography, its physical development and the pioneering spirit of its people.

A Marin Tradition—

By DON KEOWN

It is a custom that dates back to 1947, the year when a group of women from the Marin Garden Club planned a series of outdoor luncheons to raise funds for the art and garden center, then only two years old.

Co-chairmen for that first luncheon were Mrs. Fred Herrington, then Mrs. Frank Stratford, and Mrs. Russell G. Smith.

Thirty-five guests turned out to enjoy Turkey Tetrazzini, prepared in the kitchens of Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Smith and served by Marin "provisionals" from the San Francisco Junior League. The price: 75 cents.

THE EVENT marked not only the start of what was to become an annual series of luncheons, but also the beginning of the Northgate Group, an offshoot of the garden club, dedicated to the financial support of the art and garden center.

Before that summer was over, six other women had served as hostesses for three more luncheons under the trees. They were Mrs. Thomas Page Brooks, Mrs. Paul Foster Sr., Mrs. Harry Johnson, Miss Elsa Korbell, Mrs. Wallace Scott and Mrs. E. M. Shelton, most of them still active with the Northgate Group today.

The cooking continued to be done in the homes, with service upon card tables using silver and dishes of the members, and luncheon cloths made by Mrs. Thomas Kent.

DISHES WERE washed in a small shed built by the husbands of the women, using charred lumber that had been salvaged from a fire: Later a donated sink, stove and ice box were installed by E.E. Ongaro Sr.

Mrs. Herrington, the Northgate Group's first president, and Mrs. Scott have vivid memories of the early luncheons.

"Whenever we needed money for operating expenses, we would run across the street and borrow from the bank," they recall. "Then we would work madly to pay it back."

THEY REMEMBER particularly in 1948 approaching Eugene Ostaggi, then manager of the American Trust Bank in San Anselmo, to ask for a $1,000 loan "in fear and trembling at the repercussions from our husbands." That sum was repaid the same year. And banker Ostaggi jokingly told the women he couldn't really afford to loan them money because they repaid him too fast for the interest to mount.

And young women of the county were "invited" to serve punch before the luncheons. Many of these later became Northgate Group members. And one of them remembers today: "We weren't really so much invited as we were simply summoned on the telephone."

THERE WERE problems, such as the worms that persisted in dropping from the trees onto the tables in front of the surprised diners. This necessitated a special detail to shake down the trees before each luncheon, and some strategic placement of the tables.

There was the unseasonal and unexpected rainstorm that forced the moving of one luncheon indoors, into the Octagon House. In those crowded quarters, despite the congestion and roof leaks, Mrs. Kent calmly, almost formally, seated her guests. Hostesses and helpers, somewhat less calmly, served spaghetti and meatballs while dodging the rain.

And there was the time when luncheon was very much delayed. One of the hostesses was preparing pettit fors as the dessert. And the little cakes simply could not be hurried.

EVENTS SUCH as the minor crisis of the pettit fors were no doubt responsible for one major change in the luncheon procedure fairly early in its history. Home-cooked meals prepared in the kitchens gave way to catered menus.

Catered or home-cooked, the popularity of the luncheons under the trees grew so rapidly that, the women recall, "soon it was no longer necessary for us to browbeat our friends into patronizing and enjoying the al fresco refreshments."

By 1949 the Marin members of the San Francisco Junior League were an intergral part of the luncheon programs, setting up the tables, serving the food and modeling for the fashion shows that became the customary entertainment.

HOWEVER, THE Junior League's membership was small, and they were busy young women with families. So, in 1951, Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Wallace Hickman hit upon the idea of inviting other Marin charitable and social organizations to participate, in order to lighten the Junior League's burden.

"After all," the two women pointed out, "the art and garden center is a cultural center from which all of Marin County benefits."

So began the practice of designating each luncheon as the day of one or more participating organizations. These in turn furnished not only waitresses and models, but also a good part of the guest list, for their particular luncheon.

WHEN THE growth of the organization and its programs made apparent to the Northgate Group women their needs for a building of their own on the art and garden center grounds, they approached James Goodale, then president of the center's board of directors.

Goodale challenged the women: "You show me $7,000 and then we will talk about a building."

The always resourceful Mrs. Herrington instructed each member of the group to earn $100 for the project, and the fund-raising endeavors that resulted were varied and original.

THE RESULT was a $10,000 building in 1957 that incorporated the Livermore Room for meetings, classes, wedding receptions, etc., and a kitchen.

But still lacking were the funds for a huge fireplace that would add a final touch of warmth and charm to the Livermore Room.

Undaunted, Mrs. Herrington began selling stones for the fireplace for a $5 donation. And thus the stones that make up the handsome fireplace "belong" to the Ross Valley Grocery, to Sam the Butcher, etc.

CERTAINLY THE luncheon upon which most Northgate Group members look back most fondly was the one in 1963 honoring Mrs. Norman Livermore on her 80th birthday and in recognition of her contributions to the art and garden center.

Caroline Livermore was seated at a special table with her family. All present received an individual cake with candle, and all stood to sing "Happy Birthday." The Hamilton Air Force Base band was present to play Texas-born Mrs. Livermore's favorite song, "Yellow Rose of Texas." And she was presented with a bouquet of 80 roses, and lauded as "the person who made possible the Marin Art and Garden Center for all of Marin."

After Mrs. Livermore's death, Mrs. Herrington took the lead in raising funds for a Caroline Livermore Memorial Wall of used bricks to enclose her beloved art and garden center grounds.

THE LUNCHEONS in the open air are by no means the Northgate Group's only functions. Annually the women stage a Market Day sale in May and Table Decor in the fall as fund-raising projects. And a cookbook composed of the members' favorite recipes proved a local best-seller and is now in its second edition.

The antique shop operated by the group has been a long-standing source of funds for the art and garden center.

It had its beginning back in 1948 when Mrs. Scott suggested that the members bring antiques from their homes for sale to each other with the proceeds going to the center.

Soon, antiques and art and craft goods, such as Joan Polsdarfer's jewelry creations and handwoven goods from the Pi Beta Phi alumna club's settlement school, were being consigned to them.

THE FIRST sales were made from tables set up on the grounds. As the program grew, it was moved, first into the Bottle House, and then into the Octagon House, now the Moya del Pino Library.

Its next home was the Lockside house which had formerly been attached to the home of Helen Van Pelt on San Anselmo's Barber Avenue and which was moved to the art and garden center grounds by John Pomeroy.

Now the antique shop is located in Laurel House, one of two houses on the Laurel Avenue side of the center acquired by the art and garden center.

MEANWHILE the outdoor luncheons held on Wednesdays through the summer months have continued to climb in popularity until now as many as 500 guests are served. The one-time 75-cent fee has grown, too — to $4.50.

And for it, the guests enjoy not only a gourmet feast in the most pleasant of surroundings and upon tables especially decorated for each affair, but also the traditional fashion shows.

The 1971 series gets under way this Wednesday with the Junior League of San Francisco joining the Northgate Group as co-sponsors, and with fashions from Modern Eve of San Rafael, Novato and Northgate.

THERE WILL be subsequent luncheons on July 21 and 28 and on Aug. 4, 11, and 18.

Catering will be by Red Robin of Larkspur, which has performed those services now for the past several years.

But harking back to the days when she and Mrs. Smith got a Marin traditional off to a successful start with their Turkey Tetrazzini casserole prepared in their own kitchens, Mrs. Herrington is still able to supply the recipe:

INGREDIENTS: one cup of white sauce, one cup of cooked turkey cut in thin strips, a half cup of cooked spaghetti in half-inch pieces, a half cup of mushroom caps sliced and sauteed in butter, a third cup of grated Parmesan cheese, and three-quarters cup of buttered cracker crumbs.

Directions: Season the sauce with celery salt, bring it to a boil, and add the mushrooms, spaghetti and turkey. Fill buttered ramkins, sprinkle with the crumbs and cheese, and bake at 350 degrees for one-half hour.

It is fitting, say her fellow members of the Northgate Group, that Fen Herrington should have played a leading part in the beginnings of the organization, for she has remained its mainstay through the years.

"FEN HERRINGTON," they say, "is the one name that has consistently, through all our 24 years at the art and garden center, remained in the forfront in all of our activities."

And Mrs. Herrington will be present once again on Wednesday to make certain that the 1971 luncheon series gets off to a good start, admitting as she does so that "we really didn't realize what we were starting when we arranged that first luncheon in 1947."

And asking: "But hasn't it been nice?"

CALLED LOCKSIDE because it had been "locked", or attached to the side of the home of Helen Van Pelt on Barber Avenue in San Anselmo before being acquired and moved to the Marin Art and Garden Center, this small structure was serving as the Northgate Group's antique shop in 1952 when the photograph was taken. The Northgate Group members are Mrs. Fred Good and Mrs. Ralph Alden.

TODAY THE ANTIQUE SHOP of the Northgate Group at the Marin Art and Garden Center is located in the Laurel House, one of two former residences fronting on Laurel Avenue acquired by the center. Seated outside the shop are two of the members who staff the fund-raising enterprise, Mrs. Mervyn F. Burke Jr. and Mrs. William Grace. The Northgate Group began dealing in antiques in 1948.

WHEN THIS SNAPSHOT was taken of one of the Northgate Group luncheon gatherings at the Marin Art and Garden Center, the quaint Octagon House, in the background, was serving as the group's antique shop. Later the Octagon House was moved to another area in the center, and it is now the Jose Moya del Pino Library.

Bit Of Old Holland In The Caribbean

The Antilles Isles Draw Vacationers

The Travel Pages

Willemstad, Curacao, is a city that has been called "a quaint bit of Holland with a Caribbean accent."

The description applies to all of Curacao and to its smaller neighboring island, Aruba.

Aruba and Curacao are the "A" and the "C" of the Netherlands Antilles "ABC" group that also includes tiny Bonaire. They lie just off the northern coast of Venezuela.

ONE OF THE BEST places to savor the Dutch-flavored local culture of Curacoa and Aruba is the former's Schooner Market Place where good-natured sellers and buyers bargain over the fresh produce and other goods.

It is said that an early governor had weak eyes and that he complained of headaches caused by the sun's glare. To lessen the glare, he banned the whitewashing so typical of the tropics. Islanders turned instead to the bright hues that still enliven the local scene.

This is the only place in the world where ocean liners sail up a "water street" through the heart of the town. Canal-like St. Anna Bay divides the two principal downtwon sections — Punda and Otrabanda.

Spanning the estuary is the biggest floating bridge in the world, the Queen Emma, which swings open many times a day to let freighters and cruise ships by. The pontoon bridge is a Caribbean landmark.

THERE WAS once a two-penny toll for pedestrians who were wearing shoes. Barefoot walkers crossed free. Islanders found a way to save the two pennies by removing their shoes. Now there is no charge for anyone.

Neither is there a charge for the ferries that link the Punda with Otrabanda. If you are late and stuck on either side, you can call ahead without charge. The public telephones are free too.

Punda is fine for shopping and strolling. Tidy streets such as Breedestraat and Heerenstraat behind Fort Amsterdam (from whose grounds the tall Hotel Intercontinental rises) are lined with shops containing goods from all over the world.

A PLEASANT hour or two can be spent on Saturday afternoons at one of the sidewalk cafes along the Gomez Plein watching an island custom. Curacao's youngsters, their week's work and schooling done, parade up and down the plaza or gather to watch other young people pass in review.

The interlude affords an opportunity also to sample some of the island's seafood specialties or Rijsttafel, a Dutch take-off on an Indonesian feast of stewed rice and succulent side dishes of meat, fowl, fish, shellfish, vegetables and fruit laced with savory sauces.

Down the channel from Queen Emma a high-level bridge is being constructed to provide another link between the city's two sections.

A BATCH OF new hotels is rising in the nearby Piscadera Bay area. And there are plans in this area for one of the Caribbean's largest "vacation village" developments.

Curacao was first occupied by the Spanish in 1527. It was fought over by them, by the British, the French and the Dutch, until the Dutch won out in 1634.

English is virtually a second language to Dutch, and Spanish also is widely spoken. And there is a fascinating local language called Papiamento — a mixture of Spanish, English, Portuguese, Dutch, Indian and African words.

THE OLDEST Hebrew house of worship in the Western Hemisphere is located near the Punda shopping district. A gem of Dutch colonial architecture, the Mikve Israel Synagogue dates from 1732.

Inside Fort Amsterdam, an old garrison now used for government offices, stands the United Protestant Church dating from 1769. A British cannon ball is imbedded in the church's walls.

Dutch marines man the inner courtyard, as if standing guard against urther intrusions.

THE CHURCH is on the site of an earlier Protestant sanctuary attended by Peter Stuyvesant. He served simultaneously as governor of Curacao and Nieuw Amsterdam (old New York) and is something of a presence still, lending his name to a modern college just outside the city.

There is a statue of him in his burgher's garb with his staff and peg-leg, a reminder of his role in securing Holland's flag in the Antilles. He lost his leg leading an attack on St. Maarten.

The Curacao Museum, located west of the harbor, is an interesting showplace of Dutch colonial interiors, including an 18th Century kitchen, bedroom and living room. There are paintings, industrial development exhibits and an aviary and garden with specimens of every plant that grows on the island.

LESS THAN 30 jet-minutes away are Aruba and its main town, Oranjestad, where the shopping also is excellent along Nassaustraat. The wharfside market, houseboat restaurant at Schooner Harbor and the Willem III Tower are other points of interest in the town.

But some of the real treats lie outside Oranjestad and they are easily reached by car, since the island is only 19 miles long and five miles wide.

Several loop trips are possible, depending on the roads used.

A GRAND circle leads to at least 50 highlights, ranging from caves to a tour of an oil refinery. The drives can be made clockwise or counter-clockwise, but the latter is recommended since it winds up by some of the world's most beautiful beaches.

Flamboyant tropical flowers, living fences of cactus and windblown, distinctively-shaped divi-divi trees are among the eye-catchers. So too are the 541-foot high Mount Hooiberg or the Haystack jutting sharply above the terrain.

OVER THE years, the waves have worn into some sections creating odd formations such as the Natural Bridge or little coves like Andicouri and Dos Playa where water-etched rock walls embrace pocket-size sandy beaches.

Inland, particularly in the area around the Pirate Castle (actually the ruins of another gold mill) at Bushiribana, the lonely panoramas resemble stark Scottish moors dotted with grazing goats and sheep.

THE WEST COAST of Aruba features some of the most magnificent white sand beaches in the world that are largely responsible for the island's growing popularity with vacationers. The beach view show here is from the Holiday Inn Hotel.

Friendly Reception Awaits Americans Who Tour USSR

Many Ethnic Groups All Share A Curiosity For The Tourists

By NORMA SPRING

It isn't eacy to tell a Russian when you see one, even in his own country.

Technically, a real Russian can only be one living in "Russia," the name of the largest republic among the 15 that make up the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Twenty-one smaller, autonomous republics are contained within the Union. Over a hundred ethnic groups with their own customs, dress and languages, are counted among the 235 million assorted souls in the USSR.

THE SOVIET Union stretches from Arctic to desert, and from ocean to ocean. It straddles Asia and half of Europe, covers a sixth of the earth's surface, and has 11 time zones. It's small wonder the visitors are overwhelmed by the almost incomprehensible variety in geography — and people!

Alaska Airlines' 15-day charter tours (12 in 1971) are especially geared to people-to-people contacts. Their original, first-of-a-kind western approach, leaving from Anchorage, Alaska is continued, with new wrinkles added.

Besides the Siberian gateway, a new route, directly over the North Pole to Leningrad, was inaugurated June 12.

TOURS THEN continue on to the Black Sea and European face of the USSR, to Middle Asia and Siberia, exiting at Khabarovsk for Anchorage. By alternating the gateways, all tours become "round the world," plus a pixie "extra" world tour, either coming or going. In passing, the 707 jet whips around the Pole once, again touching all 24 time zones.

Alaskans feel a kinship with Siberians. Both vast, newly-developing wilderness lands have permafrost and tundra and taiga forests, and wide open spaces. Temperatures plunge far below zero in the long winters, and soar to the 90s in the short, light-filled summers.

Like Alaska, the land is surprisingly colorful and flourishing in summer, and the people take to healthful outdoor recreation.

AFTER LANDING at transportation center Khabarovsk on the Amur River, the tour flies to Irkutsk, a Siberian outpost founded by Cossacks in the mid-17th Century.

An excursion to Lake Baikal, homeland for many ancient groups of people, points up the age of the region. At the Limnological Institute, visitors learn the story of this unique lake, which has many unusual specimens in its depth (up to a mile deep in some places).

"Scratch a Russian, find a Tartar" goes the saying. The exotic, Oriental heritage is a striking contrast, in Middle Asia. The tour visits Tashkent, today's Uzbekistan capital, and Samarkand, a 2,500-year-old crossroads of camel caravans that followed the silk routes.

PHOTOGRAPHERS consider these Middle Asian cities tops for people-watching. The market place in Samarkand is backdropped by sun-baked ruins and blue-tiled domes. The buyers and sellers set up shop out of doors, and carry on much as they have for centuries, undaunted by their foreign admirers.

In Sochi, Russian "Riviera" on the Black Sea, it's a wise traveler who can tell a Russian from all the other visitors who converge there. On the beach, or while taking a dip in the famous Black Sea you may rub shoulders with a Russian worker on vacation.

You might try the language test, but the answer could come back in any language.

ALASKA AIRLINES tour guests take a day's excursion, part way by hydrofoil on the Black Sea, and then by bus, to Lake Ritsa. High in the Georgian Caucasus mountains, this lake is a prime scenic Soviet recreational destination.

Naturally, today's capital city, Moscow, and Leningrad (alias Petrograd, and also St. Petersburg) are full of Russians — real ones. They are cities in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic. Alaska Airlines provides well-organized sightseeing tours, led by personable Russian guides.

Or you can strike out on your own. Try the fabulous subway system, with stations like art galleries. Maybe you will want to sample a fine restaurant, or additional entertainment besides the circus and theater performances included on the tour.

ENTERTAINMENT is reasonable and well-attended by Russians, who take their culture seriously. Your guide will help you with tickets, directions and reservations.

Leningrad, which has been called "the most beautiful city in the world," is a showplace for palaces. The Winter Palace on the bank of the Neva River houses the famous Hermitage Museum, once a private museum for the czars and their noble friends. Now visitors, along with the Russians, can admire art treasures from all over the world.

There is also an excursion out of Leningrad to Peter the Great's Summer Palace, noted for its outstanding fountains with golden statues, and beautifully landscaped grounds.

Seeing the various faces of the USSR, visitors discover that the Soviets have a common trait: a friendly curiosity toward guests (especially Americans).

The citizens, from pioneering Siberians to metropolitan Muscovites, are pleased when visitors come to admire their achievements.

A Treat For Railroad Buffs

By PITT CLARK

You blink. Can you believe your eyes?

The name on the signboard is "The Romney Hythe & Dymchurch Light Railway." Shades of the Toonerville Trolley!

A green flag waves, a whistle shrills, and with a snort of steam a tiny train squeaks away. This, in Southern England, is the smallest public railway in the world.

On a 15 and one-eighth inch track is a perfectly proportioned locomotive — five feet high, weighing five tons — which hauls a dozen coaches, crowded with passengers, across the meadows and over the shingle of Kent's bogey-haunted Romney Marsh.

OUT OF HYTHE it speeds, at about 20 miles per hour, on the 70-minute journey to its terminus 14 miles away at the pebbly promontory of Dungeness, nosing out into the English Channel.

It has nine locomotives, all replicas of steam engines which ran on British main lines until diesel and electric services took over a few years ago. One bears the name "Winston Churchill," another is called "Doctor Syn" after the fictitious smuggler-clergyman of Dymchurch in Russell Thorndike's novels.

While it is used today primarily to carry holiday-makers — $350,000 in the average year — the little railway has had its exciting moments.

It was, in 1941, a vital part of Britain's "invasion coast." It was taken over by the army and an anti-aircraft train, built in the New Romney workshops, patrolled the line.

Out of Hythe, to seaward, are gaunt Martello Towers, built as a first line of defense against Napoleon's legions. Curving inland are the chalk hills which were cliffs until, over many centuries, the sea receded and left a margin of marsh.

THE TRAIN runs along side the Royal Military Canal, a narrow waterway which was to be the second line of defense against the French, but today shows no more warlike sight than the occasional angler searching for elusive perch or pike.

Then into the Marsh and across pastures, where lookers (as they call the shepherds) tend the famous Romney Marsh sheep, into Dymchurch, once the center of the area's notorious smuggling trade.

In great-grandfather's day on the sands over the sea wall, bloody battles were fought with cutlass and pistol between smugglers and Excise men. There are well-authenticated stories of smugglers openly discussing business in such inns as the Ship (recently rebuilt) and the City of London, which was constructed from timbers of a wrecked ship.

ON AGAIN another three miles, past rush-bordered dykes and lonely farmhouses, the little train steams into New Romney. Here it loses one of its two tracks and runs by single line to the turnaround at Dungeness.

The town of New Romney is delightful, with ancient houses and shops lining a wide main street. The Ship Inn dates from the 14th Century.

This inland town once had a harbor, and ships tied up to the wall of its magnificent church.

Beyond, to Dungeness, Romney Marsh still retains an indefinable atmosphere of magic which almost makes you believe that, as some say, fairies live in the gorse bushes. When the mists come up at night you see the shape of a ship that sailed here in days when the Marsh was still the sea bed.

During the season, from May to Sept., 10 trains a day run between Hythe and Dungeness.

THE BOOK PAGES

The Scott Fitzgeralds, By A Zelda Partisan And Friend

EXILES FROM PARADISE by Sara Mayfield; Delacorte, 309 pages, $8.95.

By DON KEOWN

One of the lessons one learns from biographies is that great talent or capability does not necessarily go hand-in-hand with strength of character. And, in fact, frequently does not do so.

Society tends to spoil its especially gifted, tolerating in them a degree of childishness that it otherwise would not permit above the 5-year-old level.

The Fitzgeralds, Zelda and Scott, provide a case in point. And their immaturity was never more painfully exposed than in Sara Mayfield's new "Exiles from Paradise."

Of course, the Fitzgerald capers have been well chronicled before. But this time it is Scott, not Zelda, who stands exposed as the greater perpetrator of the antics and the outrages that brought tragedy and decadence to the one-time darlings of the Jazz Age.

First, one might ask if there is really a need for another book about the Fitzgeralds, particularly after the success of Nancy Milford's "Zelda." In fact, however, we are seeing a whole spate of post-Milford books about the couple. And Sara Mayfield has a better excuse for writing about them than most.

She was a close acquaintance of the Fitzgeralds, having grown up with Zelda in Montgomery, Ala., and having met up and mixed with them periodically throughout their chaotic lives.

This personal knowledge was part of her formula for her earlier and successful "The Constant Circle: H.L. Mencken and His Friends." And as the Fitzgeralds figured largely in the Mencken book, so Mencken is a leading character now in the Fitzgerald biography.

In this book, however, Miss Mayfield does exhibit some uncertainty as to her personal role in the story, hesitating to adopt a straight first person narrative stance, and thus fluttering in and out of the book in a somewhat disconcerting manner.

The advantage "Exiles from Paradise" has over other Fitzgerald books lies, of course, in the personal insight and experience which Miss Mayfield is able to bring to her subject. It is quickly apparent that the author is pro-Zelda, anti-Scott. But her reasons are also made clear. Most who knew, or endured, the two would probably have reached the same preference.

Scott Fitzgerald as compared to Ernest Hemingway, the approach taken by most writers, is one thing. Against Hemingway's arrogance, conceit and ruthlessness, Fitzgerald emerges as a sympathetic character.

But Scott vs. Zelda, the key comparison in Miss Mayfield's book, is quite another matter.

Young Zelda Sayers was "one of the South's truly fine examples of feminine brains, beauty and charm." And, as Sara Mayfield saw it, marriage with Scott Fitzgerald led to her downfall, rather than vice versa.

She analyzes acutely the resurgence in popularity of the Fitzgeralds nearly a half century after the era for which "their self-revelatory writings constitute one of the most significant contributions to the understanding."

And she agrees with Cyril Connolly that "apart from his increasing stature as a writer, Fitzgerald is now firmly established as a myth, an American version of the Dying God, an Adonis of letters."

But out of fairness to Zelda, Miss Mayfield cannot accept Connolly's decision that Scott Fitzgerald "as the object of a cult that had gone beyond mere admiration for literature" should be left to that exalted state.

"I realized," wrote Connolly, "that it would be quite impossible for such worshippers to form any realistic idea of what Fitzgerald had been like, and that they had better be left with their myth."

But, Sara Mayfield notes, Scott Fitzgerald, during his lifetime, was frequently quite candid about his human shortcomings. He seemed torn between the deeply ingrained Catholic rite of confession and his enjoyment of the legend he had helped to create. Writers, generally, have honored the latter commitment while ignoring the former. Sara Mayfield swings the pendulum the other way, stripping Scott Fitzgerald of much of the false glamor and revealing a tiresome, immature and selfish alcoholic and egomaniac whose wastrel habits still could not quench the fiery brilliance of his creative flame.

ZELDA FITZGERALD is accorded a sympathetic treatment in "Exiles from Paradise" by Sara Mayfield, a writer who knew the novelist's wife from childhood and who maintained an acquaintanceship with the couple throughout their hectic lifetimes.

A SURPRISING book is "Villas in the Sun" by Bernard Wolgensinger, published by Charles E. Tuttle Co. of Rutland, Vt.

It is surprising in that at first glances, the big $17.50 book appears to be another of those cocktail volumes featuring pretty pictures — in this case, photographs of the villas that front the Mediterranean, in Greece, in Italy, in Spain, in Majorca, in France and in Portugal.

Closer inspection shows that, eye-catching as the photos are, "Villas in the Sun" is considerably more than just a picture book. It is a serious and informative study of the architecture of a region that has spawned a particularly interesting building style. The villas are diverse, ranging from a thatch-roofed platform supported by two barges to structures of castle-like magnificence. But all have one theme in common — an affinity for the sunshine and the sea that are the chief attractions of the area.

There are 169 black and white photographs and 14 color plates that disclose the most striking details, exterior and interior, of the well-chosen villas. And there are floor plans as well.

The similarities of Mediterranean and Californian living are immediately apparent, and the greater imagination of the Europeans in capitalizing upon their special assets is clearly demonstrated. Californians, architectural scholars and students especially, but not exclusively, should find "Villas in the Sun" a source of idas as well as viewing pleasure.

FARRAR, STRAUS and Giroux has issued a new edition of John Gregory Dunne's "Delano" in which the author updates his moving report on the United Farm Workers' Central California grape strike and his admiring portrayal of Cesar Chavez.

Dunne revisits Delano after the successful conclusion of the long, bitter struggle with the table grape growers, and adds material from his observations of a union leadership and membership jubilant over the recent triumph and just beginning the lettuce field campaign in a euphoric mood.

He also offers this conclusion: "Because of Chavez and Chavez alone, it is now possible to predict that all farm labor will be organized in the foreseeable future."

Conversely, Dunne admits, farm work is a field of little future, with automation certain to further reduce drastically the need for manpower, be it unionized or non-union. But, he adds, the spirit engendered by Chavez and his movement will have a more lasting effect in the cities than in the vineyards, for it has engendered a new spirit in the barrios, even though youthful Mexican-Americans there are more likely to adopt their action patterns from militant blacks than from Chavez' non-violent strategies. Still the new pride and new courage — the new mood of hope — have been inspired by Chavez and his brave people.

THE COLONIAL Williamsburg Foundation has issued a revised edition of the 1961 book, "Colonial Williamsburg: Its Buildings and Gardens," by the late architectural scholar A. Lawrence Kocher and his colleague Howard Dearstyne.

It is a descriptive tour of the restored Virginia capital, an account of the restoration, and an expert analysis of Williamsburg's significance, past and present. The text is both literate and authoritative, and the many illustrations are excellent, although one yearns for the color presented so splendidly in other Williamsburg books.

The 104-page volume, on high quality paper and beautifully bound, sells for $4.95 and is being distributed by Holt, Rinehart and Winston Inc.

Sleuths & Suspense

DELIVER US TO EVIL by Joe L. Hensley; Doubleday, 183 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

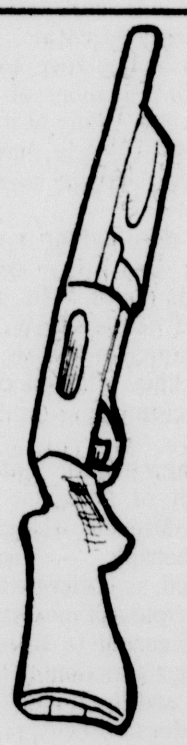
With capital punishment very much a topic of discussion in view of recent Supreme Court decisions, this little mystery by an Indiana attorney seems especially timely.

A young lawyer, Donald Robak, is asked by a condemned man, only seven days before he is due to go to the electric chair in a midwestern state, to come up with new evidence that will free him.

The case of Tague Robbins, convicted of murdering his wife, has been closed for five long years and it seems an impossible task.

Robak's job is made doubly hard because he himself is skeptical of the claim of innocence by the condemned man.

In this hardboiled tale, a trail of corruption in a small town leads from one prominent citizen to another and finally to the statehouse.



Hensley has drawn on his own experience, which includes a term as a prosecuting attorney, in this tightly-drawn thriller. As in all good mysteries, the outcome is a surprise and the good guys win out.

He Was There When Custer Bit The Dust

It is amazing that an Indian who was present in the Valley of the Little Big Horn on the day that the redmen wiped out Custer's Seventh Cavalry is alive today; it is even more amazing that he has made a success in the white man's America without ever losing his devotion to his own people.

Red Fox was a boy of 6 when Col. George Armstrong Custer led his troops into the trap by Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse. He fled with his family into the protecting woods as the trap was sprung.

After that battle and another in which Indians defeated a force under Gen. George Crook, the aggregation massed by Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse broke up. Part of the Indians, including the boy Red Fox, returned to the Standing Rock Reservation. From there, Red Fox was sent to Carlisle Indian School in Pennsylvania to begin his conversion to paleface ways.

His subsequent career included government service, several years with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, a stint with the 101 Ranch Rodeo, appearances in movies — an Indian success story. But. though he adapted with unusual success to the society of his conquerors, Red Fox has remained true to the beliefs of his own people and of his uncle, Crazy Horse.

Some years ago, he began writing a story of his life. Carl Asher has assembled his manuscripts into "The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox," which sees print just in advance of the author's 101st birthday, which will take place tomorrow.

Current interest in the American Indian has produced a plethora of Indian books of widely varying quality. But no other has appeared which gives such a complete picture of the adaptation from "old ways" to "new ways" as the life story of Chief Red Fox.

There is bitterness in his story, but it is not all bitterness. There is veneration for the past, but appreciation for the present. There is a lesson for all Americans today, whatever their race. And all is told in moving prose by a man who has lived a century and experienced the pageant of America in a way few others have done — and no other has recorded.

"The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox" is a remarkable book by a remarkable man.

THIS 1919 PHOTO of "America's sweetheart," Mary Pickford, is included among the illustrations in Edward Wagenknecht's "The Movies in the Age of Innocence," now printed in a $2.95 paperback edition by Ballantine Books. The hardcover edition was published by the University of Oklahoma Press in 1962. Wagenknecht's descriptions and analyses of early films, film-makers and film stars has since come to be regarded as a classic in its field.

Novel Of Politics And Its Pressures

A LIFE IN ORDER by Arthur Hadley; Viking, 378 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

In the tradition of Allen Drury's "Advise and Consent" and out of a remarkably similar background, Arthur Hadley has written a big, ambitious novel of politics and politicians.

Like Drury, Hadley accumulated the fabric for his novel as a journalist, first as a White House correspondent for Newsweek in the 1950s, the period in which his book is set, and later as an editor with the New York Herald Tribune.

Hadley, however, is somewhat less concerned than Drury with the mechanics of American politics and government, and directs a greater amount of attention upon the personalities of his characters. Indeed, by the latter part of the book, his principal has fled the Washington scene altogether.

George Dent is a congressman from New York, a war hero with liberal beliefs and with U.S. Senate aspirations. Political life, he discoveres, forces upon him compromises and an image-making routine that he finds increasingly uncomfortable and ultimately disastrous. So he quits politics to become an artist. Then comes the realization that the artist, too, is subject to pressures to conform and to commercialize.

To derive satisfaction from any activity, George Dent discovers, one must first put his personal life into a sense of balance and harmony.

In telling this story, Hadley offers a fairly good inside picture of the give and take of Washington life — of the trades, the juggling, the retreats and the stands a man must make if he hopes to advance up that difficult ladder. He makes the point that it is this propensity to — perhaps necessity for — compromise that has robbed liberalism of much of its once shining idealism and sense of fulfillment. But that compromise is not restricted to politics.

"A Life in Order," Hadley's third novel, is, one suspects, a less important and meaningful book than the author had hoped to create. But it is by no means unimportant or meaningless. It does speak of today's problems, if not incisively, at least not evasively.

Intrigue On Both Sides Of Curtain

Frank Riley has written a novel of intrigue, adventure and suspense that, despite a number of fresh and promising concepts, never quite catches fire.

Fr. Anton Dymek, a young rebel priest, is in trouble with the Los Angeles Diocese hierarchy, reduced to working in a Sunset Strip gas station. But a dying, humanitarian-minded biochemist recruits him for a mission behind the Iron Curtain, to bring out a formula developed there by a fellow scientist. The formula suspends the sexual drive in both males and females.

Father Dymek's assignment takes him first to Austria, then to Czechoslovakia, and finally back to America with the formula where he finds himself the target of power ploys by the Church, the U.S. government and third parties. All along the way the young priest has had to wrestle with temptations of the flesh as well.

The climax comes in Los Angeles where, with the help of youthful Christian revolutionaries, Father Dymek and associates put the formula to its first real test.

Riley's main difficulty appears to be uncertainty as to the tone of his story. It begins as hard realism, dissipates into farce, and ends a mixture of realism and science fiction. The reader in turn, winds up confused and curiously dissatisfied with the use Riley, a Southern California travel editor, has made of an excellent plot idea and a good geographical background.

Riley's incorporation of real people, including President Richard M. Nixon, into his story is another idea that does not develop as it should.

A Debate On Campus Violence

HOW RELEVANT IS EDUCATION IN AMERICA TODAY? by Alex C. Sherriffs and Kenneth B. Clark; American Enterprise Institute, 97 pages, $5.75. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"How Relevant Is Education in America Today" was the subject of a debate between Alex C. Sherriffs, Gov. Ronald Reagan's special assistant for education, and Kenneth B. Clark, president of the Metropolitan Applied Research Center in New York and only Negro member of the New York State Board of Regents. The volume is a transcript of the debate.

Actually, the two found themselves in agreement on many points. They agreed that American education is undergoing a revolution. But Sherriffs felt the violence of some undergraduates is not part of the real revolution; Clark felt that it is.

The transcript of the lectures and discussions provides plenty of food for thought — and for further — discussion — within a very slim volume.

Exercising Away Those Aches, Pains

One out of every three Americans suffers from a muscular imbalance, says orthopedist Dr. Arthur A. Michele.

This imbalance makes itself felt in a number of painful ways that many of its sufferers, quite needlessly, have come to accept as their normal way of life.

It may be a nagging back pain, flat feet, weak ankles, knock knees, stiff neck, bones that fracture easily, circulatory problems, arthrosis of the hip and knee, slipped disc or simple clumsiness and poor posture.

When these symptoms are the result of muscular imbalance, Dr. Michele claims that orthotherapy — "specially designed exercises that use the principles of posture and body engineering to bring about the proper functioning of the muscles and the joints" — can work wonders.

On the other hand, he warns, it is dangerous for persons with muscular imbalance to attempt many exercises such as push-ups and toe-touching with the legs straight.

Dr. Michele's book discusses the theory of muscular imbalance, sets forth some tests to help the reader determine if he or she is a victim, and outlines his basic recommended exercise program for its correction, citing case histories to support his system.

Dr. Michele is no quack or johnny-come-lately to orthopedics. He is currently professor and chairman of the department or orthopedic surgery at New York Medical College, director of orthopedic surgery at five New York hospitals and the honorary police surgeon of New York City. He has behind him 35 years of medical practice, clinical research and teaching. While he admits that mnay doctors are initially skeptical of the claims made for orthotherapy — "I was even skeptical myself, in the beginning" — he claims that these same physicians become enthusiastic converts once they are exposed to the dramatic results of the simple treatment.

"For adults or children the philosophy that nature will correct their muscle problems or that they have to live with their aches and pains is not only false, but harmful," says Dr. Michele. "It does nothing more than delay the time for treatment so that the condition becomes more and more difficult to correct."

The Junipers — California Compatibles

Conifers Go Well With Ranch Home

When California adopted the lines of ranch-style architecture, a group of plants was suddenly thrust into the spotlight: the Junipers.

This large family of conifers has proven compatible with western building styles. And today there are new and exciting varities that have been introduced by plantsmen because of the perpetual popularity of Junipers.

The traditional green foliage of early-day varieties has been augmented by varying hues of green, plus shades of silver and blue, and golden colored ones as well.

THERE ARE many foliage textures to choose from, which is important in selecting varieties for landscape use. The varied growth characteristics of individual Junipers makes it possible to create pleasing effects in any garden.

It could be said that there is a Juniper variety for almost any landscape situation in the sunny areas of the garden.

There are varities such as San Jose Juniper and Juniper Webberi which excel as groundcovers. The latter forms a carpet of finely textured green with a bluish cast, while San Jose's prostrate is a sage green, and compact.

Nurseries will have many ground-hugging Junipers in shades of green, gray-silver and blue.

LOW-GROWING Junipers are in great demand for use in foreground plantings or accent, filling-in expanses as attractive groundcovers, raised beds — and there are so many newer varieties to enjoy it's unvelievable.

The Juniper Buffalo is a bright green specimen, featuring feathery branches. Silver Spreader is heavily set with silvery-green branchlets, giving it a full appearance.

Shopping will turn-up other low-growing Junipers, some of which will be compact while others will spread arching branches in appealing fashion.

TWO TOP candidates for in-between size shrubs are the Armstrong Juniper and Juniper Mint Julep. Both fit nicely into foundation plantings around the house or other structures, and standout where a modest-grower is needed.

The growth of the Armstrong variety is compact with spreading light green foliage. Mint Julep is a deeper mint green and its spreading branches create a fountain-like form.

It's hard to beat the Pfitzer Junipers — blue and green — , for these well-known medium-to-large growers create arresting beauty at the far reaches of the property or in special planting areas in the garden. Available now is a compact type as well as a Golden Pfitzer, whose showy-green foliage is splashed with golden tips.

The California Association of Nurserymen reports there are dozens of Juniper varieties in the nursery trade — 50 and more — and many of them are recent introductions. Local garden centers and nurseries will have a cross-section of this large plant family, and offer those varieties which have proven to be dependable in your area.

It would be an ambitious undertaking to describe the merits of all Juniper varieties, but the plants lend themselves to carefree gardening, and the payoff is lasting beauty and enjoyment.

A Deck Enhances Pool

Wood Adds Cool Touch And Safety

Carefree relaxation is the function of a swimming pool — it's seldom added to a home these dayssolely as a status symbol.

Small, above-ground models, as well as built-in types of all sizes, bring a pool within reach of most homeowners.

Pool-side amenities make a big difference in enjoyment, and they should be chosen with safety and low-maintenance in mind, as well as comfort and good looks.

ANY SIZE pool benefits from a surrounding deck of wood, which stays cooler and is less slippery than paving. The deck also dries quickly, avoiding unsafe puddles.

A deck built around a circular above-ground pool multiplies access over the usual single ladder. A railing for added safety and a wood screen or fence around the perimeter make this type pool a handsome addition to any yard.

The larger built-in pool benefits from similar treatment, and provides a family gathering place for members scattered in all directions most of the day. It's a healthy activity center for teens and an attractive entertainment area for their elders.

OWNERS ADD features to their pools as budgets allow — a patio for barbecues or buffet suppers, adjacent play area to keep active games away from poolside, or a sauna built into the bathhouse.

The pool is halfway between main living level and daylight basement, over a slightly sloping lot.

AN OPEN cross-rail railing of two-by-four inch and four-by-four inch fir stretches across two outer sides of the pool deck. The other open side was enclosed by a five-foot high solid windscreen of one-by-four-inch resawn boards, four-by-four-inch posts and a two-by-four-inch horizontal cap.

PAVING ISN'T THE only material that can be used effectively and attractively around the poolside. Here a wooden deck provides a rim for relaxation that is cool and safe in that slippery puddles of water do not accumulate upon its surface. The deck of two-by-four-inch Douglas fir on edge also solves the sloping site problem. The cross-rail railing is built of two-by-four-inch fir on four-by-four-inch posts.

Hardboard Is The Handyman's Friend

Upstairs, downstairs, indoors and out — that's where you can use hardboard to expedite remodeling jobs.

Unlike natural wood, hardboard has no knots or weak spots. The standard size panels are easy for the do-it-yourselfer to handle and work with.

Indoors, use prefinished hardboard.

It resists dents and scrapes and comes in dozens of patterns, formal and informal, contemporary and traditional. There are solid colors and woodgrains, smooth and textured finishes.

Some hardboards are primed for painting, but most have long-lasting, factory-finishes. Plastic-surfaced hardboards are made for use in high moisture areas such as baths and laundries.

Perforated hardboard, unpainted, pre-primed or pre-finished, adds wall storage space to kitchens, closets, children's rooms, family rooms, workshops, basements and garages.

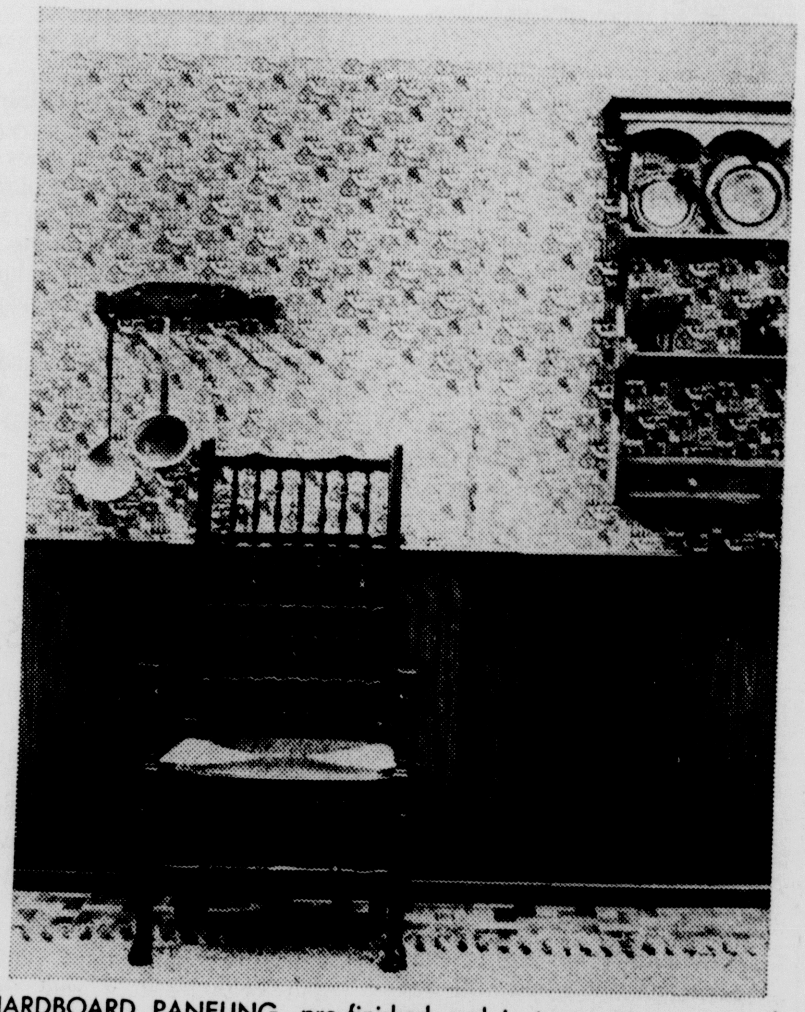
Exterior hardboards for siding are available in styles to suit the architecture of your house. There are board and batten panels, rough-sawn lap panels, vertical panels with deep V-grooves, and horizontal lap siding.

Many decorative ways to use hardboard paneling are illustrated in "New Dimensions in Living," a 24-page booklet available for 25 cents from American Hardboard Association, 20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., 60606.



HARDBOARD PANELING, pre-finished and in two patterns — teak design for the wainscoting and a colorful Colonial pattern above — has been used here to create an attractive wall that a do-it-yourselfer installed without difficulty.

Handyman's Pages

8 Pages Of Ideas On Patios

A bonanza of outdoor living enjoyment can be created with a patio of western wood, beautifying and making useful idle land surrounding the house.

Pockets of privacy from weather or neighbors can be formed with screens. Sweeping decks can transform a grassy plot into a party room complete with benches, gazebos and garden "rooms."

Patios are a flexible home addition, with designs to suit the scale or style of any house, complementing existing landscaping, and providing relief from wind or sun.

Decks and yard structures, such as a gazebo for barbecuing and serving al fresco meals, can relieve the monotony of look-alike adjacent houses.

Sloping lots can be landscaped with a patio incorporating decks on several levels, wide stairways of wood, and planter boxes of flowers or terraced planter areas.

For an eight-page, colorfully illustrated booklet on ways to landscape your yard with patios of western wood, send 15 cents in coin to Western Wood Products Association, Department 523-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204.

Jungle Gym Pleases Kids, And Mother

CHILDREN ARE unlikely to stray when there is play equipment such as this Jungle Gym in the backyard. And when Dad or Big Brother builds it, it is an inexpensive addition to the home facilities.

These are the days when it falls upon the mothers to keep their broods occupied and mischief-free, while school teachers enjoy a well-earned summer's rest.

Well-chosen play equipment in the background puts any mother ahead of the game. And no single piece of equipment is more popular than the Jungle Gym.

Furthermore, it is a big asset in the building of strong, well-coordinated young bodies.

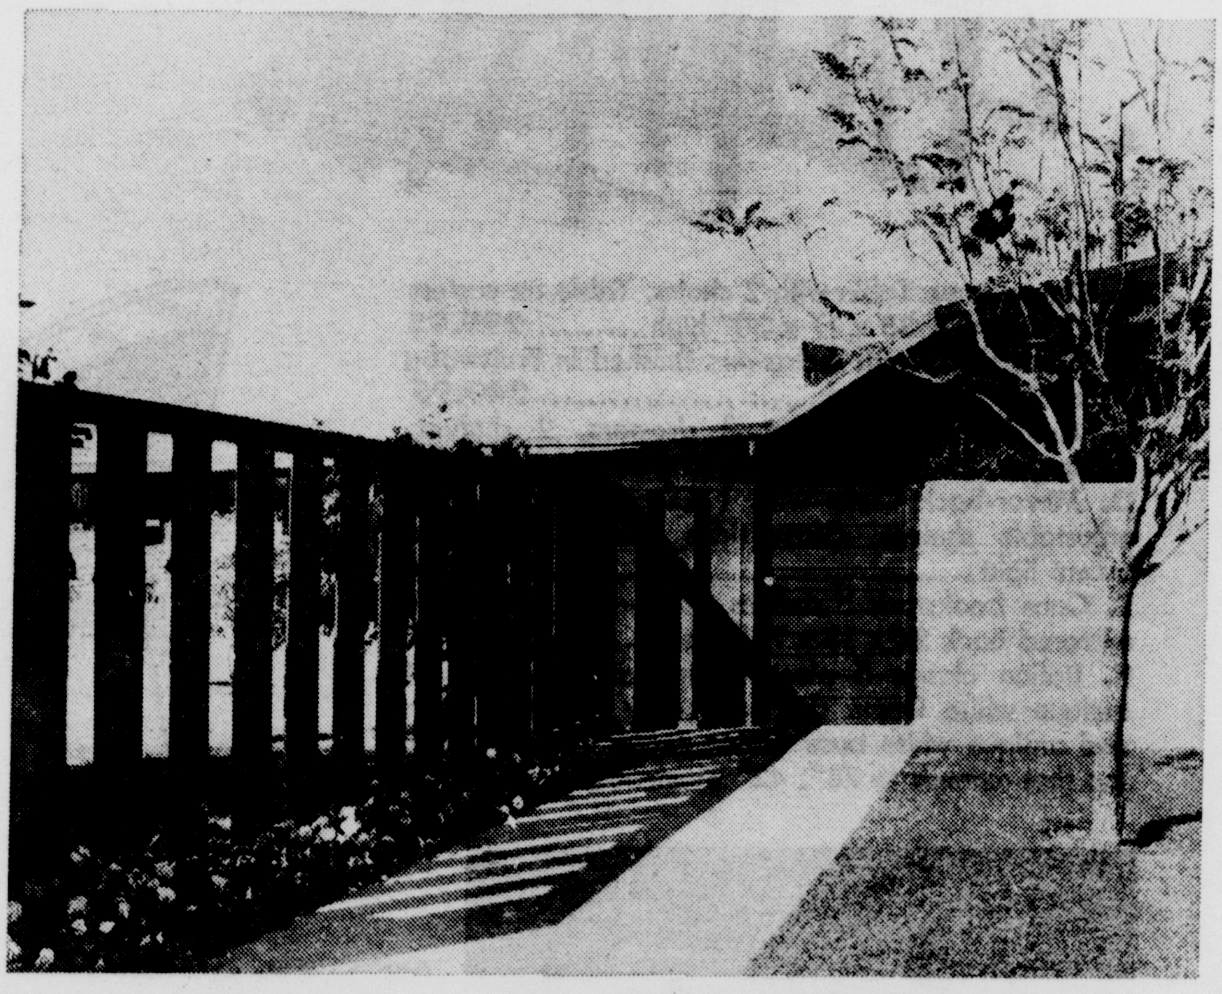
To build your own, send $1 (plus another 25 cents for air mail delivery) to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409, and ask for Jungle Gym Pattern No. 159.

Building the Jungle Gym is easy once you have the pattern. The project can be accomplished by any amateur with a few simple hand tools. It is inexpensive, too, when you build it yourself. And the finished product will withstand the kind of rigorous use it is certain to receive from vigorous youngsters.

A TABLE FOR SIX

THIS TRESTLE TABLE, Early American in style, can be used as a desk or for indoor-outdoor dining for six. Built of plywood and connected with removable wooden pegs, the table can be constructed with hand tools, a power drill, saw and router. Long, narrow, easy-to-handle panels make up the 41 inches by 36 inches table top, creating an interesting inlaid wood effect when the table is assembled. It can be disassembled in five minutes. There are vertical supports to insure stability. And stained, antiqued or finished naturally, the table makes a handsome addition to either indoor or outdoor decor. For the Trestle Table pattern, send 50 cents to American Plywood Association, 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401, and ask for Form 71-610.

A FENCE THAT BREATHES



YES, YOU CAN have your privacy, and breezes, too. This high fence of vertical one-by-12-inch western pine boards face-nailed on alternate sides of two-by-four-inch stringers show how. It blocks the view of the swimming pool from the street, yet permits the air to circulate. Forthermore, the fence directs visitors along a walkway to the front entry. The solid gate features horizontal boards in an overlapping pattern. Wood Products Industry Fund, 1240 Bayshore Highway, Burlingame, 94010, offers a free full-color eight-page brochure of fence ideas of this kind.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

NBC will start its new season the week of Sept. 13-19, premiering eight new series in that period as well as introducing the new material of the old-over series.

The Julie Cobb you will see as a dedicated public defender in the new NBC series, "The D.A.," in the fall is the daughter of star Lee J. Cobb and actress Helen Beverly.

The GE Monogram series of actuality specials and documentaries will be aired on the ABC network during the coming season. There will be six new specials scattered from November through next April. Several repeats will follow those. NBC has carried the series the past two seasons.

Finals of the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant in Miami Beach will be telecast at 10 p.m. July 24 by CBS.

A grant from Xerox Corporation will premit the non-profit Public Broadcasting Service network to telecast 26 film classics produced throughout the world in the past 50 years. They will be aired in prime time on consecutive Friday nights beginning Jan. 14 under the program title, "Film Odyssey."

The first four programs of "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour" on CBS this fall have been set to feature, respectively, John Wayne, Bob Hope, Lucille Ball and the 50th annual Photoplay Gold Medal Awards. The Wayne show leads off on Sept. 14 as the series moves from its former Sunday spot to 7:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesdays.

Larry Hovis, who was a regular cast member of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In " on NBC during its first season, will return for the fifth season starting in September.

NBC-TV plans to film a pilot for a new series of "Topper" shows that it would introduce in its 1972-73 season.

A graduate of the University of Connecticut, Kaz was raised in Watertown, Conn. From a rather standard American background, Kaz has chosen to live an off-beat existence in Hollywood.

He has been married to his wife, Nancy, for almost nine years. They are the parents of Alec, 2, and Katy, 10 months.

THEIR HOME is located on a hill deep in Benedict Canyon. It is a converted summer cottage from the early days when Southern Californians escaped to the cool, tranquil foothills during the hot months.

Kaz and Nancy have fixed the two-bedroom abode themselves, decorating it with purples, reds and orange highlights which Kaz describes as "really funky."

In addition to his acting activities, Kaz has a photography studio in West Hollywood which doubles as an office. He has produced three underground movies there with friends.

ONE OF THE films, "Bongo Wolf's Revenge," has been released in Australia and London and appeared on German television. Garas and his associates plan to show it at several film festivals before releasing it in the United States.

"It's a full, happy existence, and we have a lot of colorful friends," the actor says.

All the current segments of the NBC series were filmed in England where Kaz and his family lived in a duplex flat in Knightsbridge. He isn't sure whether more episodes of "Strange Report" will be made.

AWAY FROM acting or producing underground movies, Garas' chief avocation is medicine, which he admits is an unusual hobby.

Instead of tinkering with the internal combustion engine, rigging stereo outfits or surfing, Kaz steeps himself in the world of medicine. He owns an extensive library of medical texts.

Garas has no plans for becoming a doctor. The regimentation of medical school turns him off.

"I don't play on becoming a do-it-yourself brain surgeon," he says. "But the medical field is fascinating to me and I enjoy reading everything about it."

THE YOUTHFUL actor, who plays Halin Gynt in the series, wears what amounts to a uniform most of the time: blue denims, boots and an open shirt.

His wardrobe on the show was provided by the production company.

Kaz would as soon direct and produce motion pictures and television shows as he would act in them. When he isn't involved in any particular project he devotes himself to his wife and youngsters.

"I think I could best be described as a hard-core fun-lover," Kaz concludes. "There's nothing wrong with that."

Publishers Earn TV Appreciation

The National Association of Broadcasters has praised the directors of the American Newspaper Publishers Association for their support of broadcasting's fight to preserve news freedom in the United States.

The ANPA Directors had urged state and local government to uphold "a public policy permitting freedom of expression uninhibited by governmental intrusion."

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

The Melos Ensemble of London has performed internationally for 20 years a varied and expanding repertory of chamber music. One of their latest releases is Angel S-36538, the Nielsen "Woodwind Quintet Opus 43" and Berwald's "Septet for Strings and Winds."

This is the best version of the 1922 Nielsen woodwind work and the only recording of the conservative but rather original 19th Century piece by the Swede Berwald.

The stereophonics are especially fine.

THE LAST recordings of the great British conductor, Sir John Barbirolli, have appeared on Angel S-36756. They present the first stereodiscing of "Appalachia" by Delius, as well as the same composer's "Brigg Fair."

Subtitled "Variations on an Old Slave Song for Chorus and Orchestra," "Appalachia" was started by the English composer 10 years after he left the orange plantation in Florida on which he had spent some years. Its sense of melancholy comes to a head in the baritone solo (sung by Alun Jenkins) in which the black man parts from his lover to go down the river to be sold. The haunting orchestral coda leaves no doubt the pair will never see each other again.

This is a must for all those partial to the impressionistic in music.

AS YOU HAVE probably heard, most of our top U.S. symphony orchestras are now being recorded by European-based record companies.

Angel has among others the Chicago Symphony, and offers this crack ensemble under the baton of Seiji Ozawa on S-36045 in Janacek's "Sinfonietta" and Lutoslawski's "Concerto for Orchestra." While both works are available in other recordings, Ozawa's impassioned treatment of both modern orchestra gems merits first choice over competition.

Janacek's last orchestral work, dating from 1926, alternates extroverted joyousness with tender lyricality. The sound of the Chicago forces is excitingly realistic, yet with a feel of the spaciousness of the hall. And the quiet recording surfaces and stereo balance of the Angel version far outweighs the competing version on Philips, in the atonal Lutoslawski piece.

THE HORN CLUB of Los Angeles has a very unusual album of its own on Angel S-36036.

Of the eight composers represented my personal favorite was Alec Wilder for his "Nonet for Brass," full of that composer's usual direct and tuneful musical communication. Of more avant-garde temper are "Lines and Contrasts" by Gunther Schuller and "Games: Collage No. 1," by William Kraft.

The latter work requires the conductor (in this LP the composer) to lead two separate instrumental choirs, often playing in different meters. He also decides when new players are to be added in various collages. While partaking more of enjoyment for the performers than enjoyment for the listeners, the Kraft piece is not long and is worthwhile.

There are other more approachable short pieces by Lassus, Palestrina, Victoria and Rossini to round out this attractive album.

MUSIC OF British composer Ralph Vaughan Williams has had excellent representation on the Angel label. Three items are of recent interest:

The first recordings of two vocal works by the late master are of prime interest to those who like loud, thrilling and massive choral-orchestral works. Angel S-36751 features "Sancta Civitas," an oratorio for tenor, baritone, chorus, semi-chorus, distant boys' chorus and orchestra, plus "Benedicite" for soprano, chorus and orchestra. The major work, translated "The Holy City," is a very personal summary of the composer's religious beliefs and employs huge forces and three varied strata of sound to create a visionary musical fabric and great spacious and sensuous sound-worlds that are often breath-taking.

MORE VAUGHAN Williams is found on Angel S-36625, the "Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra" with Vronsky and Babin, and "Symphony No. 8" with Sir Adrian Boult conducting the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

The concerto is one of V.W.'s more light-hearted works, with exuberant mood and concentration on the percussive qualities of the pianos. Some of the slow movement will remind listeners of Rachmaninoff. The penultimate V.W. symphony is also exuberant and farily approachable.

The Scherzo, for wind instruments alone, is truly delightful, and the strings-alone slow movement has an air of nostalgia to it.

Performance and sound are exemplary.

THE FINAL Vaughan Williams album is a two-disc set presenting "A Sea Symphony" together with "The Wasps" Suite. Sheila Armstrong, John Carol Case, The London Philharmonic Choir and London Philharmonic Orchestra are conducted by Sir Adrian Boult on Angel SB-3739.

This album has been listed in the stereo magazines as an ideal show-off of the new pseudo-four-channel systems and I can vouch that the records do contain much ambient stereo "information" that is reproduced over the rear channels of such a set-up.

The symphony is a long and noble work based on poetry of Walt Whitman and creating an analogy between the voyager on the sea and the voyage of the human soul through life. The four sections are "A Song for All Seas, All Ships," "On the Beach at Night, Alone," "The Waves," and "The Explorers."

The chorus bears the brunt of the musical effort, in best British choral style. Some passages are thrilling in their richness and nobility and a complete libretto helps understanding.

Excellent sound, too.

Jimmy's Other Wife

Julie Adams Lands TV Plum In Veteran Actor's New Series

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jimmy Stewart's television wife was selected the day before shooting began on the new situation comedy series.

She is Julie Adams.

JULIE IS AN astonishing look-alike, younger version of Stewart's off-screen wife, Gloria, who at one time was a possibility for the role.

They are both tall, slender and fine-featured. Julie and Gloria both laugh easily and often. They wear their hair long. And both have long, shapely legs.

Julie's were on display the other day in hot pants.

"I DIDN'T KNOW until the day before shooting began that I had the role," she said.

"I had gone in to read for the part with Jimmy. Then I did a screen test. But so did a lot of actresses. I was relaxed because I didn't think I had a chance.

"Maybe that's what helped me most."

Another element in Julie's favor was a lack of trepidation at appearing in a test with Stewart.

BACK IN 1952 Julie was Jimmy's leading lady in a western movie entitled "Bend of the River."

Julie laughed and recalled, "at the final fadeout of that horse opera we were about to be married. I haven't worked with Jimmy since. Now almost 20 years later, we'll be playing man and wife."

Their family name on the NBC series is Mr. and Mrs. James Howard. As Martha Howard, Julie is the wife of a college professor who plays the accordion in his spare time.

A FACET OF the series that almost eliminated Julie was the inclusion in the cast of a 28-year-old son.

Julie has only teenagers at home.

"But I told the producers I'm a native of Arkansas and sometimes the girls down there marry when they're 13 years old.

"But they aren't attempting to put years on me with makeup. I wear very little makeup to avoid the glamorous, youthful look."

BECAUSE STEWART is closer to 60 than 40 years old, Julie can't be made to look too much younger than her television husband for fear of reducing the verisimilitude of the family relationship.

"I was told Jimmy wanted someone for the role who had some of the same qualities as his wife," Julie said.

"The fact that he chose me is a very great compliment. And working with Jimmy Stewart is just about the greatest thing an actress could hope for. "I'm a very happy and fortunate girl."

Marin Poets' Corner

HOME

Safely locked in fond embrace,
I see my Maker face to face.
My little bark has drifted home,
All anchored fast — no more to roam.

Long, long before we sighted land,
Tempest tossed o'er angry sea,
I saw afar that outstretched hand —
Welcome Home, I am with thee.

Our garments changed to seamless robes,
Placed gently 'round by timeless hands,
We rest content from labor free
In feathered nest — eternally.

SAN RAFAEL — MARIA M. EDWARDS

THE SQUIRRELS

Only with great sorrow
And wonder
I travel down the road,
And see them
Dead along the way
And the trees
Still with their nuts,
Roads divide
And fox and hawk,
Not the predators,
Spirit sighs.

POINT REYES — C. B. GEARHART

MY DAY OFF

The park
Above the lake
Is where I sit today.
It's calm, serene, and green—
A change.

ROSS — SHIRLEY COCHELL
